

Pathology Photography Fiction Fishing
Christianity Art Cooking Essays
Buddhism Freemasonry Medicine Biology
Music Ancient Egypt Evolution
Gardening Physics Dance Geology
Metaphysics Fitness Shakespeare
Cosmetics Yoga Marketing Confidence
Immortality Biographies Poetry
Psychology Witchcraft Electronics
Chemistry History Law Accounting
Philosophy Anthropology Alchemy Drama
Quantum Mechanics Atheism Sexuality
Mental Health Ancient History Criminal
Entomology Shipbuilding Languages Sport
Paleontology Research Herpetology
Metaphysics Investment Archaeology

Forgotten Books

— www.forgottenbooks.com —

Copyright © 2016 FB &c Ltd.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, distributed, or transmitted in any form or by any means, including photocopying, recording, or other electronic or mechanical methods, without the prior written permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical reviews and certain other noncommercial uses permitted by copyright law.

AN Elementary
Italian
ELEMENTARY GRAMMAR Grammar
OF THE ITALIAN LANGUAGE

PROGRESSIVELY ARRANGED FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

BY
G. B. FONTANA. Fontana
" "

NEW YORK:
D. APPLETON AND COMPANY,
549 & 551 BROADWAY.
1877.

779

F679

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1858, by
G. B. FONTANA,
In the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the District of Massachusetts.

P R E F A C E .

THE study of languages offers to a discriminating observer not only a collection of words and idioms, but the knowledge of customs, tastes, and national peculiarities. It is true that there are general principles which may be applied in common to all languages,—the system of ideas having everywhere the same foundation,—but these are, in their application, subjected to conditions peculiar to each people. The formation of words, the construction of phrases, and the modulation of sounds, are but the results of the national character pervading the minutest details of a language.

The Italian language, like all others, has national characteristics. The strength of its metaphors, the conciseness of its phrases, its flexible adaptability to thought, its sonorous terminations, expressive articulation, and musical prosody, are the living monuments of a people eminently artistic, and endowed with a high organic sensibility. Their early opposition to foreign despotism, and triumph over barbarism during the political struggles of forty Italian republics, created an elegant, energetic, and expressive language, possessing an innate nobleness and beauty.

A logical and philosophical method is therefore necessary to impart the Italian language, as well as intelligence, memory, and a musical ear, on the part of the learner. The latter attainments are often to be found, but there is no Italian grammar within my knowledge which combines all the requisites of a clear and concise treatise; some aiming to teach the classical tongue of the thirteenth century, others to give the mechanical translation of words and phrases, without rules and precepts.

The object of this work is to present the elements of the language as it is spoken to-day, in its simplest garb, both theoretically and practically.

The grammar is divided into two parts, embracing sixty lessons and sixty exercises. The first part is exclusively given to rules indispensable to a general idea of the language; the second is framed for those who are desirous of having an insight into its theory, and consists of synonyms, maxims, idioms, and figurative expressions. The student will thus be enabled to observe the distinctive features of the two languages: the strength and gravity of the English — man, in his full vigor; the softness and elegance of the Italian — woman, in her perfect beauty.

G. B. F.

INTRODUCTION.

To begin a course of lessons in Italian with the article, and, after having stated that il is used for the masculine gender, and la for the feminine, to call upon the pupil for an exercise, is not at all logical. The pupil must first know that libro, a book, is of the masculine gender, because ending in o, and tavola, a table, of the feminine gender, because ending in a; and then he can properly apply the article, and say il libro, la tavola.

The method adopted in this grammar consists in not introducing any part of speech, except a few connecting words, without having first given its appropriate rule.

The first lesson is therefore exclusively given to genders of nouns. As the pupil knows nothing but the genders, he can write no exercise; hence, no exercise is attached to the first lesson.

In the second lesson the pupil finds the article, the personal pronouns, and the auxiliary verb to have. These, together with his previous knowledge of the gender of nouns, give him material enough to write a sentence; consequently, he is furnished with an exercise.

The third lesson embraces the plural of nouns: not all the rules for the formation of the plural, but simply those necessary to one commencing the language. The remaining rules are introduced after things more important and useful to a beginner have been considered.

Progressing thus gradually and methodically, the pupil becomes familiar with the language in a short time, and without much effort.

The irregular verbs, which in other grammars occupy one third, and sometimes half of the book, have been simplified and reduced to rules, which are given in a single lesson.

The indefinite pronouns have been placed in three classes: those used for persons, those for things, and those for persons and things.

In Italian dictionaries some English words are found with two or more corresponding Italian words, which would naturally lead the pupil to use indiscriminately the one or the other; yet no two words have, in Italian, precisely the same import. The directions for the proper use of these synonyms have been given, in the course of the lessons, under the head bearing that caption.

No definitions have been given for the various parts of speech, as it is presumed that no one studies the grammar of a foreign language without first knowing that of his own.

Several rules common to both languages have not been noticed, to avoid complicating the work. In such cases the pupil can follow the precepts of his own language.

Particular pains has been taken to finish the lessons in pages, so that the vocabulary is always found on the same page as the exercise.

In the arrangement of the vocabularies, the English, and not the Italian words, are placed alphabetically; for, knowing the Italian word, the pupil has no need of looking it out.

The exercises contain words and expressions in common use on topics which constitute daily familiar conversation. The forty exercises of the first part are preceded by their corresponding vocabulary, so that the pupil can proceed in his study without the aid of a dictionary. But if he feels the need of a dictionary, he should procure a good one. Pocket dictionaries are only useful to travellers.

When the pupil has acquired a sufficient knowledge of the language to allow him to pass to the second part, he is left free, in applying the rules previously learned, to select those expressions which he thinks most fit to convey the English idea. Consequently, no vocabulary is attached to the lessons.

The exercises of the second part are more difficult than the preceding ones. Some of them contain extracts from celebrated poems, translated into plain prose, so that the pupil may compare his Italian translation with the original, which has been inserted for that purpose at the end of the book. Others are biographical sketches of the most prominent among the Italian writers; by which means the pupil, whilst acquiring the language, may become familiar with the life and works of some of the classic Italian authors, such as Manzoni, Alfieri, Tasso, Petrarch, and the father of the Italian language and literature, Dante Alighieri.

ITALIAN GRAMMAR.

PRONUNCIATION.

THE pronunciation of a spoken language can only be acquired perfectly from the voice of a native. An attempt to represent the sounds of one language by the written approximate sounds of another, would fail to give a perfect idea of its peculiarities. It would, therefore, be impossible to give rules and exceptions for the various shades and almost imperceptible gradations of some of the Italian sounds. But, as a native Italian teacher is not always to be procured by those desirous of acquiring a knowledge of the language, a few general remarks are here given on some of the letters whose pronunciation differs essentially from the English.

There are but twenty-one letters in Italian, viz. :

A,	B,	C,	D,	E,	F,	G,	H,	I,	L,	M,	N,
ah,	bē,	chē,	dē,	ā,	ef,	gē,	ahk'kah,	ē,	el,	em,	en,
O,. P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, Z.
o, pē, coo, ayrr, ess, tē, oo, vē, dzāta.

 W and y do not belong to the Italian alphabet, nor have they any corresponding sound in the language. The k and x are supplied by ch, c, or s; as, Keel, chiglia; except, eccetto; express, espresso. The letter j is almost entirely rejected by modern writers, and is represented by i at the beginning or in the middle of words, or by ii at the end; as, ieri, aiuto, principii, not jeri, ajuto, principj.

VOWELS.

The vowels are invariably pronounced as follows:

A like the a in father; as, fame, pane.

E like the e in met; as, penna, metto, except at the close of a syllable, when it is somewhat more prolonged and open; as, pena, vena.*

The usual way of teaching that the Italian e has, beside the close sound of the e in met, an open sound corresponding to that of the a in fate, has led pupils, particularly in singing, to mispronounce this vowel, giving to it the closing sound of the Italian i. This is an error which should be carefully avoided. Prolong the e as much as you like, but always give the same sound from the beginning to the end. Say pe-e-e-ne, but never pe-e-e-i-ne.

I like the ee in feet; as, fine, vino.

O, as pronounced in English, has a terminal sound of the Italian u; thus, no is really pronounced in English no-u; or, expressed in English sounds, no-oo. The Italian o is pronounced precisely like the first part of the English o, without the terminal sound of u. Pronounce roll, and stop on the middle of the word, and it is precisely the Italian o.*

When o is preceded by i or u, it is slightly more prolonged and open, but has never the closing sound of the u; as, fiore, cuore, piove.

U like the oo in root; as, fune, rupe.

CONSONANTS.

C or g followed by a, o, or u, are pronounced as in English; but, when followed by e or i, c has the sound of ch in cherry; as, cena, cima, and g the sound of g in gem; as, gemma, giro.

* For words with a double meaning, whose real significance is identified by the pronunciation of this vowel, see list, page 225.

☞ The hard sound of ca, co, cu, and ga, go, gu, becomes soft by the insertion of an i; as the soft sound of ce, ci, and ge, gi, becomes hard by the insertion of an h. Thus, they are expressed:

The hard sound by ca, che, chi, co, cu; ga, ghe, ghi, go, gu.

The soft sound by cià, ce, ci, ciò, ciù · già, ge, gi, giò, giù.

Gn always forms one syllable, in Italian, and has the sound of ni in poniard; as, ignaro, Signore.

Gl is pronounced as in English except before i, when it has the sound of ll in brilliant; as, figlio.

☞ Gli has the English sound in negligenza, Anglia, Anglicano.

H has no sound in Italian; it is only used, 1. To harden the soft sound of c and g. 2. To prolong the sound of the interjections; as, ah! ahime! 3. As a mark of distinction in the present of the verb avere, to have.

D and t have the English sound, with the difference that in Italian they have a softened character, while in English they both are strongly and markedly associated with a somewhat explosive force.

Tt or dd have the sound of single English t or d.

R has the same sound as in English, but at the end of a syllable it is always heard as a distinct letter, being aspirated with a slight snap of the end of the tongue. The two words dardo and dado can never be mistaken in their pronunciation, as is the case in English with the words farther and father, because, while in English the r is often pronounced without a ringing close, in Italian it receives its full sound, distinctly showing its presence.

S, at the beginning of words, has the hissing sound as in English; as, sano, seno, sino, sono, sudo

S between two vowels, or followed by b, d, r, or v, is pronounced with a soft sound, somewhat like z, as, base, casa, sbagliare, sdegnare, sradicare, svolgere.

 S retains the sharp, hissing sound, 1. In compound words whose primitive is a word commencing with s; as, ri-sano. 2. In words with the pronoun si affixed to them; as, dice-si, crede-si. 3. In adjectives ending in oso, osa, osi, ose; as, glorioso, gloriosa.

Sc followed by e and i, like sh; as, sceriffo, scisma.

Z, like dz in all words which have z in the English word; as, zona, zone; gazetta, gazette.

It is pronounced like tz when preceded by l or r, or followed by two vowels, and in nouns ending in zzo, or in verbs whose infinitives end in zzare; as, calza, forza, grazia, azione, ragazzo, spazzo.

It has nearly the sound of s in all words ending in anza, enza; as, speranza, penitenza.

Single consonants are generally pronounced soft; as, fato, caro, pena.

Double consonants are pronounced in one sound, but stronger and more marked than when single, by dwelling on the preceding vowel, and pronouncing it with an accent; thus, fatto, carro, penna, though forming their syllables fat-to, car-ro, pen-na, should be pronounced as if written fà-tto, cà-rro, pè-nna.

DIPHTHONGS.

Diphthongs are short and long; in each of them the vowels must be distinctly heard, with the difference that in the long diphthong each vowel is distinctly articulated, as if making a syllable for itself; as, E-u-ro-pa; in the short diphthong both vowels are pronounced unitedly and quickly; as, guancia.

ACCENT.

ACCENT, in its common acceptation, is but a sign placed over syllables to show that they must be uttered more forcibly than the others. The Italians have but one accent, the grave (`), which is generally used to mark the distinction between words otherwise written alike: as, amo, I love; amò, he loved; and also in words which in their origin were written with an additional syllable; as, bontà, virtù, instead of bontate, virtute. This accent is limited to vowels at the end of a few words; yet every word has, in Italian, its unwritten accent, because every word has a vowel on which the voice must chiefly dwell. This inflection of the voice, this rhythmic accent, being the most marked and the most varied in Italian, is, of course, the most difficult to be acquired by foreigners who are not in immediate correspondence with natives, because harmony cannot be expressed by written words, and yet harmony is to a language what color is to a picture.

It is true that the vowels have, in Italian, an expressive significance: that the open sound of the a and o naturally expresses strength and gravity; the meagre sound of the e and i, meekness and feebleness; the obtuse sound of the u, something sad and disagreeable; and that these vowels, properly modified by the sounds of corresponding consonants, make the language eminently expressive, and so flexible as to give to the words a distinctive character, and establish an immediate analogy between the sounds and the ideas; but this power of expression, as in the words rimbombare, ululare, rugire, fulmine, could not be brought to its height without the necessary proportion of measure in the modulation of articulated sounds.

The rhythmic accent should be considered under two different aspects: 1, as a means to give significance to a word; 2, as a means to give harmony to a word. Take, for example, the word ca-pi-to, and pronounce it, giving to each syllable the same quantity, and you find that the word has neither meaning nor harmony; pronounce it as if with an accent on the first vowel, raise the voice on the first syllable, and dwell upon it during the time occupied by the other two (cà-pi-to), and you have given to the word a pleasant modulation, and the meaning of I arrive. Change now the accent from the first to the second syllable, give to it the quantity of the first and third (cap-ì-to), and you have changed, not only the harmony, but also the meaning of the word, which is now understood. Then pronounce the last vowel as if it were accented, give to the last syllable the quantity of the two others (ca-pi-tò), and you have given to the word a new harmony and a new meaning; viz., He arrived.

To the above example another may be added, in the word ca-pi-ta-no. Pronounce it with the accent on the second a, as ca-pi-tà-no, and you have expressed the word captain. Pronounce it with the accent on the first a, as cà-pi-ta-no, and you have changed the meaning of the word into they arrive.

From these practical illustrations, it may be seen that the purity of pronunciation, in Italian, is based on the principle of giving to the accented syllable a certain pause, occupying in utterance nearly the same length of time as that given to the others together, as if the meaning of the word were contained in that single syllable. This is obtained by dwelling on the accented vowel without much prolonging it, and emitting the others rapidly and less forcibly. The accented vowel must, therefore, receive more or less quantity, according to the number of syllables contained in the word. Thus, the syllable cà is properly shorter in cà-pi-to than in cà-pi-ta-no, because in the former there are but two following vowels, while in the latter cà is more prolonged, because followed by three syllables, which must be pronounced in the same length of time as the first.

Monosyllables and dissyllables cause no embarrassment. Polysyllables are divided into four classes :

1. Parole tronche (truncated words), ending with accented vowels ; as, schiavitù, libertà.

2. Parole piane (smooth words), with the rhythmic accent on the penultimate. This class is the most numerous in the language, comprising all the infinitives ending in are and ire, and the first, second, and third persons singular, and the first and second plural of the past and imperfect tenses of all verbs ; as, perdóno, cantáre, partíre, cantava, cantai.

3. Parole sdrucchiole (sliding words), with the rhythmic accent on the antepenultimate, comprising the third person plural of the past and imperfect of all verbs ; as, folgore, amávano, perdéttero.

4. Parole bisdrucchiole (more sliding words), with the accent on the last syllable but three; as, ditemelo, ordinano.

The predominance of words belonging to each of these classes, according to the ideas the writer wishes to convey, gives to the expressions a flowing smoothness, or a solemn gravity.

The two following stanzas from Tasso are given with the object of exemplifying the different influences produced by their rhythmic construction.

Teneri sdegni e placide e tranquille
Repulse e cari vezzi e liete paci,
Sorrisi, parolette e dolci stille
Di pianto, e sospir tronchi e molli baci;
Fuse tai cose tutte, e poscia unille,
Ed al fuoco temprò di lente faci,
E ne formò quel sì mirabil cinto
Di ch'ella aveva il bel fianco succinto.

Gerus lib., canto 16, 8^{va}, 25

Chiama gli abitator delle ombre eterne
Il rauco suon della tartàrea tromba;
Tremar le spaziose atre caverne,
E l'aer cieco a quel rumor rimbomba.
Nè stridendo giammai dalle superne
Regioni del cielo il folgor piomba;
Nè si scossa giammai trema la terra
Quando i vapori in sen grávida serra.

Gerus lib., canto 4, 8^{va}, 3.

The number of the vowels e and i, and the liquid sound of the l, make the first stanza smooth and flowing. The predominance of the a, o, and r, makes the second stanza powerful and terrible. The first stanza represents the girdle of a beautiful maid; the second, the effect of the sound of a trumpet to call the demons to council.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

cóme la Itálica, bagnáta da dúe mári, incoronáta dalle Alpi, irrigáta da mílle fonti, frequénte di città magnífiche e di ameníssime vílle, óra stésa in vérdi, fecónde, imménse pianúre, óra sorgénte in cólli ridénti per ógni vaghézza, óra erétta in ámpie caténe di monti, che nel lóro istéssso selvággio órróre móstrano infiníte bellézze, e nelle foréste stermináte, e nei giòghi variaménte dirupáti ed aggruppáti, e nelle vállì fortunáte, e nelle ácque, o scorrénti in rívi fréschi e mólli, o romoreggiánti nei torrénti, o per caterátte balzánti, od in límpidi lághi chiúse e riposáte? O Italiáni, prostrátevi, veneráte quéstá sácrá térra che vide sópra sé córrere tánti nemíci, tánti straniéri, tánte crudéli fazióni, e tánte guérre combáttersi, e tánti incéndi, tánte mórti, tánti tradiménti, tánte rapíne comméttersi, e pur sémpre rimáse bélla, vagheggiáta, desideráta! Ma baciándo quéstá clássica térra, cercáte in éssa con riverénza le vestígia che i vóstri maggióri v' impréssero, e segúitele.

 The following words should be carefully pronounced and committed to memory.

Ugly	Brutto.	Not	No.
Why	Chi.	Poor	Povero.
House	Casa.	Possible	Possibile.
So	Così or sì.	Looking-glass, .	Specchio.
Sister-in-law	Cognata.	Same	Stesso.
Brother-in-law. . . .	Cognato.	Dear	Caro.
Easy	Facile.	To spend	Passare.
Handkerchief	Fazzoletto.	Next	Venturo.
Wide	Largo.	As	Poichè.
Husband	Marito.	Good morning . .	Buon giorno

PARTS OF SPEECH.

LESSON I.

NOUNS.

1. NOUNS, in Italian, have two Genders,—the Masculine and the Feminine.

2. Nouns ending in a are feminine; as, Donna, woman; penna, pen.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. Proper names, and nouns expressing rank, titles, and professions of men; as, Petrarca, Petrarch; Papa, Pope; Duca, Duke; Profeta, Prophet.

2. Nouns ending in ma derived from the Greek; as, Clima, climate; idioma, idiom; poema, poem.

N. B. — See list of masculine nouns ending in a, page 223.

3. Nouns ending in o are masculine; as, Uomo, man; albero, tree.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. Proper names of women; as, Saffo, Sappho; Calipso, Calypso; Aletto, Alecto.

2. The words eco, echo, and mano, hand.

3. Nouns abbreviated in poetry; as, Dido, Dido, instead of Didone; imago, image, instead of imagine.

4. Nouns ending in e are either masculine or feminine. Nouns appropriate to women, and those ending in ie, ione, dine, and gine, are generally feminine ; as, Nutrice, nurse ; superficie, surface ; lezione, lesson ; ancudine, anvil ; origine, origin ; colazione, breakfast.

5. Nouns ending in me, re, ente, are masculine.

EXCEPTIONS. — Fame, hunger ; speme, hope ; febbre, fever ; coltre, coverlet ; polvere, dust ; scure, axe ; torre, tower ; gente, people ; mente, mind ; sorgente, spring ; corrente, current.

OBSERVATION. — Pupils acquainted with Latin or French will find no difficulty in ascertaining the gender of nouns ending in e. Those which come under no given rule will be found in the examples of the following lessons, with the article prefixed.

6. Nouns ending in i are feminine.

EXCEPTIONS. — Barbagianni, owl ; ecclissi, eclipse ; pari, peer ; brindisi, toast ; Tamigi, Thames ; dì, day, with its compounds.

7. Nouns ending in ù are feminine.

EXCEPTIONS. — Gesù, Jesus ; Perù, Peru ; ragù, ragout.

OBSERVATION. — Nouns ending in à and ù retain their feminine gender when to these terminations are added de in prose, and te in verse ; e. g., Bontà, virtù, are always of the feminine gender, even when written bontate, virtute, or bontade, virtude.

N. B. — No nouns in the Italian language end in unaccented u.

Pupils should commit to memory the following nouns, and ascertain their gender by the above rules.

VOCABULARY.

Axe ♀	Scure .	Glass (drinking)	Bicchiere .
Brass	Rame .	Heart	Cuore .
Butter	Burro .	Knife	Coltello .
Candlestick	Candeliere .	Oil	Olio .
Chair	Sedia .	Spoon	Cucchiaio .
Cheese	Cacio .	Sugar	Zucchero .
Coat	Abito .	Table	Tavola .
Fever ♀	Febbre .	Vinegar	Aceto .
Flower	Fiore .	Water	Acqua .
Fork	Forchella .	Wine	Vino .

LESSON II.

THE ARTICLE.

8. THERE are in Italian, as in English, two Articles,—the Definite and the Indefinite.

OF THE DEFINITE ARTICLE.

9. The definite article, which in English is employed only to limit the noun, has, in Italian, two uses:—1, It limits the noun; and, 2, It shows the gender and number of the noun.

10. The definite article the is expressed in Italian by il, lo, and la.

11. Il is placed before nouns of the masculine gender beginning with any consonant except z or s impure, i. e., s followed by a consonant; as, Il libro, the book; il vino, the wine; il sale, the salt.

12. Lo is used before masculine nouns beginning with z, s impure, or a vowel, in which latter case it drops the o and takes an apostrophe; as, Lo zio, the uncle; lo spirito, the spirit; l'amico, the friend.

13. La is used before feminine nouns; as, La spada, the sword; la carta, the paper.

OBSERVATION. — This feminine form loses the a and takes an apostrophe when the noun begins with a vowel; as, L'anima, l'erba.

N. B. — The vowel is retained before names of countries and kingdoms; as, La America, la Italia.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

Io I.	Noi We.
Tu Thou.	Voi You.
Egli He.	Eglino They, m.
Ella She.	Elleno They, f.
Esso He or it.	Essi They.

AUXILIARY VERB AVERE, TO HAVE.

PRESENT.

Ho I have.	Abbiamo We have.
Hai Thou hast.	Avete You have.
Ha He has.	Hanno They have.

N. B.—Let the pupil here commit to memory the conjugation of the entire verb. (See page 197.)

14. In an affirmative sentence the verb follows its subject, and must agree with it; as, Io ho, I have; voi avete, you have; egli avrà, he shall have.

15. To form a negative sentence, non is placed before the verb; as, Io non ho, I have not; voi non avete, you have not; egli non avrà, he shall not have.

16. To form an interrogative sentence, the subject, whether a noun or a pronoun, must be placed after the verb; as, Ho io? Have I?—Avete voi? Have you?—Avrà egli? Shall he have?

17. An interrogative negative sentence is formed by placing non before the verb, and the subject after it; as, Non ho io? Have I not?—Non avete voi? Have you not?—Non avrà egli? Shall he not have?

VOCABULARY.

And	E.*	Odious	Odioso.
Bread	Pane.	Or	O.
But	Ma.	Passion	Passione.
Coffee	Caffè.	Penknife	Temperino.
Honor	Onore.	Pepper	Pepe.
Madam	Signora.	Salt	Sale.
Milk	Latte.	Soldier	Soldato.
Miss	Signorina.	Star	Stella.
Mr. or Sir	Signore.	Tea	Tè.
No	No.	Yes	Si.

* If followed by a vowel, Ed.

EXAMPLES.

I have the bread.	Io ho il pane.
Have you the tea?	Avete voi il tè?
No, sir, I have not the tea.	No, Signore, io non ho il tè.
Has he the milk?	Ha egli il latte?
He has the milk and the coffee.	Egli ha il latte ed il caffè.
He has not the pepper.	Egli non ha il pepe.
Have you the salt?	Avete voi il sale?
No, sir, I have not the salt.	No, Signore, io non ho il sale.
Have you not the knife?	Non avete voi il coltello?
Yes, sir, I have the knife.	Sì, Signore, io ho il coltello.

EXERCISE I.

Have you the bread? I have the bread. Have you not the butter? No, sir; I have not the butter. Has he the cheese? He has not the cheese. Have you not the water? Yes, sir; we have the water. Have they not the wine? No, sir; they have not the wine. Hast thou not the tea? I have not the tea. Have you the coffee? No, sir; I have not the coffee; they have the coffee. Have they the sugar? They have not the sugar. Have you not the milk? I have not the milk. Has he the pepper? He has the pepper and the salt. Has he not the vinegar? No, he has not the vinegar; we have the vinegar. Have I the spoon? No, sir; you have not the spoon. Have you not the knife? Yes, sir; we have the knife and the fork. Have they the water or the wine? They have the water and the wine.

LESSON III.

FORMATION OF THE PLURAL.

PLURAL OF NOUNS.

18. MASCULINE NOUNS form their plural by changing the final vowel of the singular into i ; as,

Papa	Pope.	Papi	Popes.
Vino	Wine.	Vini	Wines.
Sale	Salt.	Sali	Salts.

19. Feminine nouns ending in a form their plural by changing the a into e ; as,

Donna	Woman.	Donne	Women.
Penna	Pen.	Penne	Pens.

20. Feminine nouns ending in o and e form their plural by changing these vowels into i ; as,

Mano	Hand.	Mani	Hands.
Madre	Mother.	Madri	Mothers.

21. Monosyllabic nouns, and nouns ending in i, ie, or with an accented vowel, are invariable. Their plural is determined by the article ; as,

Il re	The king.	I re	The kings.
Il barbagianni . .	The owl.	I barbagianni .	The owls.
La specie	The kind.	Le specie . . .	The kinds.
La virtù	The virtue.	Le virtù . . .	The virtues.
La città	The city.	Le città . . .	The cities.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Bird	Uccello.	Ink	Inchiostro.
Book	Libro.	Inkstand	Calamaio
Boot	Stivale.	Man	Uomo.
Cat	Gatto.	Neither	Non, nè.*
Dictionary	Dizionario.	Nor	Nè.
Log	Cane.	Umbrella	Ombrello.
English	Inglese.	Paper	Carta.
French	Francese.	Pen	Penna.
Grammar	Grammatica.	Shoe	Scarpa.
Hat	Cappello.	Slipper	Pianella.

* Non before the verb, nè after it.

EXAMPLES.

Have you the knives?	Avete voi i coltelli?
I have neither the knives nor the forks.	Io non ho nè i coltelli nè le forchette.
Has the Englishman the penknife and the pens?	Ha l'Inglese il temperino e le penne?
He has the penknife, but he has not the pens.	Egli ha il temperino, ma egli non ha le penne.
Have you the glass?	Avete voi il bicchiere?
No, sir ; I have not the glass.	No, signore; Io non ho il bicchiere.
I have the boot.	Io ho lo stivale.

EXERCISE II.

Have you the books? I have not the books. Have you the pens? I have the pens. Has he not the paper? He has the paper and the ink. Have you not the knives? We have the knives, but we have not the forks. Have they not the tables? They have neither the chairs nor the tables. Have I the looking-glass? You have the looking-glass. Hast thou the hats? I have not the hats. Have I not the oil? Yes, sir ; you have the oil. Has the Frenchman the paper or the ink? He has neither the paper nor the ink, but he has the knives and the forks. Has he the glass? He has neither the glass nor the water. Have you the coats? No, sir ; we have not the coats. Have you the umbrellas? Yes, sir ; we have the umbrellas. Have the English the boots and slippers? They have the boots and the shoes, but they have not the slippers.

LESSON IV.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

27. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS are preceded by the definite article, and agree in gender and number, not with the possessor, as in English, but with the object possessed:

Il suo libro {
His book.
Her book.

La sua penna {
His pen.
Her pen.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

MASCULINE.			FEMININE.
	Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
My	Il mio	I miei.	La mia	Le mie.
Thy	Il tuo	I tuoi.	La tua	Le tue.
His, her . .	Il suo	I suoi.	La sua	Le sue.
Our	Il nostro	I nostri.	La nostra	Le nostre.
Your	Il vostro	I vostri.	La vostra	Le vostre.
Their	Il loro	I loro.	La loro	Le loro.

28. Possessive pronouns take no article (loro excepted) when immediately followed by a noun in the singular expressing rank or kindred.

Your son

His brother

Your lordship

Their brother

Vostro figlio.

Suo fratello.

Sua signoria.

Il loro fratello.

N. B. — The article must be used if the pronoun follows the noun ; if the noun is used in the plural, or in a diminutive form ; if preceded by the words Signore, Signora, Signorina, or by any adjective ; as,

My brothers

Your brothers

My little brother

My brother

I miei fratelli.

I vostri fratelli.

Il mio fratellino.

Il fratello mio.

VOCABULARY.

American	Americano.	Mother	Madre.
Brother	Fratello.	Moon	Luna.
Daughter	Figlia.	Nation	Nazione.
Enemy	Nemico.	Pencil	Lapis, matita
Father	Padre.	Picture	Quadro.
Friend	Amico.	Rich	Ricco.
Glove	Guanto.	Remorse	Rimorso.
Horse	Cavallo.	Sister	Sorella.
Italian	Italiano.	Son	Figlio.
Life	Vita.	Work	Lavoro, opera

EXAMPLES.

Has my sister her book?	Ha mia sorella il suo libro?
My sister has her book and her pen.	Mia sorella ha il suo libro, e la sua penna.
Have your friends my dog?	Hanno i vostri amici il mio cane?
No, sir; they have not your dog, but they have your flowers.	No, signore; essi non hanno il vostro cane, ma essi hanno i vostri fiori.
Has my brother their birds?	Ha mio fratello i loro uccelli.
He has your cat, but he has not their birds.	Egli ha il vostro gatto, ma egli non ha i loro uccelli.

EXERCISE III.

Have you my pen? No, sir; I have not your pen. Have you not my book? I have neither your books nor your pens. Have I not your pencil? No, sir; my sister has my pencil. Has my friend your penknife? He has not your penknife. Have they not his handkerchief? They have not his handkerchief. Have your brothers my flowers? No, sir; they have not your flowers. Has your sister my gloves? Yes, sir; she has your gloves and your pencil. Has he my paper? He has not your paper. Have they your chair? They have not your chair. Has your mother my birds? Yes, miss; she has your birds. Has my sister your picture? No, sir; she has not your picture. Has he not my hat? Yes, sir; he has your hat and your gloves. Have your friends my horse? No, sir; they have not your horse, but they have your dog. Has my mother your pencil? Yes, sir; she has my pencil, your dictionary, and their grammar.

LESSON V.

ARTICLES AFFIXED TO PREPOSITIONS.

29. THE Articles are affixed to certain prepositions, with the change, omission, or addition of some letters.

30. The prepositions most commonly joined to the articles are, di, of; a, to; da, from; per, for; con, with; in, in; su, on, upon.

		Singular.			Plural.
		MASCULINE.		FEMININE.	MASCULINE.		FEMININE
Of the		del	dello	della	dei	degli	delle
	not	di il	di lo	di la	di i	di gli	di le
To } At }	the	al	allo	alla	ai	agli	alle
	not	a il	a lo	a la	a i	a gli	a le
From the		dal	dallo	dalla	dai	dagli	dalle
	not	da il	da lo	da la	da i	da gli	da le
For the		pel	pello	pella	pei	pegli	pelle
	not	per il	per lo	per la	per i	per gli	per le
With the		col	collo	colla	coi	cogli	colle
	not	con il	con lo	con la	con i	con gli	con le
In the		nel	nello	nella	nei	negli	nelle
	not	in il	in lo	in la	in i	in gli	in le
On the		sul	sullo	sulla	sui	sugli	sulle
	not	su il	su lo	su la	su i	su gli	su le

N. B. — The above prepositions may be separated from the article, except con il, con i. — When the article is separated from per, lo and gli must be used, and never il or i.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS WITH NOUNS.

My, our Of my, of our To my, to our From my, from our	}	book.	{ Il mio, il nostro Del mio, del nostro Al mio, al nostro Dal mio, dal nostro	}	libro.
My, our Of my, of our To my, to our From my, from our	}	books.	{ I miei, i nostri Dei miei, dei nostri Ai miei, ai vostri Dai miei, dai nostri	}	libri
My, our Of my, of our To thy, to our From his, from their	}	pen.	{ La mia, la nostra Della mia, della nostra Alla tua, alla nostra Dalla sua, dalla loro	}	penna.
My, our Of my, of our To thy, to your From his, from their	}	pens.	{ Le mie, le nostre Delle mie, delle nostre Alle tue, alle vostre Dalle sue, dalle loro	}	penne.

31. The name of the thing possessed, followed by the preposition di, always precedes the name of the possessor ; as,

John's book, Il libro di Giovanni.

AUXILIARY VERB ESSERE, TO BE.

PRESENT.

Io sono I am.		Noi siamo We are.
Tu sei Thou art.		Voi siete You are.
Egli è He is.		Eglino sono . . . They are.

N. B. — The pupil is required to be thoroughly acquainted with the entire conjugation of this verb. (See page 197.)

VOCABULARY.

Bed	Letto.	Room	Stanza
Dish	Piatto.	Rose	Rosa.
Earth	Terra.	Salad	Insalata.
Handkerchief . . .	Fazzoletto.	Scourge	Flagello.
Humanity	Umanità.	Store	Bottega.
Husbandman . . .	Agricoltore.	Sun	Sole.
Key	Chiave.	True	Vero.
Meat	Carne.	Tyrant	Tiranno
Napkin	Salvietta.	Uncle	Zio.
Pianoforte	Pianoforte.	Useful	Utile.

EXAMPLES.

Is the key on the table?	E la chiave sulla tavola?
The meat is in the room.	La carne è nella stanza.
My friend has my brother's piano-forte.	Il mio amico ha il pianoforte di mio fratello.
Is the paper in the book?	E la carta nel libro.
Yes, sir; the paper is in the book.	Sì, signore; la carta è nel libro

EXERCISE IV.

Has my brother your friend's book? He has neither your friend's book nor your sister's paper. Have I your keys? No, sir; you have not my keys, but you have my father's penknife. Have they not my daughter's handkerchiefs? No, sir; they have not your daughter's handkerchiefs. Has my sister your napkin? Your sister has not my napkin. Are the books on the table? The books are on the table in your room. Your enemy has my brother's knife. Have they my key? No, sir; they have not your key, but they have your friend's key. Is my brother in your room? No, sir: your brother is in my brother's room. Have you the salad? I have neither the salad nor the vinegar. Has your daughter my gloves? My daughter has your gloves and your handkerchief. Have you the water or the wine? I have the water and the wine. Has my brother the bread? My brother has neither the meat nor the bread. The paper is in my brother's book, and the book is in my sister's room on the table. Have you not their pictures? Yes, sir; I have their pictures and your pencil.

LESSON VI.

ADJECTIVES.

32. ADJECTIVES in Italian are variable, and agree with their nouns in gender and number.

QUALIFYING ADJECTIVES.

33. Adjectives ending in o are masculine ; as,

Uomo virtuoso ed onesto. Man virtuous and honest.

34. Adjectives ending in a are feminine ; as,

Donna bella e sincera. Woman beautiful and sincere.

35. Adjectives ending in e are of either gender ; as,

Uomo gentile ed affabile . . . Man gentle and affable.

Donna gentile ed affabile . . . Woman gentle and affable.

36. Adjectives ending in o become feminine by changing the o into a ; as,

Uomo virtuoso, povero. Donna virtuosa, povera.

PLURAL OF ADJECTIVES.

37. Adjectives ending in o change this vowel into i ; as, Uomini virtuosi, poveri.

38. Adjectives ending in a change this vowel into e ; as, Donne virtuose, povere.

39. Adjectives ending in e change it into i ; as,

Uomo or donna cortese. Uomini or donne cortesi.

40. Adjectives ending in ca and ga have che and ghe in the plural ; thus, lunga, ricca, make lunghe, ricche.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Beautiful	Bello.	Much, very	Molto.
Black	Nero.	Need	Bisogno.
Coach	Carrozza.	Nun	Monaca.
Courteous, kind, . .	Cortese.	Red	Rosso.
Dress	Veste.	Roman	Romano.
Fragrant	Odoroso.	Sleeve	Manica.
Garden	Giardino.	Sweet	Dolce.
Good	Buono.	Virtue	Virtù.
Great, large	Grande.	White	Bianco.
Green	Verde.	Yellow	Giallo.

EXAMPLES.

I have your good father's big book.	Io ho il gran libro del vostro buon padre.
My brother has the white hat.	Mio fratello ha il cappello bianco.
My friend has my sister's beautiful horse.	Il mio amico ha il bel cavallo di mia sorella.
Have you the English dictionary?	Avete voi il dizionario Inglese?
They have my sister's dress.	Essi hanno la veste di mia sorella.

EXERCISE V.

Have you your good father's black coat? I have not his black coat. Are your sisters in my brother's coach? They have my father's beautiful horses, and they have no need of your brother's coach. You are very kind, sir. Is your dictionary very large? No, sir; my French and English dictionary is not very large, but my friend's dictionary is very large. Is your sister's dress green or white? My sister's dress is not green. Have you the white gloves with you? No, sir; my white gloves are on the bed in my brother's room. Have they not my red slippers? Yes, sir; they have your red slippers and your yellow shoes. Is my friend's red wine on the table? No, sir; your friend's wine is not sweet, and we have no need of his wine; we shall have my good friend's white wine. My mother's yellow roses are not fragrant. Are the roses of your garden white or red? The roses in my garden are red; but they are not fragrant. Has not my friend your sister's beautiful picture? My sister's picture is not very beautiful.

LESSON VII.

VERBS.

48. ITALIAN VERBS are divided into three classes or conjugations, which are known by the termination of the infinitive.

49. Infinitives end in are, ere, ire.

N. B.—A few infinitives which do not end in either of these terminations are contractions ; as,

Porre, from ponere, to put ; condurre, from conducere, to conduct.

50. Infinitives in are belong to the first conjugation ; as, amare, to love ; cantare, to sing.

51. Infinitives in ere belong to the second conjugation ; as, perdere, to lose ; ardere, to burn.

52. Infinitives in ire belong to the third conjugation ; as, partire, to depart ; sentire, to hear.

53. Regular verbs are conjugated by changing the terminations are, ere, ire, of the infinitive, into the various terminations assigned to each person of all the tenses of each conjugation.

INFLECTION OF A REGULAR VERB OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION.

AMARE, TO LOVE.

PRESENT.

Io amo I love.	Noi amiamo . . We love.
Tu ami Thou lovest.	Voi amate . . . Ye love.
Egli ama He loves.	Essi amano . . They love.

See page 199.

54. The verbs of this conjugation are regular, except the four following and their compounds: andare, to go; dare, to give; fare, to do; stare, to stay.

55. Verbs ending in care, gare, take an h after the c and g, whenever these consonants are followed by i and e, in order to preserve the hard sound of these letters; thus,

Mancare, } make { manchi, mancherò, } and not { manci, mancerò.
Pregare, } { preghi, pregherò, } { pregi, pregerò.

56. Verbs ending in ciare, giare, suppress the i of the root before e and i; thus,

Baciare, } make { baci, bacerò, } and not { bacii, bacierò.
Mangiare, } { mangi, mangerò, } { mangii, mangierò.

57. Verbs ending in gliare, chiare, and ghiare, drop the i only before another i; thus,

Vegliare, } make { vegli, veglierò, } and not { veglii, veglierò.
Picchiare, } { picchi, picchierò, } { picchii, piccherò.
Ragghiare, } { ragghi, ragghierò, } { ragghii, raggherò.

58. The past participle joined to the verb avere does not change its termination to agree with the subject, but joined to the verb essere it always agrees with the subject.

Mia sorella ha avuto My sister has had.

Mia sorella è stata My sister has been.

59. There is in Italian but one present tense which expresses both a present action and the habit of repeating the same action; as,

I am writing, or I write, is expressed by Io scrivo.

VOCABULARY.

To call	Chiamare.	That	Che.
Language	Lingua.	To-morrow	Domani.
Harmonious	Armonioso.	To think	Pensare.
Haughty	Altiero.	Truth	Verità.
Proud	Orgoglioso.	Undoubtedly	Indubitatamente.
Reserved	Riservato.	Voice	Voce.
To sing	Cantare.	When	Quando.
Small	Piccolo.	Where	Dove.
To speak	Parlare.	Well	Bene.
To study	Studiare.	Why? because	Perchè? perchè.

EXAMPLES.

Is my sister's voice very harmonious?	E la voce di mia sorella molto armoniosa?
Where shall you sing to-morrow?	Dove canterete domani?
Do you study the French or the English language?	Studiate la lingua Francese o la lingua Inglese?
Why do you not speak French?	Perchè non parlate Francese?
Because I have not studied much.	Perchè non ho studiato molto.

EXERCISE VI.

Why is your sister so proud? Because she sings very well. When will she sing? To-morrow. Where? At my father's house, undoubtedly. Why? Do you sing? Yes, I sing, and my voice is good; but I am not proud. Do you call my sister proud because she is reserved? No, I do not call your sister proud because she is reserved, but because she thinks that her voice is rich and harmonious; and the truth is that her voice is not very harmonious. Have you studied the French language? Not much. Do you speak Italian? No, sir. Is not your room very small? My room is not very small. Do you study the English language? Yes, sir; I study the English and French languages. Is my father in the garden? He is in the garden with my sister. My friend's little bird sings very well. Where are my gloves? Your gloves are in my brother's room on his table. Is your brother in his room? No, sir; he is not in his room, and I have not the key. When will he be at my friend's house? He will be at your friend's house to-morrow.

LESSON VIII

DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVES.

60. DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVES point definitely to one object, or to several of the same kind.

Questo,	this.	Ciò,	this or that thing.
Cotesto,	} that.	Stesso,	} same.
Quello,		Medesimo,

61. Questo determines an object near to or named by the person speaking or writing.

62. Cotesto, an object near to the person spoken to.

63. Quello, an object distant both from the person speaking and the person spoken to.

OBSERVATION. — Quello is used only with nouns commencing with z or impure s, or when it is at the end of the sentence. Before any other consonant it makes quel, and before a vowel quell'.

Quello specchio		That looking-glass.
Questo libro o quello		This book or that one.
Quell' amico		That friend.
Quel libro		That book.

N. B. — Questo and quello are often used as relative pronouns in the sense of the latter and the former. In this case, questo invariably points to the last-mentioned object ; as, Voi avete il coltello, ed il temperino ; questo è buono, quello è cattivo. Here questo has reference to temperino, and not to coltello.

64. Ciò (invariable) is used instead of questa, quella, or cotesta cosa, this or that thing, or what ; in which case it is always followed by che ; thus,

Ciò che io scrivo, what I write, means questa cosa che io scrivo.
Ciò che tu scrivi, what thou writest, means cotesta cosa che tu scrivi.
Ciò che egli scrive, what he writes, means quella cosa che egli scrive.

VOCABULARY.

Academy	Accademia.	Industrious	Industrioso.
Avaricious	Avaro.	Falsehood	Menzogna.
Carpet	Tappeto.	Large . . .	Largo.
Close, narrow	Stretto.	Lesson . . .	Lezione.
Coward	Codardo.	Morning . . .	Mattina, mattino.
Day	Giorno.	Never . . .	Non ; mai.*
Difficult	Difficile.	Song . . .	Canzone.
To find	Trovare.	Time . . .	Tempo.
Happy	Felice.	To-day . . .	Oggi.
How	Come.	Whimsical	Capriccioso, bisbetico

* Non before the verb, and mai after it.

EXAMPLES.

Is this your grammar?	E questa la vostra grammatica?
Have you studied the lesson?	Avete voi studiato la lezione?
Shall you sing this song?	Canterete voi questa canzone?
Is that pencil your brother's?	E quel lapis di vostro fratello?
I have this book, not that.	Io ho questo libro, non quello.

EXERCISE VII.

Is this my brother's dictionary? Your brother does not study Italian. This is not his book. This is my Italian dictionary. Is that man your good father's friend? My father has never spoken to that man, and he has never been his friend. Do you find your French song difficult? Yes, sir; I find the French language very difficult. When will you sing the Italian song? To-morrow. I am poor, but you are avaricious and whimsical. Is your carpet narrow or wide? My carpet is neither narrow nor wide, because I have no carpet. Have you studied your lesson? I have not studied my lesson, because I have had no time. Shall you sing with my sister to-day? Not to-day. Why not? Because I never sing when she sings. When shall I speak to your father? To-morrow. Where shall I find my hat? You will find your hat and your black gloves in my father's room, on the little table. I have no need of my black gloves. Is this your father's piano? Yes, sir; this piano is my father's. How does your friend speak the French language? He does not speak the French language very well. Shall you sing this or that song? I shall sing this song, not that.

LESSON IX.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

65. PERSONAL PRONOUNS are words used instead of nouns, and serve to designate an object as belonging to the first, second, or third person. They are,

Io	tu	egli	ella	noi	voi	eglino	elleno	esso .
I	thou	he	she	we	you	they, m.	they, f.	he or it which make, in the objective case,

Me	te	lui	lei	noi	voi	loro	esso
me	thee	him	her	us	you	them	him or it.

66. Personal pronouns have the objective form in the relations of possession (genitive), attribution (dative), and derivation (ablative).

I,	Io.	He,	Egli.	She,	Ella.
Of me,	Di me.	Of him,	Di lui.	Of herself,	Di se.
To me,	A me.	To him,	A lui.	To herself,	A se.
From me,	Da me.	From him,	Da lui.	From herself,	Da se.

67. To give force to the expression, personal pronouns are often followed by the demonstrative adjectives stesso and medesimo.

Io stesso parlai a vostro padre . . . I myself spoke to your father.
Essa medesima mandò il libro . . . She herself sent the book.

N. B. — No pronoun is prefixed to the word self, as in English.

Io stesso, I self, and not Io mestesso.

68. Se is used only for the third person, and has reference to the subject.

Egli parla di se		He speaks of himself.
Ella non ama che se		She loves but herself.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Acute	Acuto.	Last night	Ieri sera.
To assure	Assicurare	To look	Guardare.
Blow	Colpo.	Mother-in-law . . .	Suocera.
To burn	Bruciare.	Nose	Naso.
Cloth	Panno.	Prudent	Prudente.
To cost	Costare.	Shrewd	Accorto.
Daughter-in-law . .	Nuora.	Silk	Seta.
Father-in-law . . .	Suocero.	Son-in-law	Genero.
How much	Quanto	Whiteness	Bianchezza
Large	Largo	Word	Parola.

EXAMPLES.

I have not sung the Italian song, because it is too long.	Io non ho cantato la canzone Ita- liana, perchè è molto lunga.
Your book is good for nothing.	Il vostro libro non è buono a nulla.
I have spoken to my brother, not to your friend.	Io ho parlato a mio fratello, non al vostro amico.

EXERCISE VIII.

When shall you study your lesson? I shall study my lesson when your sister sings her song. Will she sing the same song? Yes, she will sing the same song with me. Why do you not sing the Italian song? Because it is difficult, and my voice is not very harmonious. Will your voice be harmonious when you sing with her? Undoubtedly. Do you speak to my father? I speak to you, not to him. How much does this cloth cost? Not much. Where is your father-in-law? He is in my brother's garden with my good mother-in-law and his friend. Am I not very shrewd? Why do you think so? Because I am prudent. I have burnt their books because they were good for nothing. Is it possible? Yes, it is possible. Who is with your mother? Her son-in-law is with her. Is that man with the big nose your mother's son-in-law? It is he. Where is my brother? He is in my friend's room. Where is your friend's book? It is in my father's room. Is your father in the room? No, sir; my father is not in the room; he is in my brother's garden with your good sister's friend. My sisters have been with your friends, and I have been in my room with my mother. Has your mother been with you? She has been, and is always, with me.

LESSON X.

INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

74. THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE is uno for the masculine, and una for the feminine ; as,

Uno specchio, a looking-glass. Una donna, a woman.

75. Uno drops the o when followed by a consonant other than s impure or z, or by a vowel ; as,

Un uomo, a man. Un libro, a book.

76. The indefinite article must be repeated with every noun ; as,

Un uomo, una donna, ed un ragazzo. A man, woman, and boy.

77. The indefinite article is omitted :

1. Before the adjectives alcuni, pochi, a few ; molti, a great many ; as,

Io ho { pochi libri.	I have { a few books.
{ molti libri.	{ a great many books.

2. Before a noun in the predicate after a verb passive or neuter, and before a noun placed in apposition with a noun or pronoun, unless it be connected with some qualifying word or phrase ; as,

Mio fratello è mercante My brother is a merchant.

Egli è Francese He is a Frenchman.

Mio fratello è un ricco mercante My brother is a rich merchant.

3. After the adjective, qualifying a noun, which follows the words così, so or as ; troppo, too ; as,

Così grand' uomo So great a man.

Troppo pericolosa specolazione . Too dangerous a speculation.

4. After che, or any other word expressing admiration or surprise ; as,

Che bel cavallo ! What a beautiful horse !

Qual matto ! What a fool !

78. The indefinite article precedes the word tale, such ; as,

Un tal matto Such a fool.

Un tal cavallo Such a horse.

79. The definite article is used instead of the English indefinite article before nouns of measure and weight :

Due dollari la libbra Two dollars a pound.

Tre scellini la bottiglia . . . Three shillings a bottle.

80. Uno is often used without a noun, and is sometimes suppressed.

Egli è uno che calunnia tutti He is a man who slanders every indistintamente. body indiscriminately.

Egli è uomo di cattiva fama. He is a man of bad reputation.

PARTITIVE ARTICLE.

81. The partitive article is expressed in Italian by the preposition di and the definite article :

Io ho del pane, dell' inchiostro, dello I have bread, ink, sugar, paper, zucchero, della carta, dei libri. and books.

82. The partitive article is omitted in a negative sentence, or when we wish to make prominent the object and not its quantity :

Avete del pane ? Have you any bread ?

Io non ho pane I have no bread.

Io ho vino ed acqua I have wine and water.

VOCABULARY.

To ask	Domandare.	Long	Lungo.
Beneficent	Beneficente.	Modesty	Modestia.
Bitter	Amaro.	Mouth	Bocca.
To commence	Cominciare.	Night	Notte.
Conduct	Condotta.	Odd mistake	Sproposito.
To confess	Confessare.	On the contrary	Al contrario.
Gentle	Gentile.	To praise	Lodare.
Hammer	Martello.	Short	Corto.
To hope	Sperare.	Subject	Suddito.
Indispensable	Indispensabile.	Then	Allora, dunque.

EXAMPLES.

Have you any friends?	Avete voi degli amici?
I have no friends.	Io non ho amici.
Is she not a very beautiful woman?	Non è ella una donna molto bella.
When did you speak to my sister?	Quando parlaste a mia sorella?

EXERCISE IX.

Is not this a beautiful book? Why do you call this a beautiful book? Because it is a very easy book. On the contrary, this book is not very easy. What a beautiful picture! Has your friend any good books? Yes, sir; he has a few good books. How many? Not a great many. Have your brothers any birds? My brothers have some very beautiful birds, but they do not sing. When will you begin your French lesson? To-morrow. Shall you begin your lesson with my sister? Your sister has studied the French language with my friend. With your friend! where is he? Is he not a good man? I ask where he is. He is in my brother's room. Do they study their English lesson? They do not study their English lesson; they sing an Italian song. Have you any good pens? I have a great many pens, but they are not very good. Where shall I study my lesson? In your room. It is not very easy (di) to study my lesson in my room. Why? Because my brother, his friend, and his friend's ugly sister, are studying their French lesson in my room. Why do you call your friend's sister ugly? Because she has a very short nose, and a very big mouth. Is she rich? Yes, she is very rich. Then she is not ugly; on the contrary, she is beautiful. What an odd mistake!

LESSON XI

FORMATION OF THE PLURAL, continued.

83. NOUNS ending in ca and ga require an h in the plural to preserve the hard sound of the singular; as,

Duca, monarca, piaga, make duchi, monarchi, piaghe.

84. Nouns ending in cia and gia change ia into e, if this termination is a diphthong; as,

Bilancia, spiaggia, make bilance, spiagge.

N. B. — Camicia, shirt, makes camicie in the plural, to distinguish it from the singular, càmice, a priest's vestment.

85. If the termination of the cia and gia is not a diphthong, the general rule is applied; as,

Regia, bugia, make regie, bugie.

86. Some nouns are used only in the singular; as,

Schiatta, race; genie, descendants; progenie, progeny;

Mane, morning; prole, offspring; stirpe, stock; cento, hundred.

Others are used only in the plural; as,

Esequie, funeral obsequies; nozze, marriage; vanni, wings.

Sponsali, nuptial rites; forbici, scissors; pantaloni, pantaloons.

87. Proper names of persons are, by antonomasia, used only in the plural; as,

Gli Alessandri; gli Annibali.

88. Names of metals in the plural express objects made of the same metals; as,

Il ferro, iron; I ferri, iron tools.

89. Names of virtues in the plural express the practice of them ; as,

L' elemosina, the virtue of almsgiving.

Le elemosine, practical almsgiving.

90. To proper names another name or a quality is added when they might be confounded with others of the same family ; as,

Errico primogenito. Errico cadetto.

Pietro padre. Pietro figlio.

91. Proper names of distinguished families are often used in the plural ; as,

I Medici.

I Lentuli.

I Fabbii.

I Pisoni.

MONTHS.

Gennajo . . . January.	Luglio . . . July.
Febbrajo . . . February.	Agosto . . . August.
Marzo . . . March.	Settembre . . . September.
Aprile . . . April.	Ottobre . . . October.
Maggio . . . May.	Novembre . . . November.
Giugno . . . June.	Dicembre . . . December.

DAYS.

Lunedì . . . Monday.	Giovedì . . . Thursday.
Martedì . . . Tuesday.	Venerdì . . . Friday.
Mercoledì . . . Wednesday.	Sabato . . . Saturday.
Domenica . . . Sunday.

SEASONS.

Primavera . . . Spring.	Autunno . . . Autumn.
Està . . . Summer.	Inverno . . . Winter.

VOCABULARY.

Bean	Fava.	Lentil	Lente.
Button	Bottone.	Name	Nome.
Companion	Compagno.	Nature	Natura.
Convent	Convento.	Origin	Origine.
Courage	Coraggio.	Pea	Pisella.
Egyptian	Egiziano.	Project	Progetto.
Family	Famiglia.	Slave	Schiavo.
Fruit	Frutto.	Success	Successo.
History	Istoria.	Tree	Albero.
Illustrious	Illustre.	Vegetable	Legume.

EXAMPLES.

Have you brought my shirts?	Avete voi portato le mie camicie?
Have you my scissors?	Avete voi le mie forbici?
I have neither scissors nor knives.	Io non ho nè forbici, nè coltelli.
Have you the name of this vegetable?	Avete voi il nome di questo legume?
Have you any lentils?	Avete delle lenti?

EXERCISE X.

Where is your brother? My brother is with my sister. Are not your sisters in the convent? No, they are not in the convent; they are not nuns. Where are your tools? In my brother's room, on the chair. The Roman soldiers were husbandmen; the fruits and vegetables which they had in their gardens are the origin of the names of some illustrious families: the Lentuli, from lentils; the Fabbii, from beans; and the Pisons, from peas. The wives are the companions, and not the slaves, of their husbands. The stars and the oxen were among the gods of the Egyptians. The sleeves of my coat are very short. Have you the scissors? I have the buttons of my pantaloons. Where are your daughters? They are in their rooms. Are your brothers in their stores? Yes, sir; they are in their stores. Have they many books? No, sir; they have not many books, but they have a great many pictures. Have they a great many beautiful pictures? They have many pictures, but they are not very fine. Where are your shirts? They are in my sister's room. I have a great many trees in my garden. Have you many books in your room? I have a few books, but they are good.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Agreeable . . .	Aggradevole.	Morning . . .	Mattina.
Always . . .	Sempre.	Neighbor . . .	Prossimo.
Coming . . .	Venturo.	Other . . .	Altro.
Company . . .	Compagnia.	Pleasure . . .	Piacere.
Compliment . .	Complimento.	To present . . .	Presentare.
Custom . . .	Costume.	Probably . . .	Probabilmente.
Evening . . .	Sera.	Reward . . .	Ricompensa.
To fix . . .	Fissare.	Visit . . .	Visita.
To learn . . .	Imparare.	Week . . .	Settimana.
Memory . . .	Memoria.	Yesterday . . .	Ieri

EXAMPLES.

I hope to go with you.	Spero di andare con voi.
Have you any good books?	Avete voi dei buoni libri?
I have very good books.	Io ho dei libri molto buoni.
He has never had a great many friends.	Egli non ha mai avuto molti amici.

EXERCISE XI.

When shall I have the pleasure of your company? My company is not very agreeable; but I shall go to spend an evening with your brother-in-law next week, and then I hope to present my compliments to you and to your dear mother. Have you fixed the day? No, I have not fixed the day; but I hope to be with my friend to-morrow morning. He will probably go with me to visit a few friends, and I think that we shall be at your brother's house next Tuesday. Did your friends speak of me to-day? They spoke of you, but not much. Have your brothers commenced their French lesson? They commenced their French lesson yesterday, but they did not study much. Shall you go in my carriage? I shall go to my friend's garden. My father has not a very good horse. On the contrary, I think that your father has always had some very good horses. Have you any good books? Yes, sir; I have some very good books. Where are they? They are on the little table in my mother's room. Have you studied your lesson? I have studied my French lesson, but I have not sung my Italian song. Have you not a good memory? I have a good memory, but my voice is not very good. When shall you go to your father's? To-morrow.

LESSON XIII.

CONJUNCTIVE PRONOUNS.

95. WHEN the personal pronouns are governed by a verb, and employed in the dative and accusative, they take a new form. Instead of the dative and accusative,

A me	.	.	to me	.	.	mi	.	is used.
Me	.	.	me	.	.	mi	.	"
A noi	.	.	to us	.	.	ci or ne	.	"
Noi	.	.	us	.	.	ci or ne	.	"
A te	.	.	to thee	.	.	ti	.	.
Te	.	.	thee	.	.	ti	.	.
A voi	.	.	to you	.	.	vi	.	.
Voi	.	.	you	.	.	vi	.	"
A lui	.	.	to him	.	.	gli	.	.
Lui	.	.	him	.	.	lo or il	.	"
A lei	.	.	to her	.	.	le	.	.
Lei	.	.	her	.	.	la	.	"
A loro	.	.	to them	.	.	loro	.	"
Loro	.	.	them	.	.	li m., le f.	.	"
A se	.	.	to oneself	.	.	si	.	.
Se	.	.	oneself	.	.	si	.	"

96. These pronouns, thus used, are called conjunctive; as,

Io gli parlai.	I spoke to him.	Literally : I to him spoke.
Io l' amo.	I love her.	Literally : I her love.

97. Conjunctive pronouns follow or precede the verb.

They follow the verb, and, with the exception of loro, are united to it:

1. In the affirmative imperative, except the third person; as,

Scrivimi e spera Write to me, and hope.

Scriveteci e sperate Write to us, and hope.

2. In the gerund, affirmatively; as,

Scrivendogli, dirò la verità. Writing to him, I will tell the truth.

3. In the affirmative infinitive, which loses the final e; as,

Vederla, parlarle, e morire. To see her, to speak to her, and to die.

98. In all other tenses, and in the third person of the affirmative imperative, the conjunctive pronoun precedes; as,

Ci scriva se vuole. Let him write to us if he wishes.

N. B.—In the imperative, gerund, and infinitive, used negatively, the conjunctive pronoun is placed between the negation and the verb; as,

Non ci scriva e farà molto meglio. Not to us let him write, and he will do much better.

Non gli scrivendo lo farò disperare. Not to him in writing, him I will make despair.

Non le scrivere è crudeltà. Not to her to write is cruelty.

99. Conjunctive pronouns, gli excepted, double their first letter when affixed to a verb of one syllable, or to a verb ending with an accented vowel, in which case the accent is omitted; as,

Fammi questo favore, instead of fa mi.

Dirogli di venire, instead of dirò gli.

100. The pronoun it should be expressed by il, lo, l', when referring to a masculine noun; and by la, l', when referring to a feminine noun; as,

Lo farò con piacere. I will do it with pleasure.

101. The pronoun them is expressed by li (sometimes by gli), m., and le, f.; as,

Io li avrò domani. I shall have them to-morrow.

VOCABULARY.

To abuse	Abusare.	New	Nuovo.
To bring, carry . . .	Portare.	Old	Vecchio.
To buy	Comprare.	Opinion	Opinione.
Color	Colore.	Poverty	Povertà.
Dress-maker . . .	Sarta.	Prosperity	Prosperità.
To forget	Dimenticare.	Ready	Pronto.
Gold	Oro.	Reason	Ragione.
To leave	Lasciare.	Ruin	Rovina.
Misfortune	Disgrazia.	Shoemaker	Calzolaio.
Necessity	Necessità.	Tailor	Sarto

EXAMPLES.

Are you going to the tailor's?	Andate dal sarto?
No, I am going to my store.	No, io vado alla mia bottega.
Your dress has a good color.	La vostra veste ha un buon colore .
Good books or not.	Buoni libri, o no.

EXERCISE XII.

Has the shoemaker brought my boots? No, sir; I went to his store yesterday, and they were not ready. When will he bring them? He will bring them to-morrow. Why does he not bring them to-day? Because they will not be ready to-day. Give me my gloves. Where are they? I left them in your brother's room. Shall you not speak to my father? I shall speak to him, undoubtedly. Shall you not speak to his sister? No, sir; I shall not speak to her. Why not? I shall not speak to her to-day because she did not speak to me yesterday. This is not a good reason. Good reason or not, I shall not speak to her to-day. I will buy this beautiful horse for my sister. Why do you not buy it for yourself? Because I have no need of a small horse. The dress-maker brought me a white dress; it is too large for me, and I shall give it to my mother. Give him that inkstand, and I will give you this penknife. Have you studied your lesson? Yes, sir; my lesson was not very difficult to-day. When your lesson is not very difficult, it is very easy to study it. Bring me my old black coat. Shall you give it to your friend? No, I shall not give it to my friend to-day, because the tailor has not brought my new coat. Will he bring it to-morrow? To-morrow is Sunday. Is it not Friday to-day? No, sir.

LESSON XIV.

IRREGULAR VERBS, FIRST CONJUGATION

FARE, TO MAKE.

STARE, TO STAY.

PRESENT.

Fo or faccio . . . I make.	Sto I stay.
Fai Thou makest.	Stai Thou stayest
Fa He makes.	Sta He stays.
Facciamo We make.	Stiamo We stay.
Fate You make.	State You stay.
Fanno They make.	Stanno They stay.

(See page 201.)

N. B. — The verb fare is derived from the Latin facere, and should properly belong to the irregular verbs of the second conjugation.

102. The verb fare is idiomatically employed in expressions denoting the state of the weather ; as,

Che tempo fa oggi? How is the weather to-day?

N. B. — The verb fare, thus employed, must precede the noun, except in an interrogative sentence.

Fa bel tempo oggi. It is fine weather to-day.
Not Il tempo fa bello oggi.

103. The verb stare is idiomatically used in expressions concerning one's health ; as,

Come state, signora? How do you do, madam?

104. The following nouns require the verb to have, and not to be, as in English :

Fame Hunger.	Torto Wrong.
Sete Thirst.	Paura Fear.
Rag'ione Right.	Vergogna . . . Shame.

I am hungry, is expressed by Io ho fame, I have hunger.

VOCABULARY.

To accompany	Accompagnare.	Money	Denaro.
Civility	Civiltà.	To pass, spend	Passare.
Cold	Freddo.	Past	Passato.
Dear	Caro.	To reproach	Rimproverare
To deserve	Meritare.	To separate	Separare.
To embrace	Abbracciare.	Soon	Presto.
Fear	Timore.	To sparkle	Scintillare.
House	Casa.	To thank	Ringraziare.
Ingratitude	Ingratitudine.	Temperance	Temperanza.
King	Re.	Warm	Caldo.

EXAMPLES.

Are you thirsty or hungry?	A avete fame o sete?
I am neither thirsty nor hungry.	Non ho nè fame nè sete.
How are your brothers?	Come stanno i vostri fratelli?

EXERCISE XIII.

Good-morning, sir ; how do you do ? I am very well, I thank you. How is your sister ? My sister is not very well. Where did you spend the day yesterday ? I was with my friend. Give me some water. Are you thirsty ? Yes, I am thirsty and hungry. Am I not right in reproaching him for his ingratitude ? What has he done ? He has not spoken to my mother. You are right ; he is proud, and he deserves it. How is the weather to-day ? It is very fine weather. Was it fine weather yesterday ? Yesterday the weather was very beautiful. Have you time to study your French lesson ? I have time, but I have no desire to study it. Has your brother a desire to buy my carriage ? He has a great desire to buy it, but he has no money. When will he have money ? He will probably have some money next month. Then I will give him my horse now, if he will give me the money next month. Is it cold to-day ? No, sir ; it is not very cold. Was it warm yesterday ? Yes, sir ; it was very warm yesterday. Are you afraid to go with me ? Where shall we go ? We will go to the shoemaker's. Has he not brought your boots ? He has brought neither the boots nor the shoes. Let us go, then ; I am not afraid to go with you ; I was only desirous to speak with your sister before going. She is not at home. When will she be at home ? She will be at home soon.

LESSON XV.

USE OF THE DEFINITE ARTICLE.

105. THE DEFINITE ARTICLE is used before nouns taken in the full extent of their signification. It is thus used before nouns designating, 1st, A class. 2d, A species of a class. 3d, An individual of a species.

1. Gli uomini sono mortali. Men are mortal. Here the word uomini is used to represent a class, in its whole extent ; i. e., all men.

N. B. — Instead of gli uomini, l'uomo can be used, because a singular noun may often be used as a representative of the whole class.

2. Gli uomini virtuosi sono felici. Virtuous men are happy.

Here uomini virtuosi represents a species, or a number of men who have the quality of virtuosi. We can also say, l'uomo virtuoso, because a singular noun may represent the whole species.

3. L'uomo di cui vi parlo. The man of whom I speak to you.

Here the noun uomo is taken individually, and the article serves to limit it to a single individual whom we wish to particularize.

OBSERVATION. — Whenever a noun is used in an indefinite manner, i. e., when we do not wish to consider it as a whole class, as a whole species, or as a particular individual, the article may be omitted. Thus, we may say, Amore, o odio ci guida or L'amore o l'odio ci guida. But, in the first case, amore and odio are used in a general or indefinite sense; while, in the second case, they are limited or determined by some circumstances which are understood, such as l'amore (che portiamo ai buoni), l'odio (che sentiamo pei cattivi).

Dante says : Risposemi : non uomo, uomo già fui. He replied to me : I am not a man, man once I was.

Here the poet wishes only to give the indefinite idea of which uomo is the sign. Uomo is here used somewhat like a qualifying adjective.

106. Abstract nouns, used alone, take the definite article ; as, la virtù, virtue. But, when two or more nouns are joined together, the article may be omitted ; as, virtù ed onore, virtue and honor.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Alps	Alpi.	Italy	Italia.
Bad	Cattivo.	Justice	Giustizia.
To corrupt	Corrompere.	Masterpiece	Capo lavoro.
Death	Morte.	Merit	Merito.
Discord	Discordia.	Mortal	Mortale.
Element	Elemento.	Paris	Parigi.
Europe	Europa.	To show	Mostrare.
France	Francia.	To wait for	Aspettare.
Health	Salute.	Wicked	Malvaggio.
Interest	Interesse.	Woman	Donna.
Invention	Invenzione.	To reveal	Rivelare.

EXAMPLES.

It is for our interest to preserve our health.	E pel nostro interesse il preservare la nostra salute.
That invention cost him much.	Quella invenzione gli costò molto

EXERCISE XIV.

Man is mortal. Man, thou art mortal. Tyrants are the scourge of humanity. Tyrants, you are the scourge of humanity. Death makes kings and subjects equal. Falsehood is odious in itself. Prosperity and success are not always the reward of an industrious man. Evil companions corrupt good manners. Bread and water are indispensable to man. Is not man the masterpiece of nature? Fear and selfishness make men wicked. True merit is always accompanied by civility and modesty. Black and white are not colors. History is the picture of times and men. Necessity is the mother of invention, and health is the daughter of exercise and temperance. Discord is the ruin of states. Justice embraces many virtues. Where is Madam, Mr. John? She is in her room. Has she given my book to your father? Yes, she gave the book to my father last night. The Alps separate Italy from France. My brother is in Italy, and my son will go to Paris next week. General Warren is a name dear to the Americans. Italy is the garden of Europe. How is your mother to-day? She is not very well. Is she in her room? No, she is in the garden. Have you many flowers in your garden? We have very few flowers in summertime, but in the spring we have a great many flowers and birds. Poverty and misfortune reveal true friends.

LESSON XVI.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

113. RELATIVE PRONOUNS are always expressed in Italian. They are Quale, che who, which, what.

Chi who.

114. Quale and che are used for persons and things.

115. Quale, plural quali, is always preceded by the definite article, which determines its gender; as,

Il libro, il quale The book which.

La donna, la quale The woman who.

I libri, i quali The books which.

Le donne, le quali The women who.

116. Che takes no article, and is invariable in the nominative; in the objective and after prepositions it is changed into cui; as,

L'uomo che persevera riesce . . . The man who perseveres succeeds.

La donna cui voi amate The woman whom you love.

L'uomo a cui scrivete The man to whom you write.

La donna di cui parlate . . . The woman of whom you speak.

117. Il che, or, more elegantly, locchè, has reference to the whole preceding sentence; as,

Mia madre è ammalata; locchè mi afflige.

My mother is sick; (a thing) which afflicts me.

118. Cui is often used without the preposition; and in the genitive it precedes the noun; as,

L'uomo, cui voi parlate The man to whom you speak

Una donna la cui bellezza è estrema . A woman of extreme beauty

OBSERVATION. — Instead of cui and quale, onde is often used in poetry ; as,

Quella virtude onde mi sento acceso.

That virtue by which I feel myself inflamed.

119. Chi is often used alone, referring to some noun understood ; as, he who, or the man who ; as,

Chi persevera riesce. He who perseveres succeeds.

120. Ne is also classed among the relative pronouns, and stands for some of it, or for

With, about, of, }
For, from, by, } him, her, it, them.

This pronoun must always be expressed in Italian, even in cases where it is understood in English ; as,

Ne parlai a mio fratello. I spoke to my brother about it.

Avete del denaro? Have you any money?

Ne ho I have (some of it).

Ne is always placed before the verb ; as,

Io ne ho. I have some of it.

121. In order to, in Italian, is expressed by per, which is never understood, as in English ; as,

Vado al mercato per comprare della carne.

I am going to market to buy some meat.

EXAMPLES.

Where are you going?

Dove andate?

I am going to buy some bread.

Vado a comprare del pane.

Has he any good books?

Ha egli dei buoni libri?

He has some good ones.

Egli ne ha dei buoni.

Whose books are these?

Di chi sono questi libri?

They are my brother's.

Sono di mio fratello.

The merchant has money.

Il mercante ha denaro

The painter is generous.

Il pittore è generoso.

How is the weather to-day?

Che tempo fa oggi?

We have bad weather to-day.

Abbiamo cattivo tempo oggi.

VOCABULARY.

To admire	Ammirare.	Merchant	Mercante.
Beauty	Bellezza.	Often	Spesso.
To change	Cambiare.	Painter	Pittore.
Evil	Male.	Perhaps	Forse.
Generous	Generoso.	Physician	Medico.
Hat	Cappello.	Poor	Povero.
Ignorant	Ignorante.	To pronounce	Pronunziare.
To languish	Languire.	Pronunciation	Pronunzia.
Learned	Dotto.	To send	Mandare.
To lend	Prestare.	Teacher	Maestro.
Market	Mercato.	Thought	Pensiero.

EXERCISE XV.

What do you think of my horse? I think that your horse is very good. Where are you going? I am going to market. What are you going to buy? I am going to buy some butter. Did you not buy your butter yesterday? The butter (which) I bought yesterday was not good, and I am going to market (in order) to change it. The painter has no time to commence my picture. Give him some money, and he will begin it soon. Then it is the money, and not the time, that he has not. Perhaps he has no time, but I am sure that he has no money. How does your brother pronounce the French language? He has not a very good pronunciation. Why not? Because it is very difficult to pronounce well without a French teacher. You are right. Have you any good books? I have some, but I have not a good French grammar. Why do you not buy one (of them)? Because I have no money. What did you do with the money (that) I lent you yesterday? I bought a black hat. Why did you not buy a grammar? Do not reproach me for my ignorance. Are you a merchant, sir? No, sir; I am a physician. How is the weather to-day? We have fine weather to-day, sir. Is it cold? No, sir. Is it warm? It is neither cold nor warm. Shall we go to my friend's garden? Yes; but I am hungry. Shall I give you some bread and butter? No, I thank you; I have some in my room. Then I shall give my bread to the man who is in the garden. Is he poor? He is not poor, but he is not proud. Is not his brother the man to whom I spoke yesterday in your father's garden? He has no brothers

LESSON XVII.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

122. THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS are used substantively for persons. They are,

Questi	This man.
Costei	This woman.
Costoro	These men or women.
Cotesti, quegli	That man.
Cotestei, colei	That woman.
Cotestoro, coloro	Those men or women.

Questi makes, in the objective, costui.

Cotesti makes, in the objective, cotestui.

Quegli makes, in the objective, colui.

The other pronouns are invariable.

Di, a, da,	{	Costui, cotestui, colui ; m., sing.
		Costei, cotestei, colei ; f., “
		Costoro, cotestoro, coloro ; plural.

123. Demonstrative pronouns in the genitive can elegantly precede the noun without the preposition.

Per la costui bontà	} Through his goodness.
Per la bontà di costui

124. Questi points to the person near to the speaker.

125. Cotesti points to the person near to the one spoken to.

126. Quegli points to a person equally distant from the speaker and the person spoken to.

INFLECTION OF A REGULAR VERB OF THE SECOND CONJUGATION.

CREDERE, TO BELIEVE.

PRESENT.

Credo I believe.	Crediamo We believe.
Credi Thou believest.	Credete You believe.
Crede He believes.	Credono They believe.

See page 199.

OBSERVATION. — Some of the verbs of this conjugation are accented on the last vowel but one ; as, temère, to fear : others, on the last but two ; as, crèdere.

N. B. — For the few verbs in which the accent falls on the last vowel but one, see page 218.

127. What is the matter, is expressed by che and the verb avere ; as,

What is the matter with you? Che avete? Literally: What have you?
Nothing is the matter with me. Non ho nulla. I have nothing.

N. B. — Remember that questi, cotesti, quelli, joined to nouns, are the plurals of the adjectives questo, cotesto, quello.

EXAMPLES.

Are you right in reproaching me for my bad translation?	Avete ragione di rimproverarmi per la mia cattiva traduzione?
I have never spoken to that man.	Non ho mai parlato a quell' uomo.
Where did you find the books?	Dove trovaste voi i libri?
I found them on the table.	Io li trovai sulla tavola.
Why did you not bring the white dress with you?	Perchè non portaste la veste bi- anca con voi?
Do not cry so loud.	Non gridate sì forte.
I had the pleasure of enjoying your brother's company last night and this morning.	Io ebbi il piacere di godere la compagnia di vostro fratello ieri sera e sta mane.
This fish is not good.	Questo pesce non è buono.
Of what country are you, sir?	Di qual paese siete voi, signore?

VOCABULARY.

To assist	Assistere.	Obstinate	Ostinato.
Bear	Orso.	Possible	Possibile.
To cry	Gridare.	To prove, try	Provare.
To dine	Pranzare.	To receive	Ricevere.
Example	Esempio.	Snow	Neve.
Expense	Spesa.	So, thus	Così or sî.
Fire	Fuoco.	Strong, loud	Forte.
If	Se.	Translation	Traduzione.
Moment	Momento.	Yet	Ancora, pure.
Negligence	Negligenza.	To yield	Cedere.

EXERCISE XVI.

Have you received any money this week? Yes; I have received some from my father. I hope (that) you will assist me in my French translation. If it is difficult, I will assist you. I think that my French translation is very difficult to-day. Was it difficult yesterday? Yes, sir; I found it very difficult. Is this the physician of whom your father spoke to me last week? No, sir; my father has never spoken to him. Have you found your gloves? Yes, sir; I have found my gloves. Where did you find them? In my friend's store. Is it possible?—you have not been to your friend's store to-day. I have not been to his store to-day, but I was at his house; and when he found the gloves in his room, he was sure that they were my gloves, and carried them to his store. Am I not right in reproaching you for your carelessness? Yes, sir; you are right. Have you any good books? I have some, but I have not a good French grammar. Have you dined? No, sir; I am going to dine with my brother. Have you tried the red wine I sent him last month? No, sir; I have not yet tried it. Give me the book which I lent to your brother. I thought that the book was my brother's, and I lent it to my friend's sister. Why does my mother cry so loud? Because the dress-maker did not bring her the black dress. Is the dress-maker with her? She is not with her; she sent the white dress, but the black dress will not be ready before Saturday. It is time to go to my friend's store. I will go with you, if you wait a moment. I will wait with pleasure. Why is your sister so obstinate? She is always obstinate; she thinks that I am always wrong, and she never yields to my wishes.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

CONJUNCTIONS.

Pure,	Yet.	Dopo che,	After that.
Già,	Already.	Subito che,	} As soon as.
Non che,	Not that.	Tosto che,
Prima che,	Before that.

131. Pure is employed in the sense of yet, also, or even; as,

Son povero, pure son felice.

I am poor, yet I am happy.

Non è solo bella, è pure amabile.

She is not only beautiful, but also lovely.

Mi contentassi pure di uno sguardo.

I should be contented even with a look.

132. Pure and già are often used as expletive words; as,

Fate pure ciò che vi piace . . Do what you like.

Non già che io voglia lodarvi . Not that I wish to praise you.

133. Non che is sometimes used elliptically for not only but; as,

Essa merita stima non che rispetto.

She deserves not only esteem, but respect.

134. The verb following prima che, dopo che, subito che, tosto che, is used in the future as in English, when futurity is implied; as,

Gli parlerò subito che mi scriverete.

I will speak to him as soon as you write to me.

 EXAMPLES.

Shall we have any books to-day? Avremo dei libri oggi?

I have had no books, and I shall have none. Io non ho avuto libri, e non ne avrò.

He is in town, not in the country. Egli è in città, non in campagna.

Where are you going to-morrow? Dove andrete domani?

VOCABULARY.

Ball	Ballo.	John	Giovanni.
City	Città.	Lame	Zoppo.
To conciliate	Conciliare.	Now	Adesso, ora.
Country . .	Campagna, paese.	Only	Solamente.
Curiosity . .	Curiosità.	Persevering	Perseverante.
Deaf	Sordo.	Punishment	Pena.
Error, mistake	Errore, sbaglio.	Reward	Ricompensa.
Table . . .	Tavola.	Romance	Romanzo.
Faithful . .	Fedele.	Studious	Studioso.
Fish	Pesce.	William	Guglielmo.

EXERCISE XVII.

Where is your father? He is at home. What is he doing? He is doing nothing. Why does he not go to the country? Because his horse is lame. Have you studied your lesson? No, sir; I have had no time. What have you been doing? Nothing. Shame! I have studied not only the French lesson, but the Italian translation. Who gave you this book? John, the son of my friend. Is he in town? No, he went into the country last night. Are you ashamed to speak? I am not ashamed, but I am afraid. Afraid of what? Afraid of making mistakes. If you are afraid of making mistakes, you will never speak. Where are you going to-night? I am going to the ball. At what time shall you go? As soon as you go to your father's. My friend has no money, yet he has a good heart. Who gave you this pencil? William. William, the son of my friend? No; William, the brother of your friend. Alas! What is the matter with you? I have not studied my lesson. Why do you not study it now? Because I have no time. Not that you have no time, but you have not the wish to study. I am not only studious, but persevering. Are you thirsty? No, I am not thirsty. Are you deaf? No, I am not deaf. Have you any books? Yes, I have some. Are they good books? Some of them are good. Why do you not lend me some romances? Because I have no romances. Are you afraid to lend me books? I am not afraid. I have no reason to be afraid. You are a good friend, and you are right. When shall I have the pleasure of enjoying your company? The pleasure is mine, sir; and I shall come to-night.

LESSON XIX.

NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

135. NUMERAL ADJECTIVES, or adjectives which express number, are the following:

Uno One.	Ventidue Twenty-two.
Due Two.	Trenta Thirty.
Tre Three.	Trentuno Thirty-one.
Quattro Four.	Trentadue Thirty-two.
Cinque Five.	Quaranta Forty.
Sei Six.	Cinquanta Fifty.
Sette Seven.	Sessanta Sixty.
Otto Eight.	Settanta Seventy.
Nove Nine.	Ottanta Eighty.
Dieci Ten.	Novanta Ninety.
Undici Eleven.	Cento One hundred.
Dodici Twelve.	Duecento or } Two hundred.
Tredici Thirteen.	Dugento }
Quattordici Fourteen.	Trecento Three hundred.
Quindici Fifteen.	Mille One thousand.
Sedici Sixteen.	Due mila Two thousand.
Diciassette Seventeen.	Dieci mila Ten thousand.
Diciotto Eighteen.	Un milione One million.
Diciannove Nineteen.	Due milioni Two millions.
Venti Twenty.	Un bilione One billion.
Ventuno Twenty-one.	Due bilioni Two billions.

Cento has no plural; as,

Tre cento soldati. Three hundred soldiers.

Mille makes in the plural mila; as,

Quattro mila soldati. Four thousand soldiers.

136. Cardinal numbers are invariable, except uno, which makes una for the feminine.

137. Uno drops the o before a masculine noun commencing with a vowel, or with a consonant which is not z or impure s; as,

Un libro, un uomo, uno spirito, una donna, un' amico, un' amica.

N. B. — Uno and una suffer no elision at the end of a phrase.

138. The noun which follows ventuno, trentuno, should, for euphony, be in the singular; as,

Ventun' anno, trentun libro, quarantuna lettera.

N. B. — This rule is not to be observed if the noun precedes or when the number is preceded by the article; as,

Anni ventuno; libri trentuno; i trentuno libri; le ventuna lettere.

139. The preposition on is not expressed in Italian, before the date of the month; as,

Il quindici di Luglio On the fifteenth of July.

Quanti ne abbiamo del mese? . . . What day of the month is it?

Ne abbiamo quindici? . . . It is the fifteenth.

140. The conjunction and is omitted between the numbers in the notation of years; as,

Mille otto cento cinquanta. One thousand eight hundred and fifty.

141. The indefinite article one or a is also omitted before hundred and thousand; as,

Cento cavalli . . . One hundred horses.

Mille soldati . . . A thousand soldiers.

142. The date of the century is preceded by the article; as,

Nel 1858, and not in 1858.

143. In mentioning the various epochs, the numeral mille is omitted; as,

Uno scrittore del trecento, and not del mille trecento.

144. Cardinal numbers, with the exception of uno, are employed for the date of the month; as,

Il primo, il due, il venti . The first, the second, the third.

A quanti siamo del mese? . What day of the month is it?

Siamo al quindici It is the fifteenth.

145. In dating letters, the article may be used in the singular or plural, and the preposition di expressed or omitted; as,

Il or li 24 di Giugno, or il 24 Giugno.

146. The expressions twelve hundred, twenty-five hundred, etc., must be expressed by one thousand two hundred, two thousand five hundred, etc.; as,

Abbiamo due mila trecento franchi.

147. In multiplication the word via is used instead of times; as,

Due via due fanno quattro. Two times two make four.

148. Cardinal numbers generally precede the nouns; as,

Abbiamo cento venti franchi.

N. B. — They follow the noun when we wish to fix the attention to the number, rather than to the object it accompanies; as,

Abbiamo franchi centoventi.

EXAMPLES.

It was last week that I spoke to your friend.	Fu la settimana passata che io parlai al vostro amico.
I have not been able to find work for your son.	Io non sono stato capace di trovare lavoro per vostro figlio.
You are not able to sing an Italian song.	Voi non siete capace di cantare una canzone Italiana.
I thank you, sir.	Grazie, signore.
Where is your friend going?	Dove va il vostro amico?
He is going into the country.	Egli va in campagna.

VOCABULARY.

Able	Abile.	To lose	Perdere.
To believe	Credere.	Near, nearly . . .	Vicino, quasi
Boy	Ragazzo.	To neglect	Trascurare.
Certainly	Certamente.	Noise	Rumore.
Cloud	Nuvola.	Prayer, request .	Preghieria
Command	Comando.	Prince	Principe.
Destiny	Destino.	Round	Rotondo.
Door	Porta.	Scene	Scena.
Gardener	Giardiniera.	To wish	Desiderare
Labor	Lavoro.	To work	Lavorare.

EXERCISE XVIII.

Is this man a merchant? No, sir; this is the man who sold you his black horse last winter. My black horse! I did not buy it last winter. Then it was last summer. Are you afraid of my dog? I am not afraid of your dog; I am ashamed of you. Of me! what have I done? You have not assisted that poor man; he is poor and without work, has three children; and you ask me what you have done! You have neglected him, and you have forgotten my request. Why do you speak so? I have not forgotten your command, but I have not been able to assist him as I wish. Why do you not make him work in your father's garden? My father has two very able gardeners, and they never work in winter; when December is near, they go to their houses and stay with their families four months, from December to March. Is your son afraid to go to my friend's store? He is not afraid; but he has not studied his lesson, and he has no time. Why does your sister cry? She has lost twenty-five dollars. What noise is this? O! your sister; how do you do, madam? I am very well, sir, I thank you. But you are not very well; what is the matter with you? Nothing is the matter with me, sir; I had twenty-five dollars in my hand this morning, and now I am not able to find a shilling. If I show you where the money is, will you give me this rose? If you will show me where it is, I will certainly give you the rose, and all the flowers which I have in my room, in my garden, and in my brother's garden. Your money is in that handkerchief on that round table near the door. I am very much obliged to you, sir.

LESSON XX.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

149. THE INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS are as follows:

Chi	Who.		Quale	Which one.
Che	What.		Quanto	How much.

150. Chi is used substantively for persons; as,

- Chi è venuto con voi?* Who has come with you?
- Chi è là?* Who is there?
- A chi scrivate?* To whom do you write?

151. Che, without a noun, is used for things indefinitely, and signifies che cosa? what thing? as,

- Che volete da me?* What do you want of me?
- Di che parlate?* Of what (thing) do you speak?

152. Quale, without a noun, is used for things definitely; as,

- Quale volete, il buono o il cattivo?*
Which do you like, the good or bad one?
- Quale scegliete, questo o quello?*
Which do you choose, this or that one?

153. Quanto, used substantively, is invariable; as,

- Quanto costa questo?* . . . How much does that cost?
- Quanto vi resta a fare?* . . . How much does there remain to you to do?

Quanto, used adjectively, agrees with the noun; as,

Quanto denaro }	vi resta?	How much money }	have you left?
Quanta carta }		How much paper }
Quanti libri }	leggete?	How many books }	do you read?
Quante carte }		How many papers }

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Banker	Banchiere.	Fool	Matto.
Beggar	Mendico.	Gun	Fucile.
Blind	Cieco.	Hatter	Cappellaio.
Bookseller	Libraio.	Head	Testa.
California	California.	Intelligent	Intelligente.
To create	Creare.	Number	Numero.
Crown (a coin)	Scudo.	Respectful	Rispettoso.
Dollar	Dollaro.	Servant	Servitore.
To enjoy	Godere.	To run	Correre.
Envy	Invidia.	World	Mondo.

EXERCISE XIX.

How many trees have you bought this week? I bought six Monday, sixteen yesterday, and to-morrow I shall buy twenty-one trees, if I have money. I will give you the money for the twenty-one trees that you are going to buy to-morrow. You are very kind, sir. Which book is this? The bookseller sent it to my father. When shall we go to the tailor's? To-morrow. What shall you do with your gun? I will give it to my brother. How many horses has your father? He has four. Lend me some money. How much? Three hundred and sixty dollars. I have not the money with me; I paid three thousand and twenty-one crowns to my banker, and I have but one hundred and six dollars. Are you afraid to lend me money? I am not afraid. Then I shall send my servant. Very well. Is this the man of whom you speak so often? Yes, sir; this is the man of whom I have spoken so often, and of whom I speak this moment, and I shall always speak well of him. What has he done? Do you not believe me? Yes, I believe that you enjoy his company; but who is he? He is a man of merit, generous and intelligent. Shall I speak the truth? Certainly. There are a great many fools in this world, and you are one of the number. Why, sir? Because I think that you are blind, and that he is a beggar. A beggar! he is a man of honor, sir; and you are wrong in calling him a beggar; if he has no money, he has a heart and a head. Have I not a heart and head too? Yes, sir; but your heart was created in California, and your head in your father's garden.

LESSON XXI.

REGULAR VERBS.

INFLECTION OF A REGULAR VERB OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION.

PARTIRE, TO DEPART.

PRESENT.

Parto	I depart.	Partiamo	We depart.
Parti	Thou departest.	Partite	You depart.
Parte	He departs.	Partono	They depart.

(See model, page 199.)

157. There are but few verbs of the third conjugation which are regular. (See list, page 218.)

158. The verbs in which ire is preceded by a c retain the i before o and a, to preserve the soft sound of the infinitive; thus,

Cucire makes cucio, cucia, and not cuco, cuca.

159. Some of the verbs of this conjugation add the letters isc before the regular inflection of all the persons of the singular, and of the third person plural of the imperative, as well as the present indicative and subjunctive. Thus, giuire, to enjoy, makes

PRESENT.

Indicative.	Subjunctive.	Imperative.	And not
Gio-isc-o ,	Gio-isc-a .	. . .	Gioo ,	Gioa .
Gio-isc-i ,	Gio-isc-a ,	Gio-isc-i .	Gioi ,	Gioa ,	Gioi .
Gio-isc-e ,	Gio-isc-a ,	Gio-isc-a .	Gioe ,	Gioa ,	Gioa .
Gioiamo ,	Gioiamo ,	Gioiamo .	—	—	—
Gioite ,	Gioiate ,	Gioite .	—	—	—
Gio-isc-ono ,	Gio-isc-ano ,	Gio-isc-ano .	Gioono ,	Gioano ,	Gioano .

N B. — The first and second persons plural are never irregular.

160. Some of these verbs can be conjugated with or without this addition ; viz., nutrire makes nutro and nutrisco.

N. B. — For the verbs in which the termination isco is retained or rejected, see list, page 206.

For the verbs in which isco is indispensable, see list, page 203.

161. In counting the hours of the day, the definite article is added to the cardinal number, and the noun is omitted. The verb to be must agree with the subject which always follows the verb, except in an interrogative sentence ; as,

Che ora è? What hour is it?

E l' una It is one o'clock.

Sono le due It is two o'clock.

162. Mezzo, half, after the noun is invariable. It agrees with the noun when it precedes it ; as,

Un' ora e mezzo. An hour and a half.

Due ore e mezzo. Two hours and a half.

Una mezza ora. Half an hour.

163. Half past twelve is idiomatically expressed by the half ; as,

E la mezza. It is half past twelve.

164. But generally, after twelve, the word past is translated by dopo, after ; as,

Egli venne ieri alla mezza dopo He came yesterday at half past mezzo giorno. twelve.

165. A quarter past, half past, are expressed by a quarter, half, joined to the noun by the conjunction and ; as,

Sono le tre ed un quarto. . It is a quarter past three.

Sono le otto e mezzo. . . . It is half past eight.

166. A quarter of is expressed by meno un quarto, which is always placed after the whole number; as,

*Sono le due meno un quarto, or
E l'una, e tre quarti.* } It is a quarter of two.

167. Ago is expressed by fa at the end of the phrase, or by sono or è at the beginning of it; as,

Due giorni fa. } Two days ago. Un anno fa. } A year ago.
Sono due giorni. } E un anno. }

168. The preposition in is omitted in Italian before the words mattina, morning; dopo pranzo, afternoon; sera, evening; notte, night. It is changed into of, if the hour is mentioned; as,

La mattina, o la sera . . . In the morning, or in the evening.
Alle cinque della sera . . . At five o'clock in the evening.

EXAMPLES.

Have you found your cane?	Avete trovato il vostro bastone?
I dress myself at half past six.	Io mi vesto alle sei e mezzo.
Have you already forgotten it?	L' avete voi già dimenticato?
I do not think I shall be able to go to the ball to-night.	Io non credo di esser capace di andare al ballo questa sera.
At what time in the evening?	A che ora della sera?
At a quarter past twelve.	Ad un quarto dopo mezzanotte.

AMOR TIMIDO.

PLACIDO zeffiretto,
Se trovi il caro oggetto
Digli che sei sospiro,
Ma non gli dir di chi.
Limpido ruscelletto
Se mai t'incontri in lei,
Dille ch'è pianto sei
Ma non le dir qual ciglio
Crescer ti fe' così.

VOCABULARY.

Already	Già.	To finish . . .	Finire.
Ancient	Antico.	Folly	Follia.
Ass	Asino.	To hear . . .	Sentire.
Breakfast	Colazione.	Minute . . .	Minuto.
Cane, stick	Bastone.	To play . . .	Suonare, giocare
To comb	Pettinare.	To print . . .	Stampare.
Corner	Angolo.	Prose	Prosa.
Ear	Orecchio.	Rare	Raro.
Dark	Oscuro.	To sleep . . .	Dormire.
Dinner	Pranzo.	To think . . .	Pensare.

EXERCISE XX.

Am I not a good boy? Not always. When am I not a good boy? When you do not study your lesson. And when am I a good boy? When you sleep. Then, good-night. Where are you going? I am going to be a good boy. How many hours do you sleep in the night? I sleep — let me think — one, two, three, four, four — what is the number after four? Five. Five, six, seven, eight — how many hours are there from seven to eight? One hour. Then I sleep only one hour. Only one hour? Yes, sir ; an hour. I go to bed at seven o'clock, and I dress myself when the bell rings for breakfast at eight o'clock in the morning. How many hours do you work? I work six hours and a half. What o'clock is it? It is a quarter of nine. At what time shall you go to the bookseller's? I had already forgotten it ; probably at half past twelve. Then I shall go with you, because I (have) wish to buy a few books, and I am sure that he will show me particular attention if I (shall) go with you. I shall be at your service. I thank you, sir. Let us see what you have done to-day. I have not done anything. Have you not studied your French lesson? Yes, sir ; I studied it two hours and a half, from eleven till half past twelve. That makes an hour and a half. Is it possible? Yes, an hour and a half, and, after all, I do not think I shall be able to recite it this afternoon. At what time in the afternoon? At a quarter of five. At what time do you dine? We dine at a quarter past two, and I shall be at table twenty-one minutes. Then you have three hours for your lesson : an hour and a quarter before dinner, and an hour and three quarters after dinner.

LESSON XXII.

CONJUNCTIVE PRONOUNS, continued.

169. THE CONJUNCTIVE PRONOUNS mi, ti, ci, vi, si, change the i into e, and gli adds an e, when immediately followed by the pronouns lo, la, li, le, ne.

170. If the conjunctive pronouns follow the verb, they are joined to it, and make one word. If they precede the verb, they can be united only when the last pronoun is lo, which loses the o when the following verb commences with a consonant, except z or impure s; as,

Te la manderò, or manderottela.	}	I will send it to you.
Tel manderò, or manderottelo.
Te lo spedirò, or spedirottelo.
Ve ne manderò, or manderovvene.		I will send you some.

171. Gli is never separated from the following pronoun, whether it precedes or follows the verb. Thus used, it can be applied to both genders; as,

Egli glielo mandò, or mandoglielo. He sent it to him, or to her.

172. Loro is never united to any pronoun, and must always follow the verb.

173. When the pronouns lo, la, li, le, and ne, are used in connection with loro, they must precede the verb, except in those cases in which they are affixed to it; as,

Lo mandai loro	I sent it to them.
Mandatelo loro	Send it to them.
Non lo mandate loro	Do not send it to them.

174. When an infinitive is followed by another, the conjunctive pronoun is affixed to the first ; as,

Spero poterla vedere, and not spero poter vederla.

175. The conjunctive pronouns mi, ti, ci, vi, si, though not followed by the pronouns lo, la, li, le, ne, may be expressed by me, te, noi, voi, se, used after the verb and not joined to it ; but this form is used only when we wish to designate the person in a manner more precise, and to the exclusion of all other persons ; thus : He loves me may be expressed by Egli mi ama, or by Egli ama me ; but, Egli mi ama has the meaning that he loves me, and that he may love others ; whilst Egli ama me shows that I am the only person loved by him, and that no other person shares his love.

N. B. — Egli mi ama is then properly translated by He loves me.

Egli ama me should be translated by He loves but me.

176. Auxiliary verbs or present participles which in English precede the past participle are omitted in Italian ; the conjunctive pronoun is then affixed to the past participle ; as,

Vedutala in quello stato, piansi e pregai.

Having seen her in that condition, I wept and prayed.

177. When a pronoun forms one of two or more objects of the same verb, it is never used conjunctively ; as,

Io scrissi a lui, e non a lei, and not Io gli scrissi, e non a lei.

Io non scrissi nè a voi nè a vostra sorella, and not Io non vi scrissi.

178. The pronouns ci and vi are also employed as adverbs instead of quì, here, and là, there ; as,

Io ci rimarrò, or io rimarrò quì. . I will remain here.

Io vi andrò, or io andrò là. . I shall go there.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Amiable	Amabile.	Ill, unwell . . .	Ammalato.
Brother-in-law .	Cognato.	Illness	Malattia.
Comb	Pettine.	Letter	Lettera.
Compliment . .	Complimento.	To moralize . .	Moralizzare.
Despotism . . .	Dispotismo.	To resemble . .	Rassomigliare
Dictate	Dettame.	Ridicule	Ridicolo.
To excuse . . .	Scusare.	To sell	Vendere.
To follow . . .	Seguire.	Stone	Pietra.
Grief	Affanno.	To succeed . .	Riuscire.
Kingdom	Regno.	Sure	Sicuro.

EXERCISE XXI.

Who is sick? My brother's child is sick. What is the matter with him? He has been sick for some time, with a fever. Did you give him the flowers which my friend sent him? Yes, sir; I gave them to him yesterday. How old is he? He is seven years old. Give him this rose. I will give it to him with pleasure. When will you give it to him? This afternoon. Then, if you send your servant to my house, I will give him some flowers for the boy, and for his pretty sister. Why do you not send me some roses? Because you are not sick. But my pretty niece is not sick. Well, she is not sick, but she is lovely, and the flowers of my garden are for her, and (for) those who resemble her. Excuse me, sir; but you are a little partial. Probably; but I follow the dictates of my heart. Is it always safe to follow the dictates of the heart? Do not begin your old story. Will you buy my horse? I have two. Will you sell them to me? One is already sold. To whom? To my brother-in-law. When did you sell it to him? Three days ago. For how much? Two hundred and fifty dollars. Then you have not two horses; you have but one. Well, it was only to make you understand that I have no need of your horse. You are right, sir. My friends sent this note, asking me to lend them the two books of which you spoke yesterday. They are on that round table; send them to them with my compliments. What is the matter with your brother? Nothing is the matter with him. What have you bought? I have bought three birds. To whom shall you give them? I shall give them to my sister. She has two cats, and cats and birds are not good friends.

LESSON XXIII.

REMARKS ON THE REGULAR VERBS.

179. THE first person plural of every tense ends in mo.

The second person plural of every tense ends in te.

The third person plural of every tense ends in no.

N. B. — Modern writers have adopted the termination ro, instead of no, in the third person plural of the conditional, and of the imperfect subjunctive.

180. The accent in the third person plural of the present and imperfect indicative, and in the present subjunctive, falls always on the last vowel but two, and not on the last vowel but one, as in the other persons of the same tenses ; as, amo, ami, ama, amiàmo, amàte, àmano.

amàva, amàvi, amàva, amavàmo, amavàte, amàvano.
ami, ami, ami, amiàmo, amiàte, àmino.

N. B. — In some parts of Italy the regular termination of the first person singular of the imperfect is often changed from a into o ; as,

Amavo, temevo, dormivo, instead of amava, temeva, dormiva.

It is to be regretted that this change has not been generally adopted, because, if it were, the first person could not be mistaken for the third person of the same tense.

181. Some verbs have a double termination ; as,

Impazzare and impazzire.

Compiere and compire.

With the termination in are and ere, they are regular. With the termination in ire, they form the present in isco.

COLLECTIVE NUMBERS.

182. THE COLLECTIVE NUMBERS are as follows:

Un paio		A pair.
Una decina		Half a score.
Una dozzina		A dozen.
Una quindicina		About fifteen.
Una ventina		A score.
Una trentina		About thirty.
Una quarantina		About forty.
Una cinquantina		About fifty.
Un centinaio		About a hundred.
Un migliaio		About a thousand.

DISTRIBUTIVE NUMBERS.

Ad uno ad uno		One by one.
A due a due		Two by two.
A dieci a dieci		Ten by ten.
A venti a venti		Twenty by twenty.
Una volta		Once.
Due volte		Twice.
Tre volte		Three times.

Primieramente, or in primo luogo		Firstly.
Secondariamente, or in secondo luogo		Secondly.
In terzo luogo		Thirdly.
In quarto luogo		Fourthly.

EXAMPLES.

I am much obliged to you, sir.	Io vi sono molto obbligato, signore.
I have not had any answer.	Io non ho avuto nessuna risposta.
I will not fail to speak to him about it to-morrow.	Io non mancherò di parlargliene domani.
Be sure of it, sir.	Siatene sicuro, signore.
Be sure of it, madam.	Siatene sicura, signora.

VOCABULARY.

Answer	Risposta.	Lovely	Amabile.
Concert	Concerto.	Medicine	Medicina
To copy	Copiare.	Model	Modello.
Disposed	Disposto.	To oblige	Obbligare
Engagement	Impegno.	Perfect	Perfetto.
Exhibition	Esibizione.	Pocket	Tasca.
Favor	Favore.	Storm	Tempesta.
To fear	Temere.	Terrible	Terribile.
Gentleman	Gentiluomo.	Theatre	Teatro.
Invitation	Invito.	To want	Bisognare
To invite	Invitare.	Wife	Moglie.

EXERCISE XXII.

Give me the sugar. I have no sugar. Give me something then. I have nothing. Where is the knife? On the table, with the fork and the spoon. Where is the English grammar? In my room. Have you copied your French translation? I have copied it twice. Have you lost your key? My key is in my pocket. Whose key is this? It is my brother's. He who loves, fears. Are you disposed to do me a favor? I am at your service. Lend me your horse, then. My horse is lame. Did you go to my father's yesterday? Yes, sir; I was with him, and I enjoyed his agreeable company for two hours and a half. Have you any pens? I have a great many. Give me some. How many? Give me a dozen. Did you find many friends at the theatre? Not many; half a score, I think. With whom did you go? I went with your brother's friend and his wife. Was their little daughter with them? Yes, she was with us. Is she not a very lovely creature? Yes, she is a model of beauty. Shall you go to the great ball to-night? Yes, I have already invited your niece. Has she accepted the invitation? I have had no answer yet. When did you send your invitation? This morning, at half past eight. Probably she was not at home; she went to the exhibition this morning. I hope (that) she will send me an answer soon. She will not fail to send you an answer; be sure of it. But when will she send it? It is already a quarter of four, and I have made no other engagement. Have you any good gloves? I have some, but they are not very good. Will you accept this pair? I thank you sir.

LESSON XXIV.

ORDINAL NUMBERS.

Primo	.	.	.	.	.	.	First.
Secondo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Second.
Terzo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Third.
Quarto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fourth.
Quinto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fifth.
Sesto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Sixth.
Settimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Seventh.
Ottavo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Eighth.
Nono	.	.	.	.	.	.	Ninth.
Decimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Tenth.
Undecimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Eleventh.
Duodecimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Twelfth.
Decimo terzo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Thirteenth.
Decimo quarto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fourteenth.
Decimo quinto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fifteenth.
Decimo sesto	.	.	.	.	.	.	Sixteenth.
Decimo settimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Seventeenth.
Decimo ottavo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Eighteenth.
Decimo nono	.	.	.	.	.	.	Nineteenth.
Ventesimo or vigesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Twentieth.
Trentesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Thirtieth.
Quarantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fortieth.
Cinquantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Fiftieth.
Sessantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Sixtieth.
Settantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Seventieth.
Ottantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Eightieth.
Novantesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	Ninetieth.
Centesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	One hundredth.
Millesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	One thousandth.
Milionesimo	.	.	.	.	.	.	One millionth.

183. Ordinal numbers are variable, and agree with their substantives; thus,

Atto quarto, scena terza. Act fourth, scene third.

184. If the ordinal number is a compound number, both numbers must agree with the noun; as,

La lezione decima quarta . . The fourteenth lesson.

Le decime quinte file Literally: The fifteenth rows.

185. Ordinal numbers, commencing from the thirteenth, can also be formed by changing the last vowel of the cardinal numbers into esimo; as,

Tredicesimo		Thirteenth.
Quattordicesimo		Fourteenth.
Quindicesimo		Fifteenth.
Sedicesimo		Sixteenth.
Diciassettesimo		Seventeenth.
Diciottesimo		Eighteenth.
Ventiduesimo		Twenty-second.
Quarantacinquesimo		Forty-fifth.
Sessantasettesimo		Sixty-seventh.
Centotrentacinquesimo		One hundred and thirty-fifth.
Milletecentoventiquattresimo		Thirteen hundred twenty-fourth.

PROPORTIONAL NUMBERS.

Doppio	. .	Double.	Quintuplo	. Quintuple.
Triplo	. .	Triple.	Decuplo	. Ten-fold.
Quadruplo	. .	Quadruple.	Centuplo	. A hundred-fold.

186. Proportional numbers are variable; as,
Doppie maniche, double sleeves. Doppia inferriata, double grate.

EXAMPLES.

If I were sure of what he says.	Se fossi sicuro di ciò che dice.
Be sure of it.	Siatene sicuro.
have not received a letter for six months.	Non ho ricevuto una lettera da sei mesi.

VOCABULARY.

Advice	Consiglio.	Journey, travel .	Viaggio.
Beside	Fuori di.	Library	Libreria.
Catalogue . . .	Catalogo.	Page	Pagina.
To classify . . .	Classificare.	To persevere . .	Perseverare.
Composition .	Composizione.	Sincere	Sincero.
Course	Corso.	Sail	Vela.
Cruel	Crudele.	Spanish	Spagnuolo.
Difficulty . . .	Difficoltà.	Vanity	Vanità.
To examine . .	Esaminare.	Viper	Vipera.
German	Tedesco.	Volume	Volume.
Heartily	Di cuore.

EXERCISE XXIII.

Shall I give your books to the bookseller? Give them to him, if you wish. Shall I give them to his friend? Give them to him or to his friend. Why do you not speak? Because I am afraid of making mistakes. You will never speak well, if you are afraid of making mistakes. Have you examined your French composition? I examined it yesterday. How many mistakes did you find on the first page? A dozen. How many on the second? About twice as many. Twenty-four mistakes! what shall I do? What shall you do? Study, persevere, and I am sure that you will overcome all difficulty in your translation. If I were sure of it! What would you do? I would study heartily. Study, then, and be sure to make no mistakes in the course of six months. Is this your sincere advice? The advice which I give you is the same which I have given to my brother, sisters, and friends. How many volumes are there in this library? About fifty thousand. Have you the catalogue? Yes, sir; you will find the books classified: the English books are from the first page to the seventy-sixth — about forty thousand; the German, from the seventy-seventh page to the ninety-first page — about thirty-seven hundred volumes; the others are French, Italian, and Spanish books. What is the matter with your sister? She is beside herself, for joy. Why? Her friend, who has been absent two years and a half, and from whom she had not received a letter for seven months, arrived yesterday. Where is he? He is with her, and they are happy.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

IRREGULARITY OF THE PRESENT AND IMPERATIVE

189. If the verb venire were regular, it would make for the

PRESENT INDICATIVE.	PRES. SUBJUNCTIVE.	IMPERATIVE.
Veno,	Vena,
Veni,	Vena,	Veni,
Vene,	Vena,	Vena,
Veniamo,	Veniamo,	Veniamo,
Venite,	Veniate,	Venite,
Venono.	Venano.	Venano.

But, as it is irregular, it makes

Vengo,	Venga,
Vieni,	Venga,	Vieni,
Viene,	Venga,	Venga,
Veniamo,	Veniamo,	Veniamo,
Venite,	Veniate,	Venite,
Vengono.	Vengano.	Vengano.

From the above, it may be seen:

1. That the second persons singular and plural of the present indicative and imperative are alike.

2. That the three persons singular of the present subjunctive and the third person singular of the imperative are alike, and formed by changing the o of the first person of the present indicative into a.

3. That the third person plural of the present subjunctive and of the imperative are alike, and formed by adding no to the third person singular.

4. That an a is added before the termination te of the second person plural indicative, to form the same person plural of the present subjunctive.

N. B. — Verbs of the second conjugation change ete into iate.

IRREGULARITY OF THE FUTURE AND CONDITIONAL

190. The termination of the future, regular or irregular, is always rò, rai, rà remo, rete, ranno.

191. The termination of the conditional is always rei, resti, rebbe, remmo, reste, rebbero.

192. If valere, to be worth, were regular, it would make for the

FUTURE.	CONDITIONAL.
Valerò,	Valerei,
Valerai,	Valeresti,
Valerà,	Valerebbe,
Valeremo,	Valeremmo,
Valerete,	Valereste,
Valeranno.	Valerebbero.

But, as it is irregular, it makes

Varrò,	Varrei,
Varrai,	Varresti,
Varrà,	Varrebbe,
Varremo,	Varremmo,
Varrete,	Varreste,
Varranno.	Varrebbero.

From the above, it may be seen :

1. That the irregularity of the future and conditional rests only on the change or omission of one or more of the letters preceding the regular termination.

2. That the alteration which takes place in the first person singular of the future is carried through all the other persons of the same future, and of the conditional.

RÉSUMÉ OF THE ABOVE RULES.

193. In order to master the Italian irregular verbs, it is required to know :

1. The present indicative.
2. The first person of the perfect.
3. The first person of the future.
4. The past participle.

☞ The first person of the perfect and future and the past participle will be found in the list, page 207.

The few irregular presents, and any other exceptions to the above rules, will be found in a separate list, page 219.

 EXAMPLES.

He gave me a great deal of sugar.	Egli mi diede molto zucchero.
Look at this portrait.	Guardate questo ritratto.
May I ask you a question ?	Potrei farvi una domanda ?
He asked a favor of me to-night.	Mi domandò un favore sta sera.
I intend to go to the ball.	Ho intenzione di andare al ballo

EXTRACT FROM LE NOTTI ROMANE.

Romolo fisò allora gli occhi alla sua lancia formidabili come lei, e robustamente col piede nel mezzo la spezzò. Poscia, gettando a terra con dispettoso cruccio i due tronchi, in voce compressa mormorò : Vanne, ministra d'imperio affannosa : il lituo fu più di te potente e felice. Per qual fato io risurgo, e veggo la mia città ora trionfante con discipline contrarie alle mie ? E tu che fortemente sostieni i nostri aspetti, se mai narri a questi abitatori, forse non creduta maraviglia, cioè che meco ragionasti, di' loro che altrettanta io ne provai da te ascoltando il presente imperio ; che vidi Roma, non la canobbi, e discendo. Sparve, e il monte muggì con rombo di terremoto. Si aperse la terra sotto lo spettro sdegnoso, e in quella sospirando piombò, coprendosi il volto con la visiera. Le ombre raccolsero i tronchi dell' asta fondatrice del glorioso imperio, e l'une all'altre in silenzio se li mostravano.

VOCABULARY.

To belong	Appartenere.	Portrait	Ritratto.
Bottle	Bottiglia.	Question	Domanda.
Distance	Distanza.	Receipt	Ricevuta.
Eternal	Eterno.	To revenge	Vendicarsi.
Glory	Gloria.	To see	Vedere.
To imitate	Imitare.	Sight	Vista.
Imported	Importato.	Society	Società.
To paint	Pittare.	Steam	Vapore.
Palace	Palazzo.	Trouble	Imbarazzo.
Petition	Petizione.	Truly	Veramente.

EXERCISE XXIV.

Good-morning, John. Good-morning, William. How do you do, to-day? I am not very well. What is the matter with you? I am in trouble. What can I do for you? You can do a great deal for me. I am at your service. To-day is the twenty-seventh of the month; I receive my money the twenty-ninth, and — And what? And — Look at that paper on the table. You must pay two hundred and fifty dollars to-day, and you have not the money; is that all? Yes. Two hundred, twenty and twenty are forty, and ten makes fifty; two hundred and fifty; are you still in trouble? I am much obliged to you; shall I give you the receipt? I have never given you a receipt when you have lent me money. I thank you. Have you seen my portrait? It is very good; who painted it? The same painter who painted my two children's portraits. It is truly beautiful. How much did it cost? One hundred and fifty dollars. It is not very dear. Are you hungry? No, I am thirsty. What shall I give you? Give me some wine. Are you not ashamed? Of what? Have you forgotten that I belong to the temperance society? No, I have not forgotten it. Then why do you ask me such questions? You are right; I cannot speak. Why not? May I ask you a question? Certainly. Have you not a trunk full of wines? Yes; but my wines are imported. What is the difference? The difference is this: that not many can pay two dollars a bottle for imported wines. May I ask a favor of you? Certainly. Can you lend me your black horse? Yes, with pleasure; where do you intend to go? To my father's. How is your father? He is very well, but my mother is ill.

LESSON XXVI.

AGREEMENT OF THE VERBS.

194. EVERY verb agrees with its subject; as,

Guglielmo è ricco William is rich.

Noi siamo ricchi We are rich.

195. If the subject has several nominatives in different persons, the verb is put in the first person, if one of the nominatives is in the first person; as,

Guglielmo, Giovanni, voi ed io siamo ricchi.

William, John, you and I are rich.

196. If one of the nominatives is in the second person, and the others in the third, the verb must agree with the second person; as,

Guglielmo, Giovanni e voi siete ricchi.

William, John and you are rich.

197. If all the nominatives are in the third person, the verb is put in the third person; as,

Guglielmo e Giovanni sono ricchi. William and John are rich.

USE OF THE IMPERFECT AND PERFECT.

198. A past action is, in Italian, expressed by either the imperfect or perfect tense.

199. The imperfect tense is used:

1. To express an action which was still existing (going on) when another action, expressed or understood, took place. This may be ascertained by observing whether the English past tense can be changed into was, joined to the present participle of the verb in question ; as,

Quando voi entraste io scriveva lettere.

When you entered I wrote (I was writing) letters.

2. To express the repetition of a past action, or the habit of having performed some action. This may be ascertained by observing whether the English past tense can be changed into I used to, with the infinitive of the given tense, without altering its signification ; as,

Io andava alla scuola ogni giorno.

I went (used to go) to school every day.

200. There is but one imperfect in Italian ; thus,

I went, or I used to go, is always expressed by Io andava.

201. The past tense is used to express an action which is completely past, and which has no relation to any other action ; as,

Ieri scrissi lettere. Yesterday I wrote letters.

202. In speaking of a past action which is not determined by any circumstance, it is left to our will to use either the perfect or the imperfect ; thus, we may say,

Cesare fu grande e valoroso, or Cesare era grande e valoroso. } Cæsar was great and valiant.

But in the first case the tense of the verb is independent of any other ; in the second, it is associated with some other which is understood, such as when he lived, or when he fought.

EXAMPLES.

How many pages have you read? Quante pagine avete letto?

I have read but seven pages. Non ho letto che sette pagine.

VOCABULARY.

Advantage	Vantaggio.	Occasion	Occasione.
Affable	Affabile.	Person	Persona.
Auction	Incanto.	To read	Leggere.
Berlin	Berlino.	To say	Dire.
To come	Venire.	Season	Stagione.
To compel	Forzare.	To turn	Voltare, girare.
To fly	Fuggire.	To unite, add	Unire, aggiungere.
Grapes	Uva.	Victorious	Vittorioso.
To humiliate	Umiliare.	Winter	Inverno.
To know*	Sapere.	To write	Scrivere.

* To know has also the meaning of conoscere, to be acquainted with

EXERCISE XXV.

Where are your brothers going? They are going to the exhibition. Why did you not go with them? Because I was not ready. Have you spoken to my father? I have not spoken to him. What are you writing? I am writing a letter. To whom? To my friend. You and your friend have always been good friends, but I and my brother have never found a true friend. Does your friend write to you often? He wrote two long letters last week, and he used to write three letters a week, when he was in Paris. My mother was always affable, but on this occasion she was affable and generous. How many pages of that book have you copied? I have copied twenty-two pages. To-day I copied only four pages, and yesterday I (of them) copied six; yet there was a time when I copied twelve pages every day. Have you any good books? No, sir. You used to have very good books last winter; what have you done with them? It is true that I had very good books last winter, but, as very few persons came to buy them, and I was in great want of money, I sold them at auction. Were you at home when my friend came? Yes, I was at home. What were you doing? I and my sisters were reading a German book. Did he speak German? No, he said that he used to speak German two years ago, when he was in Berlin, but that now he had forgotten almost all of it. Did you believe it? I did not believe it; but what could I do? You could have done what I did yesterday. What did you do yesterday? I made him speak German without asking whether he knew German or not.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

205. If the comparison is between two nouns or pronouns to which the same adjective refers, than is expressed by di, of (the words in comparison being understood); as,

Egli è meno forte di voi.

He is less strong than you.

I re moderni sono più tiranni degli antichi.

The modern kings are greater tyrants than the ancient ones.

N. B. — If the word which follows than has a complement understood, che or di may be used, with the difference, that in using che the following pronoun should be in the nominative, as in English; as,

Egli è più infelice di me.

He is more unhappy than I, or

Egli è più infelice che io (the verb non sono being understood).

Quest' uomo è più infelice di quella donna. This man is more unhappy than that woman, or Quest' uomo è più infelice che quella donna (non è).

In such case the Italians make use of the negative non. In all other comparative phrases, it is better to use che than di; as,

E meglio salvare un reo che punire un innocente.

It is better to save a guilty man than to punish an innocent one

206. Tale and quale are often used as comparatives of equality; as,

Felice chi vede le cose tali quali sono.

Happy he who sees things as they are.

N. B. — Tale is often suppressed; as,

Felice chi vede le cose quali sono.

EXAMPLES.

Do you know how to translate this page?

Sapete voi tradurre questa pagina?

I am better to-day than I was last week.

Io sto meglio oggi di quel che era la settimana scorsa.

To do good to anybody.

Far bene a qualcuno.

VOCABULARY.

To avoid	Evitare.	Miser	Avaro.
Atheist	Ateista.	Numerous . . .	Numero.
Contagious . . .	Contagioso.	Openly	Apertamente.
To deceive	Ingannare.	Politician . . .	Politico.
Dangerous	Pericoloso.	Precious	Prezioso.
Fatiguing	Faticoso.	Satisfactory . .	Soddisfacente.
To gain	Guadagnare.	Shamefully . . .	Svergognatamente
Hypocrite	Ipocrita.	Skilful	Abile.
Idle	Ozioso.	Thief	Ladro.
Injurious	Ingiurioso.	To translate . .	Tradurre.

EXERCISE XXVI.

How many books have you read? I do not know. Have you read more than I? I read more in one month than you do in a year. Do you speak French? A little; but I can write better than I can speak. This is often the case. Nothing is more precious than time. Of two politicians, one as skilful as the other, the one gains who is the more crafty. He who gives is more happy than he who receives. It is easier to advise than to do. It is more difficult to speak a language than to translate it. I have as much money as your brother, but he has more friends than I. My brother knows how to make friends; and I know that it is easier to make money than to make friends; and that it is easier to make a friend than to preserve his friendship. Nothing is more satisfactory to man than to do good. To be idle is more fatiguing than to labor, and nothing is more contagious than bad examples. Are you sleepy? Not much; I am more thirsty than sleepy. Yesterday was colder than to-day, but to-day I am colder than I was yesterday. How can that be? Yesterday I had a good fire in my room, and to-day I do not find any fire in your house. Is it very cold in this room? I do not know. Why do you speak, then? Because I am very cold. A miser is as injurious to society as a thief. A hypocrite is more dangerous than an atheist. How can I believe it? The atheist tells you openly what he is, and what he believes, and you can avoid his company; the hypocrite tells you what he is not, and what he does not believe, and you believe him, and you find that he has cheated you shamefully.

LESSON XXVIII.

SUPERLATIVES.

207. THERE are two forms of the superlative in Italian : the relative and the absolute.

208. The relative superlative is formed by placing the definite article before the adverbs più and meno, which are used to form the comparative ; as,

Ricco , m. s.	} rich.	più ricco	} richer.	il più ricco	} richest.
Ricchi , m. p.		più ricchi		i più ricchi

Povera , f. s.	} poor.	meno povera	} poorer.	la meno povera	} poorest.
Povere , f. p.		meno povere		le meno povere

OBSERVATION. — The definite article is omitted when più and meno modify a verb ; as, Questo è ciò che più mi piace. That is what I like the most.

209. The absolute superlative is formed by adding issim between the last vowel and the preceding letter of the qualifying adjective ; as,

Dotto , dott-issim-o.	Dotta , dott-issim-a.
Dotti , dott-issim-i.	Dotte , dott-issim-e.

210. Adjectives ending in co and go, or ca and ga, take an h, in order to preserve the hard sound of c and g ; as,

Ricco, ricchissimo ; lunga, lunghissima.

211. Some of the adverbs, as bene, male, poco, molto, spesso, become superlatives by changing the last vowel into issimo ; as,

La vedo pochissimo, benchè ci vada spessissimo.
I see her very little, though I go there very often.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

To conform . . .	Conformarsi.	To live	Vivere.
To consume . . .	Consumare.	Logic	Logica.
To convince . . .	Convincere	Monument	Monumento.
To deny	Negare.	To produce	Produrre.
To die	Morire.	Productive	Produttivo.
To dispose	Disporre.	Reply	Risposta.
Heaven	Cielo.	To scold	Sgridare.
Honorable	Onorevole.	Study	Studiare.
Hospital	Ospedale.	Sympathy	Simpatia.
Humor	Umore.	While	Mentre.
Important	Importante.	While (in a) . . .	In poco tempo

EXERCISE XXVII.

Is it not better to die a man than to live a coward? I cannot answer such a question. Are you disposed to be a coward? No, I am not disposed to be a coward, but I know that he is the most cowardly who is the least disposed to live? Is your brother as rich as my uncle? No, your brother is richer than my uncle ; but my friend William is the richest merchant (that) we have. Who is happy? He who has no remorse. And who is the most happy? The man who lives in a world of sympathy. I cannot deny that you have a good horse ; but mine is better than yours, and my brother's is the best of all. The poor man is often more happy than the rich. I believe it ; but why so? Because he has fewer wants than the rich. How does my sister pronounce French? Very well. The earth is smaller than the sun, but it is not so small as the moon. As we cannot make the world as we wish, let us conform to the world in which we live. Those who work the most, often gain the least. The man who lives in society is bound to produce at least as much as he consumes. The study of languages is very useful, because the language of a nation is the most important monument of its history. What is the matter with you? Nothing is the matter with me ; you see that I am very well, but I have been scolding my friend. Who is that woman? She is my mother's dress-maker. He who is generous is always a good man ; but he who is ignorant is always ignorant. Then he who is learned is always learned. On the contrary, he who is learned is often very ignorant.

LESSON XXIX.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS, continued.

213. THE POSSESSIVE PRONOUN is often omitted when the noun which follows it has reference to the subject; as,

Mettetevi la mano al cuore. Put your hand on your heart.

214. The possessive pronouns mine, thine, etc., which in English follow the noun with a preposition, precede it in Italian without the preposition; as,

Questo mio amico This friend of mine.

Un vostro parente A relation of yours.

215. Possessive pronouns, used substantively in the singular, signify one's property; in the plural they stand for friends, followers, relatives; as,

Io spendo il mio.

I spend my property.

Come stanno i vostri?

How are your friends?

Quando i miei viddero il nemico, l'assalirono.

When my (soldiers) saw the enemy they assaulted him.

216. Possessive pronouns relating to a noun before mentioned take no article, if we wish only to mark possession; as,

Questo cavallo è mio, ed è il mio che corre il più. .

This horse is mine, and it is mine that runs the swiftest.

217. To avoid ambiguity, suo and sua are changed into di lui and di lei, when they do not relate to the subject of the proposition; as,

Egli ha il libro di lui. He has his book.

N. B. — Egli ha il suo libro would signify his own book.

218. Instead of the possessive pronouns, conjunctive pronouns are used with nouns which refer to the limbs of the body, or a part of one's dress ; as,

Mi ruppi il braccio I broke my arm.
Si tagliò il dito He cut his finger.
Vi bruciaste l' abito . . . You have burnt your coat.
Gli tagliarono la testa . . . They cut off his head.

N. B. — Several other expressions are so used for analogy ; as,

Egli non gli è padre, or egli non è suo padre.
 He is not his father.

219. The gerund, which in English follows the possessive pronoun, as my being, his writing, is expressed in Italian by the infinitive with the definite article ; the possessive pronoun is then changed into the corresponding personal pronoun in the nominative, and placed after the verb ; as,

L' esser io . . .	My being
Lo scriver voi . . .	Your writing . .
L' avir egli scritto . . .	His having written . . .

220. As the verb must (bisognare) is impersonal in Italian, a change of construction in the phrase is necessary. The sentence should begin with the verb must, bisogna, followed by the conjunction che, and the subject of must should be placed before the following verb, which is used in the subjunctive ; as,

Bisogna che Guglielmo scriva una lettera.
 William must write a letter.
Bisogna che io vada alla scuola.
 I must go to school.

N. B. — This expression is the same as the use of It is necessary, in English ; as, It is necessary that I should go.

OBSERVATION. — If the subject be a pronoun, the sentence may be expressed as in English, with the change of the personal pronoun into a conjunctive pronoun ; as, Mi bisogna andare alla scuola.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XXX.

USE OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

221. ANY verb expressing doubt, such as pregare, temere, dubitare, sperare, or any conditional proposition which conveys to the mind the idea of a thing not yet accomplished, and which may be fulfilled or not, according to circumstances, if followed by the conjunction che, that, governs the following verb in the subjunctive.

222. The subjunctive verb is put in the present if the verb of the principal proposition be in the present or future ; in any other case, it is put in the imperfect ; as,

Temo che il mio amico parta senza vedermi. I fear that my friend will leave without seeing me.

Temeva che mio fratello partisse senza vedermi. I feared that my brother would leave without seeing me.

REMARK. — It is not the word preceding the verb, but the spirit, the intention, the object we have in view, which determine the proper use of the subjunctive. Thus, if we wish to express more or less certainty or doubt, we may say,

Credo che egli è ammalato, or
Credo che egli sia ammalato. } I believe that he is sick.

Credo che egli è arrivato, or
Credo che egli sia arrivato. } I believe that he has arrived.

And we would say,

Credo che Dio è il Creatore dell' universo, and not che sia . . .
 I believe that God is the Creator of the universe.

223. As the subjunctive mood is used to express the idea of anything which is conditional, or not yet accomplished, so the future may be used instead of the present subjunctive, and the conditional instead of the imperfect subjunctive ; as,

Temo che egli parta, or partirà senza vedermi.

Temeva che egli partisse, or partirebbe senza vedermi.

N. B. — The conjunction che is sometimes elegantly suppressed after verbs implying doubt, fear, hope, in the same way that that is suppressed in English ; as,

Dubito me lo avesse fatto apposta.

I suspect he did it to me on purpose.

Spero mi accoglierà cordialmente.

I hope he will receive me cordially.

Temo mi faccia aspettare molto.

I fear he will make me wait long.

224. The conjunction se, if, though of a conditional nature, is followed by the indicative, if the prevailing idea is positive ; as,

Se parlo piano, è perchè non posso parlar forte.

If I speak low, it is because I cannot speak loud.

Se ballava ogni giorno, era perchè mi vi forzavano.

If I danced every day, it was because they forced me to it.

Partirò domani, se potrò.

I shall leave to-morrow, if I can.

But, if a doubt prevails, the subjunctive is used ; as,

Parlerei forte, se potessi . . . I would speak loud, if I could.

Sarei malato, se ballassi . . . I should be sick, if I danced.

Partirei, se potessi I would leave, if I could.

225. When futurity is implied, the verb following se must be in the future, and not in the present, as in English ; as,

Gli scriverò, se voi gli scriverete.

I will write to him, if you will write to him.

N. B. — The present tense may be employed as in English, if allusion is made to the present time ; as,

Gli scriverò, se mi date il consenso.

I will write to him, if you give me leave.

226. When se has the meaning of whether, the subjunctive may be used or not; as,

Se piange o ride } non m'importa. { Whether he weeps or laughs, it
Se pianga o rida } makes no difference to me.

227. Impersonal verbs require the following verb in the subjunctive, if the sentence is in the plural; in the subjunctive or infinitive, if the sentence is in the singular; as,

Basta che si facciano vedere, or basta farsi vedere.

It is enough that they make themselves seen.

228. A relative superlative followed by che takes the verb in the subjunctive; as,

Egli è il più felice uomo che io conosca.

He is the most happy man that I am acquainted with.

229. The subjunctive is also used after the conjunctions and adverbs which express a conditional idea, such as quantunque, benchè, purché, finchè, acciocchè, quand'anche; as,

Benchè mi creda Although he believes me.

Purchè m'ami Provided he loves me.

☞ Notwithstanding this, Tasso makes Sophronia say :

Benchè nè furto è il mio, nè ladra io sono.

Although mine is not a theft, nor am I a robber.

EXAMPLES.

How does he know it?

Come lo sa?

Is he acquainted with that man?

Conosce egli quell' uomo?

Does he know his lesson?

Sa egli la sua lezione?

In good plain French.

In buon chiaro Francese.

I hope he will write to me.

Spero mi scriverà.

He is not ill, yet he takes some medicine every morning.

Egli non è ammalato, pure prende delle medicine ogni mattina.

My business does not permit me to do so.

I miei affari non mi permettono di farlo.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XXXI.

PAST PARTICIPLE.

230. A PAST PARTICIPLE, without the auxiliary verb, agrees with the noun it modifies ; as,

Il libro letto	The book read.
I libri letti	The books read.
La casa eretta	The house erected.
Le case erette	The houses erected.

231. A past participle employed with the auxiliary verb avere never changes its termination to adapt itself to the subject ; as,

Io ho scritto	I have written.
Essa ha scritto	She has written.
Essi hanno scritto	They have written.

232. It may agree, or not, with the object which precedes it. If we wish to make prominent the action expressed by the past participle, it remains invariable ; as,

Quanti dolori ho sofferto ! How many griefs have I endured !

If we wish to give particular attention to the object, the past participle is then used as an adjective, and must agree with the object ; as,

Quanti dolori ho sofferti ! How many griefs have I endured !

In the first case, the mind is occupied with the intensity of suffering ; in the second, with the many pains suffered.

233. According to this rule, the past participle must agree with the pronouns il, lo, la, le, and ne because they represent the dominant idea of the phrase ; as,

Avete scritto le lettere ? . . . Have you written the letters ?

Io le ho già scritte I have already written them.

N. B. — This agreement, however, does not take place if the direct object belongs to a verb which follows the past participle ; as,

Li abbiamo comprati, ma non li abbiamo potuto leggere.

We have bought them, but we have not been able to read them.

234. A past participle, joined to the verb essere, is used as an adjective, and must agree with the subject or the object. It agrees with the subject when the subject is in the plural and the object in the singular ; as,

Le mie sorelle si son comprate una carrozza.

My sisters have bought a coach for themselves.

It agrees with the object when the object and the subject are in the plural ; as,

Le mie sorelle si son comprati i cavalli.

My sisters have bought the horses for themselves.

If the subject be in the singular, the past participle may agree with the subject or the object ; as,

Egli si è tolto i guanti, or } He has taken off his gloves.
Egli si è tolti i guanti.

235. The verb fare, used reflectively, is followed by the infinitive, and not by a past participle, as in English ; as,

Essa si fa odiare da tutti. She makes herself hated by everybody.

236. The present participle of the auxiliary verbs is often elegantly omitted ; as,

Scritta la lettera, mi addormentai.

Having written the letter, I fell asleep.

☞ If a conjunctive pronoun had been joined to the present participle which is omitted, it must be affixed to the past participle ; as,

Scrittala mi addormentai. Having written it, I fell asleep.

VOCABULARY.

Arm	Braccio.	Ill-treat	Maltrattare.
To adopt	Adottare.	To invent	Inventare.
To beat	Battere.	Invention	Invenzione.
Brief	Breve.	Plant	Pianta.
Dialogue	Dialogo.	Poet	Poeta.
Eye	Occhio.	Method	Metodo.
To finish	Finire.	To rave	Vaneggiare.
Fury	Furia.	Side	Lato.
To hold	Tenere.	Simple	Semplice.
Husband	Marito.	Thorn	Spina.

EXERCISE XXX.

Have you written your translation? My translation has been written and copied twice. To whom did you give my letters? I gave them to your sister. Did she read them? She had not read them when I left her. Have you found the books? I have found them. I thought they were lost. No, they are not lost; my sister loaned them to her friend. Has not your friend finished them? Not all; she has finished the first and second volume. How many songs have you sung? Only three; but the first two have been sung twice. Have you read many books? I have read twenty-one. Twenty-one books? Yes; twenty-one; what a wonder! In how many days? In two days and a half. How have you been able to read them in so short a time? I have adopted the new method of reading books. I cannot believe that a new method has been invented for reading. Yes, there is one; and it is already adopted by many persons. What is it? It is to read by steam. A fine invention, indeed; you rave, my dear. “How could you marry your daughter to an enemy of yours?” said John to William. “It was to revenge myself,” answered William. After a few months, the daughter, who had been ill-treated by her husband, went to her father, saying that her husband had beat her; at which, the father, in great anger, gave her another blow, saying, “Tell your husband that if he has beaten my daughter, I have beaten his wife.” Are you thirsty? No, sir; I am not thirsty. Are you hungry? A little. What shall I give you? Give me what you like. Shall I give you some bread and butter? I will accept it with pleasure.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

242. The following nouns, which are masculine in the singular, become feminine in the plural :

Singular.		Plural.
Cantaio	A weight	Cantaia .
Centinaio	A hundred	Centinaia .
Migliaio	A thousand	Migliaia .
Miglio	A mile	Miglia .
Moggio	A measure	Moggia .
Paio	A pair	Paia .
Staio	A bushel	Staia .
Uovo	An egg	Uova .

243. Some masculine nouns ending in o have two plurals, one in i, masculine, and one in a, feminine ; as,

Labbro , lip,	(plural)	labbri and labbra .
Dito , finger,	“	diti “ dita .

N. B. — The preference is given to the plural in a. (See list of such nouns, page 224.)

244. Some masculine nouns have a masculine or feminine plural, according to their meaning :

Muro ,	a wall ;	mura ,	(of a city) ;	muri ,	(of a house).
Membro ,	{ a member, a limb ;	membra ,	{ limbs of the body ;	membri ,	{ members of an assembly.
Corno ,	horn. ;	corna ,	{ horns of an animal ;	corni ,	{ musical in- struments.
Frutto ,	fruit ;	frutta ,	{ dessert, at table ;	frutti ,	fruits.
Legno ,	wood ;	legna ,	{ sticks of wood ;	legni ,	{ conveyance, carriages.
Riso ,	rice ;	risa ,	laughter ;	risi ,	rice.

EXAMPLES.

He is always weeping.	Egli non fa altro che piangere.
What makes him say so ?	Che cosa gli fa dir così ?
The vivifying light of the sun.	La luce vivificante del sole.
Have you many fruit-trees in your garden ?	Avete voi molti alberi fruttiferi nel vostro giardino ?

VOCABULARY.

Cherry	Cirioggia.	Omnipotent	Onnipotente.
To compare	Comparare.	Peach	Pesca.
Condition	Condizione.	Place	Posto, luogo.
To dim	Appannare.	Prodigal	Prodigo.
Dimension	Dimenzione.	Ray	Raggio.
Inflexible	Inflessibile.	Scarcely	Appena.
Knee	Ginocchio.	Step	Passo.
Light	Luce.	Tear	Lagrime.
To move	Muovere.	To remember	Rammentare.
Nevertheless, still	Nulladimeno.	Vivifying	Vivificante.

EXERCISE XXXI.

Where are your sons? They are in the garden. In whose garden? In my brother's garden. Are there many fruit-trees in your brother's garden? Not many. Has he many cherries? Yes, he has many cherries and peaches, though he has only five cherry-trees and six peach-trees. How is your mother? The same; she can scarcely move her limbs; her knees are always trembling, and her arms are always stiff. Has she not two physicians? Yes, she has two physicians, and they are very prodigal in counsels and remedies; but, nevertheless, she is always in the same condition. How many miles is it (are there) from your father's garden to my brother's house? How many miles? Why do you not say, "How many hundreds of thousands of miles?" Why so? Because the distance is only a few steps; a quarter of a mile, I believe. Have you any looking-glasses? Yes, sir; I have a great many looking-glasses. My uncles are desirous to have a looking-glass, but they did not give me the dimensions. Have you studied your lesson? I have studied it, but I do not know the dialogues. Are they long? They are long, and in some places very difficult. Have you much time for your Italian lesson? I have but a few minutes for my Italian lesson. How much did these two books cost? Twenty-five francs. Who would pay twenty-five francs for two old books? They are not old books, sir. What makes you think that they are old books? Because they were printed in the year one thousand six hundred and forty-one. I hope that you will remember the difference between old books and ancient books, and that many things are ancient without being old.

LESSON XXXIII.

AUGMENTATIVES AND DIMINUTIVES.

245. THE Italians modify the signification of nouns by additional terminations. Grammarians have but increased the difficulty of properly using the augmentatives and diminutives by a multiplicity of terminations, to each of which they have endeavored to give a special meaning. Practice and familiarity with Italian writers is the only guide to their use ; yet, as a general rule,

1. By changing the last vowel of a noun, an adjective, or an adverb, into one, its meaning is augmented ; as,

Libro . . . A book.	Librone . . . A big book.
Tavola . . . A table.	Tavolone . . . A big table.
Furbo . . . A cheat.	Furbone . . . A great cheat.
Bene . . . Well.	Benone . . . Very well.

2. By changing the last vowel into accio for the masculine, and accia for the feminine, to the meaning of bigness is added that of ugliness ; as,

Uomo . . . A man.	Uomaccio . . . A corpulent, ugly man.
Camera . . . A room.	Cameracci . . . A large, ugly-looking room.

.  All words ending in ce and ge take an i before the termination of the augmentative, to preserve the soft sound ; as,

Voce , voice.	{ Vocione , a strong, loud, manly voice.
	{ Vociaccia , a bad, disagreeable voice.

3. By changing the last vowel into etto or ino for the masculine, and etta or ina for the feminine, a generally pleasing idea of smallness is conveyed,

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

Anger . . .	Rabbia.	Path	Sentiero.
Basket . . .	Canestro.	To permit . . .	Permettere.
Bell	Campana.	Prophet . . .	Profeta.
To bereave .	Abbandonare.	River	Fiume.
Bulwark . .	Baluardo.	To walk . . .	Camminare.
Eye-witness	Testimonio oculare.	Week	Settimana.
Foot	Piede.	To weep . . .	Piangere.
Mary	Maria.	Witness . . .	Testimonio.
Music	Musica.	Worthy	Meritevole.

EXERCISE XXXII.

Who is that lovely little creature? She is my little niece. How old is she? She is only seven years old. What is her name? Mary. Little Mary, have you studied music? Yes, sir. Will you sing a little song? I cannot sing, sir. Can you play? I can play a very little, but my teacher does not allow me to sing. Will you give me a little piece of paper? You can take as much paper as you like. Where shall I find it? You will find it on the little table in my study. How do you do to-day? I am extremely well, I thank you. How is your nephew? He is pretty well. How much did you pay for that book? Two dollars and a half. Two dollars and a half for that ugly little book! It is a good-sized book, and not an ugly-looking book. Where shall I put these flowers? Put them in that little basket. What shall I do now? Ring the little bell, and go and study your lesson in William's room. I do not like to go to that ugly little room. Go in my little room, then. How many men often say of a pretty woman, "What a lovely little creature! O, the beautiful little hands! O, the charming little mouth! What a pretty little foot!" But how few persons say, "Is she truly the little angel she appears to be? Have those pretty little hands always been useful? Has that charming little mouth ever spoken two sweet little words to the bereaved widow, to the poor and the sick? Is that pretty little foot always walking in the right path of honor and virtue?" The poets compare two beautiful eyes to two bright stars; forgetting that the stars are always sparkling with heavenly light, and speak always of the glory of the Omnipotent, whilst the most beautiful eyes are often dimmed with tears and sorrow.

LESSON XXXIV.

ADVERBS.

247. THE ADVERBS are generally formed by adding mente to the feminine adjective ; as,

Generosa . . . Generous.	Generosamente . . . Generously
Cortese . . . Polite.	Cortesemente . . . Politely.

248. Adjectives ending in le and re drop the final e ; as,

Facile Easy.	Facilmente Easily.
Regolare Regular.	Regolarmente Regularly.

☞ Some adjectives are used as adverbs without the additional mente ; as, poco, molto, forte, piano.

REMARK. — When the above words modify a noun, they are adjectives ; when they modify a verb, they are adverbs ; as,

Io ho studiato molto	I have studied much.
Io ho molto pane	I have much bread.

249. Adverbs in a superlative degree are formed by adding mente to the feminine superlative ; as,

Cortesissima, cortesissimamente.
Generosissima, generosissimamente.

OBSERVATIONS ON SOME OF THE ADVERBS.

No, non No.	Avanti }
Si Yes.	Prima }	 Before.
Mai, giammai Never.	Dopo	After.
Già Already.	Qui, quà	Here.
Bene Well.	Lì, là, colà	There.
Punto }	Costì, costà	There.
Mica }	Anzi che no	Rather.

250. No stands by itself; non is used to form a negative sentence; as,

No, non posso permetterlo. No, I cannot allow it.

251. No and si following a verb in the same sentence are preceded by di; as,

Penso di sì I think so.

Egli mi disse di no He told me no.

Ed egli mi disse “no, nol farò.”

And he said to me, “No, I will not do it.”

N. B. — Non lo makes nol, when followed by a verb not commencing with a vowel, z, or s impure.

252. The adjective or participle which in English follows rather, anzi che no, in Italian precedes it, or is placed between anzi and che no; as,

Amabile anzi che no, or } Rather lovely.
Anzi amabile che no.

253. Mai and giammai are used with non except when they answer a question for themselves; as,

Non l' ho mai vista. Mai? No, giammai.

I have never seen her. Never? No, never.

☞ Mai and giammai in interrogative sentences, and in conditional or doubtful phrases, are used without non, and stand for ever; as,

Se mai la vedessi If ever I could see her.

L' avete mai veduta? Have you ever seen her?

254. Già, bene, punto, mica, are often used as expletives; as,

Non è mica da scherzo It is not a thing to joke about.

Non già che l' ami Not that I love her.

255. Prima and dopo are generally followed by di; as,

Prima di me. Before me. Dopo di voi. After you.

Dopo del tempo prefisso. After the appointed time.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

To arrive	Arrivare.	Newspaper	Giornale.
Cup	Tazza.	Originality	Originalità
Different	Differente.	To plunge	Tuffare.
To equalize	Uguagliare.	Post-office	Posta.
Entirely	Intieramente.	Progress	Progresso.
To flourish	Florire.	To reflect	Riflettere.
To happen	Accadere.	To rule, govern . . .	Governare.
To imagine	Immaginare.	Sin	Peccato.
Independence . . .	Indipendenza.	Situation	Situazione.
To murder	Trucidare.	Tranquil	Tranquillo.

EXERCISE XXXIII.

How is the weather to-day? Yes, sir. Yes, sir, what? What did you say? I ask, How is the weather to-day? Do you hear? Do not speak so loud; I am not so deaf as you imagine; the weather is very fine to-day. Why do we find little originality in this world? Because men imitate much, and reflect little. Has your friend made much progress in the study of the French language? Yes, sir; he reads correctly, speaks well, and writes better than he speaks. How long has he studied it? Two years and a half. He must certainly know the language, then. He knows a great deal of the language, because he has studied assiduously and faithfully. Will you go to the exhibition? I cannot go now. When can you go? If you will come here to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, I can easily go to the exhibition, and to your banker's. Where shall we go first? We can go wherever we like. I think that it will be better to go to the banker's first, and afterwards to the exhibition. The honor of man and that of woman are two plants of an entirely different nature: the one flourishes out of doors, the other within. Where are you going so early? I am going to the post-office; I am afraid that I shall be late. No, you are not late; you can take a cup of coffee with me, and afterwards we will go there together. What time is it? It is exactly nine o'clock, and the steamer never arrives before ten. I should like to take a cup of coffee with you, if I could have it immediately. You can have it in five minutes. Very well, then, I shall read the newspaper meanwhile.

LESSON XXXV.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

260. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS are such as are used in a general sense, without referring to any particular person or thing.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS USED SUBSTANTIVELY FOR PERSONS.

Altri	. . .	Other or others.	} Invariable.
Chi	. . .	Some one, who, some others.
Chiunque	.	Whoever.
Tutti	. . .	All, everybody.
Si		One, they.
Chicchessia	} Whosoever or whomsoever ; plural		{ Chicchessiano .
Chisivoglia
Veruno	} No one. With their irregular feminines, but no plural.	.
Nessuno
Niuno
Taluno	. Such a one.	} With the regular feminine and plurals.
Qualcuno	. Some one.

261. Altri is used only in the nominative ; in the objective it makes altrui, which in the genitive and dative is often used without a preposition. In the genitive it often precedes the noun ; as,

Nè voi nè altri saprà convincermi.

Neither you nor others can convince me.

Non fare altrui ciò che per te non vuoi.

Do not do to others that which you do not wish for yourself.

L' altrui bontà mi guida.

The goodness of others guides me.

262. L'altrui signifies the property of others ; as,

Non appropriarti l'altrui.

Do not appropriate to yourself the property of others.

263. Chi, preceded by non, stands for no one, and takes the subjunctive ; as,

Trovò chi lo fece . . She found some one who did it.

Non trova chi l' ami . She does not find any one who loves her.

☞ Chi may be often repeated without offending the ear ; as,

Chi saliva, chi scendeva, chi cantava, e chi ballava.

Some ascended, some descended, some sang, and some danced.

264. Altri and chi are often used in a distributive sense ; as,

Altri nuotava, altri affondava. Some swam, others sank.

A chi piace la toga a chi la spada. The toga pleases some, and some the sword.

265. Tutti takes the verb in the plural ; as,

Tutti lo dicono. Everybody says so.

266. Si is used with a verb in the singular, and when followed by the pronoun ne, the i is changed into e ; as,

Che si dice del mio cavallo? . What do they say of my horse? .

Non se ne dice nulla They say nothing about it.

267. Chicchessia and chisivoglia take the verb in the subjunctive, with the conjunction che ; as,

Chicchessia che venga, dite che dormo.

Whoever may come, say that I am asleep.

268. Veruno, nessuno, and niuno, following a verb, take non before them ; as,

Nessuno lo sa, or } No one knows it
Non lo sa nessuno. }

REMARK. — In an interrogative sentence, veruno, nessuno, and niuno, stand for anybody ; as,

Non vedete nessuno? Do you not see anybody?

N. B. — Vedete nessuno is often used, but in such a case it would be better to say vedete qualcuno.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XXXVI.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS USED SUBSTANTIVELY FOR THINGS.

269. THE INDEFINITE PRONOUNS used substantively for things are as follows :

Checchè	. . .	} Whatever, whatsoever.
Checchessia	. .
Checchesivoglia
Per,* perquanto	. .	However, however much.
Nulla, niente	. .	Nothing.
Tutto		All.

270. Checchessia, checchesivoglia, require che after them, and the verb in the subjunctive. Checchè dispenses with che; as,

Checchè scriviate.	} Whatever you may write.
Checchessia or checchesivoglia che scriviate.

 Checchessia, besides the meaning of checchè, has sia, the present subjunctive of the verb to be; consequently it can form a sentence for itself, and when followed by a verb must have the relative pronoun che connecting the two verbs. Thus, the meaning of Checchessia che scriviate is, Whatever may be the thing which you write. Hence it is that checchè is never followed by a noun without a verb; as,

Checchè sia il vostro parere. Whatever be your opinion

N. B. — The same rule holds good for checchesivoglia.

271. Per is generally followed by an adjective with che, and by the verb in the subjunctive; as,

Per ricco che sia è miserabile.

However rich he may be, he is wretched.

* With an adjective following it.

272. Perquanto takes the verb in the subjunctive, but dispenses with che; as,

Perquanto egli sia miserabile.
Perquanto miserabile egli sia. } However wretched he may be.

273. Tutto is used with or without the article; as,

So tutto. I know all.

Mi è stato detto il tutto. All has been told to me.

N. B — If a conjunctive pronoun precedes, the article must be used; as,

Ne so il tutto. I know all of it.

274. Nulla and niente are often used for anything; as,

Volete niente? Do you want anything?

Direste nulla in mio favore? Would you say anything in my behalf?

E dolce far nulla * To do something is pleasant.

275. If nulla and niente follow the verb, non is placed before it; as,

Non mi bisogna nulla, or } I have need of nothing.
Nulla mi bisogna.

If they are followed by an adjective, they take the preposition di; as,

Nulla di buono. Nothing good.

Niente di cattivo. Nothing bad.

If they are followed by a verb, they take the preposition da; as,

Nulla da fare. Nothing to do.

Niente da dire. Nothing to say.

EXAMPLES.

What did your brother intend to say? Che voleva dire, or che aveva intenzione di dire vostro fratello?

My brother intended to say that he cannot come to-night. Mio fratello voleva dire che egli non può venire stasera.

I will never fail to do so. Io non mancherò mai di farlo.

* The meaning of this expression is, "It is sweet to do something," and not, as is sometimes supposed, "It is sweet to do nothing." In order to give the latter meaning, it would require the negative non before the verb.

VOCABULARY

Ancestor . . .	Antenato.	To hide . . .	Occultare.
To acquire . . .	Acquistare.	Impatient . . .	Impaziente.
Brute . . .	Bruto.	In spite of . . .	A dispetto di.
To conceal . . .	Nascondere.	Laconism . . .	Laconismo.
Cynic . . .	Cinico.	To obtain . . .	Ottenere.
Disagreeable . . .	Disaggradevole.	Package . . .	Involto.
Education . . .	Educazione.	Pedant . . .	Pedante.
To exile . . .	Esiliare.	Philosopher . . .	Filosofo.
Exile . . .	Esule.	Position . . .	Posizione.
Forehead . . .	Fronte.	To scrutinize . . .	Scrutinare.

EXERCISE XXXV.

What has that man given you? He has not given me anything — Whatever you may say, I cannot believe it, because I saw that he gave you a package, and you put it in your pocket. Yes, he gave me something. Then why did you say that he did not give you anything? But you are always impatient, and do not allow me to finish what I have commenced; I intended to say that he had not given me anything belonging to you. Shall I do anything for you, sir? Not anything at present, I thank you. Have you read that letter which was sent to a gentleman by his wife? No, I have not read it. It is here: “Having nothing to do, I write; and having nothing to say, I finish.” It is truly a model of laconism; nothing more simple than this. Is not that woman very beautiful? Beautiful as she is, she is not gentle. Whatever you may think of her, she is the belle of the evening. Do you know what your boy has done? I know all, but what can I do? True merit cannot be concealed, whatever you may do to hide it. What have you done to-day? Nothing good. And nothing bad, I hope. I have not done anything, either good or bad. A man exiled from his country, whatever be the reason of his banishment, or whatever be the position he has obtained, will never fail to long for the land of his forefathers. Without a good education, the learned man is but a pedant, the philosopher a cynic, the soldier a brute, and every man, whatever he may be, a very disagreeable person. How is the weather to-day? It is very warm to-day. Was it warm yesterday? No, sir; yesterday was not so warm as to-day.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

281. In the objective the preposition accompanying l'uno must be repeated with l'altro; as,

Parlai all' uno ed all' altro. I spoke to the one and (to) the other.
Scrissi all' una ed all' altra. I wrote to the one and (to) the other.

282. Per altro signifies as for the rest; as,

Egli è riservato; per altro, è sincero.

He is reserved; as for the rest, he is sincere.

283. Senz' altro stands for undoubtedly; as,

Egli verrà, senz' altro. He will come, undoubtedly.

EXAMPLES.

How do you like this translation?	Come vi piace questa traduzione?
I do not like it much.	Non mi piace molto.
Have I anything else to do?	Ho io altro da fare?
You have nothing else to do.	Voi non avete nient' altro da fare.
I am very glad of it.	Ne sono contentissimo.

SONETTO DEL PETRACA.

Solo e pensoso i più deserti campi
 Vo misurando a passi tardi e lenti,
 E gli occhi porto per fuggire intenti
 Dove vestigio uman l'arena stampi.

Altro schermo non trovo che mi scampi
 Dal manifesto accorger de le genti:
 Perchè negli atti di allegrezza spenti,
 Di fuor si legge, com' io dentro avvampi

Si ch'io credo omai, che monti e piagge,
 E fiumi e selve sappian di che tempre
 Sia la mia vita, ch' è celata altrui.

Ma pur sì aspre vie, nè sì selvagge
 Cercar non so, che amor non venga sempre
 Ragionando con meco, ed io con lui.

VOCABULARY.

To accommodate	Accommodarsi.	Idleness	Ozio.
To act	Agire.	Linen	Tela.
Author	Autore.	Note	Biglietto.
Base	Basso.	Objection	Oggezione.
To be born	Nascere.	To return	Ritornare.
Difference	Differenza.	Sensation	Sensazione.
Egg	Uovo.	Style	Stile.
Elevated	Elevato.	Subject	Soggetto.
To enclose	Acchiudere.	Tender	Tenero.
Historian	Storico.	Writer	Scrittore.

EXERCISE XXXVI.

Who has been here? Two of your friends: one of them left this letter for you, the other said that he would return to-night. I have been reading the two books which you sent me yesterday. I find that one is very good, and the other is good for nothing, though both are from the same author. Why do you not like the latter? Because the style is too elevated for the subject. I do not like the book much. Well, it is one thing to say that you do not like it much, and another that the book is good for nothing. Have you sent the letter to my friends? No, I wrote it last night, but I have not sent it yet. Will you enclose this note? Yes, with pleasure. Is there anything (else) that I can do? Nothing else, I thank you. What is the time now? Half past twelve. What time did your brother say that he would be here? He said that he would be here after twelve. Well, it is now half past, and he has not come: it is better not to wait any longer for him. Let us wait until one o'clock; because, if he said that he would be here after twelve, he will do so, undoubtedly. Have you written to your sisters about William and John? Yes, I have already written to the one and to the other of both, but I have not received an answer from either the one or the other. How did you find your friends? Each of them is in very good health; and each of their coaches is in very good condition. I am glad of it. Where is my father's cane? It is in his room, in the corner near the door. What o'clock is it? It is half past twelve. Is it possible? At what time do we dine? We dine at half past two, but on Sunday we dine at a quarter past one.

LESSON XXXVIII.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS USED ADJECTIVELY FOR PERSONS AND THINGS.

284. THE INDEFINITE PRONOUNS used adjectively for persons and things are as follows :

Uno	One, a, an.	}	With their regular feminine.
Un altro	Another.
Ogni	Every, all.	}	Invariable.
Qualche	Some.
Qualunque	Any, whatever.
Più	More.
Qualsisia }	. . Any, whatever.	{	Form their plurals by adding no .
Qualsivoglia }
Alcuno	Some.	}	With their regular feminine and plurals.
Ciascuno	Each.
Tanto }	 So much.
Cotanto }
Alquanto	A little.
Allrettanto	As much.
Poco	Little.
Molto	Much.
Troppo	Too much.
Tutto	All.
Certo	Certain.
Altro	Other.
Veruno, nessuno }	. No one.	{	With the regular feminine ; no plural.
Niuno, nullo }
Tale }	 Such.	{	For both genders, with the regular plural.
Cotale }
Parecchi	Several.		No singular ; regular plural

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VOCABULARY.

To adduce	Addurre.	Knowledge	Conoscenza.
To appear	Apparire.	Nonsense	Sproposito.
Citizen	Cittadino.	Obligation	Obbligazione.
To condescend . .	Condiscendere.	Occupation	Occupazione.
Cross	Croce.	To place	Piazzare.
Dolorous, painful	Doloroso.	Proposal	Proposta.
To employ	Impiegare.	Sailor	Marinaio.
To excite	Eccitare.	Valet	Valletto.
Grief	Dolore.	Vessel	Bastimento.
Interval	Intervallo.	Weeping	Pianto.

EXERCISE XXXVII.

In a free country every man is a citizen. Is not every man a citizen in every country? No; under despotism no man is free; they are all subjects. What is the difference between a citizen and a subject? One is a man, the other is a slave. You have a great many books on the table; are they all English? Almost all my books are English, but I have several French romances. Why do you read such romances? Generally speaking, they are not good books; but mine are all historical romances, and they cost me only a few dollars. Newton was born the same day that Galileo died: no interval was left between these two great philosophers. If folly were a painful sensation, we should have weeping in every house. Everything is in God, and God is in everything. Every obligation is a duty. Death is the end of all misfortunes. Why did all three of you come? To tell you that the vessel is lost, and (that) the sailors all died, without exception. Every rose has its thorn, and all men their cross. Idleness makes everything appear difficult: let us, then, employ our time in some useful occupation. I cannot comply with your request, whatever be the reason you adduce. All men are more ready to speak than to act. Do not be proud of any success in life. No bad tree produces good fruit. We should place our honor above everything else in the world. A time for everything, and everything at its time. No man, learned as he may be, is able to acquire a perfect knowledge of all the secrets and beauties of nature. Envy is the meanest of all passions. Every man has in himself something which excites the desire of an envious man

LESSON XXXIX.

FORMATION OF THE FEMININE.

291. NOUNS used to represent animated beings form their feminine by changing o into a; as,

Gatto, monaco, amico, make gatta, monaca, amica.

292. Nouns ending in tore form their feminine in trice; as,

Attore, benefattore, make attrice, benefattrice.

293. Some of the nouns of animated beings are known by a name peculiar to each sex; as,

Toro . . . Bull.	Vacca Cow.
Montone . Ram.	Pecora . . . Ewe.
Becco . . He-goat.	Capra She-goat.

Others have but one gender for both sexes. Thus, the masculine nouns tordo, corvo, and the feminine nouns vipera, aquila, express both the male and the female. To ascertain the gender, maschio or femina is added to the noun; as,

Corvo maschio . . Male crow. Corvo femina . . Female crow.

294. Names of trees end in o, and are masculine, except quercia, an oak-tree; as,

Pero, a pear-tree. Pesco, a peach-tree. Cirioggio, a cherry-tree.

By changing the o into a, they become feminine, and express their fruits; as, pera, pear.

EXCEPTIONS. — The following nouns express the fruit and the tree :

Cedro . . . Citron.	Dattero Date.
Fico . . . Fig.	Limone Lemon.
Pistacchio . Pistachio nut.	Pomo Apple.

 Noce, the tree, is masculine ; noce, the fruit, is feminine ; as,
Un noce, a nut-tree. Una noce, a nut.

295. The following nouns are of either gender :

Erede . . Heir or heiress.		Nipote . . Nephew or niece.
Parente . Relation.		Consorte . . Wife or husband.

296. Some nouns have two terminations for the same gender ; as,

La veste or vesta, the dress. La canzone or canzona, the song.

IRREGULAR FEMININES.

Sartore . . Tailor.	Sarta . . Seamstress
Re King.	Regina . Queen.
Duca . . . Duke.	Duchessa . Duchess:

(See list, page 225.)

EXAMPLES.

I find him everywhere.	Io lo trovo per ogni dove.
How do you like this book ?	Come vi piace questo libro ?
I like it very much.	Mi piace moltissimo.
No one would doubt that you are a tailor.	Nessuno dubiterebbe che voi siete sarto.
How did he like the letter I sent yesterday ?	Come gli è piaciuta la lettera che io gli mandai ieri ?

SPERANZA.

Perchè gli son compagna
L' estivo raggio ardente
L' agricoltor non sente ;
Suda, ma non si lagna,
Dell' opra, e del sudor :

Con me nel carcer nero
Ragiona il prigioniero,
Si scorda affanni, e pene,
E al suon di sue catene
Cantando va talor.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XL.

PREPOSITIONS.

297. THE PREPOSITIONS, thus far, have been considered mainly in connection with the article, to show the various cases of the nouns. But, more particularly,

298. Di is used to indicate possession, material, character, and origin; as,

Questo libro è di mio padre . . . This book is my father's.

Una bottiglia di vino A bottle of wine.

Un uomo di merito A man of merit.

Un giovane di alti natali . . . A youth of high birth.

Un cappello di paglia A straw hat.

299. The need or the desire of expressing our thoughts with rapidity has led the Italians to omit one of the two nouns connected by the preposition di; consequently, many of the Italian verbs are to be found governing this preposition. By a close analysis the connecting word which has been omitted can be ascertained; for example, Domandare di qualcuno . . . To ask after any one.

Dare del briccone a qualcuno . To call one a rogue.

Fare di cappello a qualcuno . . To make a bow.

Far d'occhio a qualcuno . . . To give the wink to any one.

The ellipses in these phrases might be supplied as follows :

Domandare la persona di qualcuno.

Dare il titolo di briccone a qualcuno.

Fare un saluto di cappello a qualcuno.

Fare un cenno d'occhio a qualcuno.

VARIOUS USES OF THE PREPOSITION DI.

Morì di morte improvvisa	. . .	He died suddenly.
Scrisse di proprio pugno	. . .	He wrote with his own hand.
Partì di volo, di corsa	. . .	He departed in haste.
Lo dico di cuore		I say it from the heart.
Penso di scrivergli	. . .	I think of writing to him.

300. The preposition a is generally employed to express the tendency of the subject towards a person, place, or thing, whether the motion is understood, commenced, or ended; as,

Verrà a Parigi subito		He will come to Paris soon.
Giunse a Roma ieri sera	. . .	He reached Rome last night.
Se andassi a casa vostra	. . .	If I could go to your house.

301. All the verbs of motion which express a direction towards any object are followed by the preposition a; as,

Vado a Roma. I am going to Rome.

This preposition is also used to connect the word expressing the motive power with that expressing the object set in motion; as,

Mulino a vento		Windmill.
Legno a vele		Sail-boat.
Macchina a vapore		Steam-engine.

VARIOUS USES OF THE PREPOSITION A.

Una casa a pian terreno.	A house with a ground-floor
Una casa a tre piani.	A house with three stories.
Andavano a due a due.	They went two by two.
Si divisero a quattro, a cinque, a otto.	They divided themselves into groups of four, of five, of eight.
Una scala a lumaca.	A spiral staircase.
Da oggi a otto.	This day week.
Da oggi a quindici.	This day fortnight.
Fu battuto a morte.	He was beaten to death.

VOCABULARY.

Beyond, besides . . .	Oltre.	To receive	Ricevere.
Boat	Battello.	Residence	Residenza.
Brick	Mattone.	Ribbon	Nastro.
Captain	Capitano.	Satin	Raso.
Country girl	Contadina.	Sea	Mare.
To deceive	Ingannare.	Shore	Spiaggia.
To dress	Vestire.	Silver	Argento.
Gold	Oro.	Straw	Paglia.
Kitchen	Cucina.	Velvet	Velluto.
Story	Piano.	Watch	Oriolo.
Present	Presente.	To wear	Portare.

EXERCISE XXXIX.

Where is your silver watch? I sold it yesterday. Why did you sell it? Because I have received a present of a gold watch. How is your friend? He was well last week. Have you not seen him this week? No, because he went to Paris last Saturday. With whom did he go? With his brother, the captain of the steamboat "Europa." If you will give me a black cloth coat, I will give you this fine silk dress. What shall I do with it? This is a very good dress for your sister. I would give you what you ask, if I were rich. It is time to go home. What o'clock is it? It is half past eleven. Where are you going? I am going to market. What are you going to do at market? I am going to buy some peaches and cherries. Have you no cherries in your country-house? I have two cherry-trees, but I have no cherries this year. Where do you intend to go next summer? I shall go to the sea-shore. To your sister's residence? I am not sure. Do you know how many rooms there are in your father's three-story brick house? I believe (that) there are seventeen rooms beside the kitchen and the dining-room. Who is that lady with a satin dress? I do not know, but I think (that) she is my music-teacher's sister. I thought (that) she was a country girl. Why did you think so? Because she wears a straw hat with a velvet ribbon, and this is not the fashion. I think (that) the best fashion is to be simple and without affectation in dressing, speaking, and in everything. You are mistaken, sir; there is a fashion in everything, and if we do not follow it, every one calls us rude. Let the fool dress as others wish; let the wise do what he likes.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

VARIOUS USES OF THE PREPOSITION DA

Avete da fare?	Have you anything to do?
Datemi da lavorare.	Give me something to do.
Gli diedi da venti dollari ieri mattina.	I gave him about twenty dollars yesterday morning.
Vi prometto, da galantuomo, di non parlare.	I promise to you, on the faith of a gentleman, not to speak.
Dite da vero o dite da burla?	Do you speak in earnest or in jest?
Io faccio da maestro di musica.	I teach music.
Egli fa da gran signore.	He plays the great lord.
Venite da me.	Come to my house.
Non è da scherzo.	'Tis not a thing to joke about.
Un uomo da bene.	A good man.
Questo è un soggetto da commedia.	This is a subject fit for a comedy
Egli vive da principe.	He lives like a prince.
Sono stato morso da quel cane.	I have been bitten by that dog.
Un uomo da lodare.	A man to be praised.
Un' arma da difendere.	An arm (weapon) for defence.
Da noi non si parla Inglese.	With us English is not spoken.
Egli è pazzo da catena.	He is mad enough to be chained.
Fate da pranzo per dieci.	Prepare dinner for ten.
Da uomo di onore.	As a man of honor.
Voi parlate da senno.	You speak wisely.
L'uomo dall' abito nero.	The man with the black coat.
Noi viaggiammo da otto mesi.	We travelled about eight months.
Passai invano da casa vostra ieri sera.	It was in vain that I passed by your house last night.

303. The preposition per is used to express the reason why, the cause by which, and the manner in which, a thing is accomplished. It answers to the English for, through, in order to, and must always be expressed in Italian, though understood in English; as,

Scrivo per compiacervi.	I write to please you.
Per le continue piogge, il fiume sboccò.	Because of the continual rains, the river overflowed.
Per me si va nella città dolente.	Through me one goes into the city of woe.

304. Per followed by an infinitive after the verbs stare and essere signifies to be about, to be on the point of; as,

Sto per partire.

I am about to depart.

Io era per partire quanto egli venne.

I was about to depart when he came.

VARIOUS USES OF THE PREPOSITION PER.

Falelo per me.

Do it on my own account.

Fatelo per me!

I pray do it for (the love of) me!

Ebbi pane per nove giorni.

I had bread nine days.

Per me, non lo farei.

As for me, I would not do it.

Per me (per conto mio) non lo farei.

I would not do it on my own account.

Fu adorato per santo.

He was adored as a saint.

La città fu assalita per mare e per terra.

The city was assailed by sea and land.

305. In fuori sometimes follows the case it governs; as,

In fuori di questo, tutto va bene.

Tutto va bene di questo in fuori.

} Except this, everything goes well.

306. Di là and di quà are followed by the preposition da; but al di là and al di quà are generally followed by the preposition di; as,

Di quà dal fiume

Al di quà del fiume

Al di là del ponte.

Di là dal ponte

} This side of the river.

} That side of the bridge

EXAMPLES.

Did I leave my book here?

Ho io lasciato il mio libro quì?

You left it at my sister's.

Voi lo lasciaste da mia sorella.

I can go out whenever I like.

Posso uscire quando voglio.

That soldier is a brave man.

Quel soldato è un valoroso.

VOCABULARY.

Arrogant	Arrogante.	Mouthful	Boccone.
To ascertain . . .	Accertarsi.	To meet	Incontrare.
Boldly	Arditumente.	Necklace	Collana.
Consequence . . .	Consequenza.	To nourish . . .	Alimentare.
To consider . . .	Considerare.	Rabble	Canaglia.
To consume . . .	Consumare.	To remark . . .	Rimarcare.
Courtesy	Cortesia.	To rush	Lanciarsi.
Danger	Pericolo.	Temper	Temperamento.
To grapple	Aggrappare.	Violent	Violento.
Match	Accoppiare.	Whenever	Ogni qual volta.

EXERCISE XL.

Have you my brother's French dictionary, or mine? I have neither your brother's dictionary nor yours; I have my sister's dictionary. Is your sister's dictionary as good as mine? My sister always has the best books that can be found; so that, if it is not better than yours, it must certainly be as good (as yours). If you promise me to come and see me this afternoon, I will go with you to my father's. I have many things to do, and shall not be able to come. Where did you leave your gloves? I left them in my bed-room. Why does that man always go alone? Because he has no friends. Would you call a man who does not know what danger is a brave man? No, I would not call him so; because he who rushes upon danger without considering its consequences has in him the nature of a brute. Then who is to be called a brave man? The man who, knowing the danger, meets it boldly, either through necessity, or for some honorable cause. Where did your brother find that wine-bottle? That is not a wine-bottle. What is it, then? It is a bottle of wine. O, I thought it was empty; but where did you find it? I found it at my father's. At what time could I go to your father's to-night? You can go whenever you like; but I will send my servant to ascertain when he will be at home. Do they speak English in your country? But few persons speak English in our country, but many read and translate it very well. The lady whom Milton married after he had become blind was very beautiful, but of a violent temper. One of the poet's friends, wishing to praise her beauty, remarked that she was a rose. "I know it," said Milton, "not by the color, but by the thorns."

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

2. Because the progress of democracy tends now to equalize all classes, and this mode of address is beginning to be obsolete.

3. Because foreigners, who visit Italy, with a limited knowledge of the language, would be more at home in addressing persons in their usual way; moreover, they can say to any lady or gentleman Come state: Fatemi un favore, without the least apprehension of being charged with want of refinement, whilst it would be ludicrous to address a servant or a porter in the third person, and say, Mi dia un bicchier d'acqua. Mandi questa lettera alla posta.

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS.

Avere in pregio.	To appreciate.
Avere in odio.	To hate.
Avere per ignorante.	To believe (some one) ignorant
Avere un tempo di paradiso.	To have a good time
Aver fretta.	To be in haste.
Aver fumo.	To be proud.
Aver d' uopo.	To have need.
Avere in ordine, or in pronto.	To have in readiness.
Aver mala voce.	To be ill spoken of.
Averla con uno.	To be angry with one.
Essere da qualche cosa.	To be good for something.
Essere a cavallo.	To be out of trouble.
Essere di buona nascita.	To come of a good family.
Essere a parte di	To be partaker of
Esser benveduto.	To have a good reputation
Esser malveduto.	To have a bad name.
Essere in grado di	To be able to
Essere a mal termine.	To be in a bad condition.
Esser scarso di denari.	To have but little money.
Essere in ritardo.	To be late.

EXAMPLES.

I am afraid I shall see my brother's friend no more.	Temo di non vedere mai più l'amico di mio fratello.
Have I offended you in any way?	Vi ho io mai offeso?
I think him impertinent.	Io credo che egli sia impertinente
I mean to say that he is proud.	Io voglio dire che egli è orgoglioso.
I asked my brother for money.	Domandai denaro a mio fratello.
How old are you? I am eighteen years old.	Quanti anni avete? Ho diciotto anni.
But as for my books.	Ma in quanto ai miei libri.
So much the better.	Tanto meglio.

EXERCISE XLI.

What is the matter with you, my good friend? I cannot tell you what is the matter with me, but the sight of that man always puts me in a state that I cannot describe. Probably it is because you are not well acquainted with him. I hope I shall never have such acquaintances. Has he offended you in any way? He has not (offended me), but he is conceited, and I dislike men like him, because they generally have but little wit. Then you think him ignorant. Certainly, he is not only ignorant and superstitious, but he is spoken ill of too. I pity him. And I hate him. O, no; we must never hate any one. I do not mean to say that I really hate him, but I can never find his society as agreeable as it may be to you. "How old are you?" asked a lady of one of her tenant-farmers. "I cannot really tell," replied he, "whether I am thirty-eight or forty-eight." "How can you forget your age?" said the lady, with surprise. "Madam," said he, "I could tell you how much money I possess, how many cows and sheep I have; but as for my years, I never trouble myself to count them, as I cannot lose one of them, and no one can take one from me." I wish I had twenty thousand dollars; and I wish to have a good reputation. What could you do with your good reputation without a penny in your pocket? I do not know; yet I should prefer a good name without money to a bad name with plenty of it. But you must remember that a man without money is not able to do what he likes. So much the better.

LESSON XLIII.

OF THE PRONOUN SI.

309. WHEN the pronoun si is used before a verb, although it can be expressed in English by the indefinite pronoun one or they, or by the passive voice, it is in Italian but the object of the verb used reflectively. Si dice, si vede, have the meaning of questa cosa è detta, or veduta,—this thing is said or seen. Consequently, the verb must agree with the subject, if a subject is to be found in the sentence.

Si vende un cavallo A horse is sold.

Si vendono due cavalli Two horses are sold.

310. In compound tenses, the verb essere, to be, must be employed instead of the verb avere, to have, because all reflective verbs in Italian are conjugated with the verb essere; as,

Si è venduto un cavallo A horse has been sold.

Si sono venduti due cavalli . . Two horses have been sold.

☞ We may also say, as in English, E stato venduto un cavallo; sono stati venduti due cavalli.

311. Instead of si, uno may be used, when si can be replaced by one, a man, a person; as,

Quando uno dorme, non pensa a guai.

When one sleeps, he does not think of troubles.

☞ We may also say, quando dormiamo non pensiamo a guai.

312. When, in compound tenses, si is used with a conjunctive pronoun, the verb venire may be employed instead of essere, with the omission of the pronoun si; as,

Mi si è detto, or

Mi è stato detto, or

Mi vien detto.

} It has been said to me.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

EXAMPLES.

Your sister was offered a book by her friend.	Un libro fu offerto a vostra sorella dal suo amico.
I am well provided with money.	Sono ben provveduto di denaro.
All will succeed well with me.	Tutto mi riuscirà bene.
I saw him writing.	Io lo vidi scrivere.
He does not know what to say.	Egli non sa ciò che dice.

EXERCISE XLII.

A brave soldier, who had lost both arms in a combat, was offered a dollar by his colonel. I thank you for your generosity, said the brave soldier; you must certainly think that I have lost but a pair of gloves. A traveller should be provided with four pockets: the first, for his health; the second, for a good companion; the third, larger than the others, for patience; and the fourth, the largest of all, for his money. With such means, he will be sure that everything will succeed well with him. How many miles can you walk in a day? I have never made the attempt, but I think I could walk about twenty-one (miles), if I were obliged to do so. I hope that you will never be obliged to walk so far, because I am sure that you could not walk more than twelve miles. You do not know what to say. Do not put yourself into a passion; I say what I mean. A man like yourself, accustomed to ride always on horseback, could not walk more than ten miles a day; take my word for it. Diogenes, seeing one day a young man blushing, "You are afraid of making mistakes," said he; "courage, my boy, this is the color of virtue." Do you see that man at the corner of the street? I see him. Do you know him? No, I do not (know him), but I think that he is not a good man, because he follows everybody, and I am afraid (that) he will follow me, if he sees me alone in the street. How does the color of this dress become me? The color becomes you well, but I do not like the dress. Why not? Because it is too large and too long. This is the fashion. I do not care about the fashion; I cannot bear to see a lady dragging about a skirt as large as the cupola of St. Peter in Rome. Silence! and do not fall into a passion for what cannot be helped.

LESSON XLIV.

ELLIPSES.

313. THE Italian language, though easy in its pronunciation, and regular in its construction, presents many difficulties to those who aim at a thorough knowledge of it, because of its being filled with elliptical phrases, whose meaning, though readily caught by the natives, accustomed to express a long series of ideas by a single word, a look, or a gesture, can only be understood by foreigners through a keen activity of judgment and an accurate analysis. The following practical observations may be of some help to students.

ELLIPSES OF NOUNS.

314. The preposition di or an adjective naturally presupposes a noun. If, to give a greater degree of interest and beauty to the phrase by its conciseness, the noun is omitted, it may be supplied by analysis; as,

Il dotto inventa, l' ignorante imita, i. e., l' uomo dotto, or ignorante.

Si domanda di voi, i. e., si domanda la persona di voi.

Era di primavera, i. e., era nella stagione di primavera.

Cadere da alto, i. e., cadere da luogo alto.

ELLIPSES OF CONJUNCTIONS AND CORRELATIVES.

315. The conjunction che is often omitted before verbs used in the subjunctive mood; as,

Vorrei mi diciate la verità, for Vorrei che mi diciate la verità.

316. Instead of perchè, chè is often used; as,

Chè non corriamo alla città che è meta, for Perchè non

317. The antecedent or consequent term of a comparison is often understood ; as,

Siccome non fu bene accolto se ne partì, for così se ne partì.

Mi trovate quale mi lasciaste, for tale, quale . . .

ELLIPSES OF VERBS AND PARTICIPLES.

318. A verb or participle is suppressed in a proposition when its meaning can be easily supplied by analogy ; as,

Via di quà, i. e., andate via di quà.

Mandare pel medico, i. e., mandare una persona a cercare, o chiamare il medico.

Appena fui al posto assegnato, i. e., appena fui arrivato . .

Nel mezzo del cammin di nostra vita, i. e., essendo nel mezzo del

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS.

Darsela a gambe.

To run away.

Dar fede a.

To believe.

Dare ad intendere.

To make one believe.

Dare in luce.

To give birth, to publish.

Darsi pensiero.

To care for.

Dare in prestito.

To lend.

Dar sicurtà.

To bail.

Dar la caccia.

To pursue.

Dar principio, fine

To begin, to end.

Darsi allo studio.

To apply one's self to study.

Darsi bel tempo.

To divert one's self.

Dare a credenza.

To sell upon credit.

Dare a pigione.

To let out on rent.

Darsi briga.

To trouble one's self.

Dar da bere, da mangiare.

To give something to drink, eat

Dar fondo.

To cast anchor.

Dar la baia.

To mock at.

Dar nel berzaglio.

To hit the mark.

Dar norma.

To prescribe a rule.

Dare un' occhiata.

To cast an eye at.

Darsi ad una cosa.

To apply one's self to a thing.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XLV.

ELLIPSES, continued.

ELLIPSES OF PERSONAL, POSSESSIVE, AND RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

319. PERSONAL PRONOUNS are commonly omitted before verbs, because the number and person of the verb is indicated by the termination of each tense. Amo has always the meaning of I love, and amate of you love, because o is the characteristic termination of the first person singular, and te of the second person plural. Nevertheless, personal pronouns must be expressed when their omission might cause doubt, as well as when we wish to point at one person to the exclusion of another; as,

Egli scrive, or ella scrive; io, or egli, or ella scriveva

Eglino scrivevano, or elleno scrivevano.

Voi avete detto così; egli non disse nulla.

320. The possessive pronoun is often omitted when the idea of possession can be easily identified and supplied by analogy. If we say, Mio fratello verrà quì colla moglie, coi figli e con tutta la famiglia, we mean with his wife, children, and family; but the possessive pronoun is omitted in Italian, being considered superfluous. In the same way if we say vado in casa, in bottega, we mean my house, my store, because it is generally admitted that in such phrases the person speaking refers to his own house or store. Likewise, if we say non ho studiato la lezione, we understand that it is my lesson, be cause one would not properly lose his time in studying the lesson of another.

☞ The possessive pronoun can be supplied by the adjective proprio; egli partì colla propria carrozza, instead of colla sua carrozza.

321. It is very common in Italian to suppress the relative pronouns che or il quale, together with the auxiliary verbs essere and avere, when used in the indicative mood. The past participle must in this case agree with the subject; as,

Non posso raccontarvi le cose dette o fatte, i. e., le cose che sono state dette o fatte.

Mi dolgo dei libri perduti, i. e., dei libri che ho perduto.

N. B. — This elision may also take place by changing the verb from a passive into an active form; as,

Il denaro datomi dall' amico for Il denaro che l' amico mi ha dato

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS.

Al far del giorno.	At the break of day.
Al far della notte.	Towards evening.
Far di mestieri.	To be necessary.
Farsi innanzi.	To come forward.
Fare a gara.	To strive for the victory.
Fare all' amore.	To make love.
Far alto.	To halt.
Fare una cosa a pennello.	To do a thing exactly.
Far bisogno.	To be needful.
Far cerchio.	To make a ring.
Far cipiglio.	To look frowningly.
Far colazione.	To breakfast.
Far fronte a.	To face.
Fare i fatti suoi.	To follow one's own affairs.
Fare il balordo.	To play the ninny.
Far le carte.	To deal (at cards).
Far lo spasimato.	To play the lover.
Far sapere a qualcuno.	To let one know.
Far stare a segno qualcuno.	To keep one under

EXAMPLES.

Not being able to write.	Non potendo scrivere.
Will you be so kind as to . . .	Vorreste aver la bontà di . . .
To ask for a thing.	Domandare una cosa.
To ask for a person.	Domandare di una persona.

EXERCISE XLIV.

A preacher who had tired his audience with a sermon on the beatitudes was receiving the congratulations of his friends, when a lady of sense, not able to bear their ridiculous flattery, approached him, and with the greatest civility told him (that) she was sure that he had forgotten to mention one of the beatitudes, which she thought would have been warmly received by the audience. “How can that be?” said the preacher, looking frowningly. “It is impossible, madam; I know very well what I am about; you must have been distracted, and probably you did not follow the connection of the several points of my sermon.” “Not so, reverend father,” said the lady; “I was too attentive, and for this reason noticed it.” “Will you be so kind as to mention it?” “If you will allow me, I will do so with pleasure,” said the lady, as, with a smile on her lips, she said, “Father, you forgot to say, Blessed are those who did not hear your sermon,” and, making a respectful bow, she retired. At what time do you breakfast? Not always at the same hour. When we are in the country we breakfast at break of day, but while we remain in town we generally breakfast at eight o’clock. If you are not going to the country to-morrow, I will try to come and take breakfast with you. I will let you know (it). Who knocks? Can one see a friend at this late hour? I am glad to see you, my friend; come in. Is it necessary to ask for permission? Sit down. How do you do? How have you been? How is your mother? And your sisters, how are they? They are all well, and I am perfectly well, I thank you. How long have you been gone? Two years and a half. O, you must give us a relation of all that you have seen and done; we should be delighted to hear it. Should I relate to you all that I have seen and done, it would take me many a day; but I will certainly comply with your wish by giving you an account of my journey I shall be very much obliged to you.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

✎ The i of the second person of the imperative of verbs ending in nere and nire is often omitted when the following word commences with a consonant.

3. No final vowel is suppressed in words at the end of a sentence, or in words which are immediately followed by z or s impure.

N. B. — This rule is not observed in poetry.

4. Words ending in a, i, or in an accented vowel, are never retrenched, except Suora, a title for nuns; as, Suor Maria.

Ora, now; with its compounds; as, ancor, talor.

Fuori, out.

Giovanni, John, when followed by another proper name; as, Giovan Battista.

Ieri, yesterday, when joined to sera or notte; as, ier notte, ier sera.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Tenere uno sulla corda.	}	To keep one on tenter-hooks.
To keep one on the rope.
Essere una cosa da ddozzina.	}	To be something very common.
To be a thing by the dozen.
Far bottega di ogni cosa.	}	To keep an eye to the main chance
To make shop of everything.
Comprarsi brighe a denari contanti.	}	To make one's own troubles.
To buy troubles with cash.
Farla pagare con usura.	}	To make one pay dearly for an injury.
To make pay with usury.
Rompere i fili di una trama.	}	To nip the evil in the bud.
To break the thread of a plot.
Pagare di cattiva moneta.	}	To be ungrateful.
To pay in bad money.

EXAMPLES.

How long will it take you to copy that letter?	Quanto tempo vi bisognerà per copiare quella lettera?
I wish I could write it in twenty-one minutes.	Io vorrei poterla scrivere in ventun minuto.
I told him so, but it is of no use.	Io glielo ho detto, ma invano.
To persist in doing a thing.	Persistere a fare una cosa.

EXERCISE XLV.

A man can desire no mortal thing more than to behold his enemy prostrated before him, and reduced to such a condition that he has him at his mercy; but the greater the offence, the more the injured one is bound to render himself glorious by pardoning it; this is one of the peculiar qualities of a generous and exalted spirit. How long does it take you to make an artificial flower like that? I can make them with little trouble. I wish I could have some of them. How many? Only a few. Very well; I will send them to your house towards evening. You are very kind. How do you like the flowers my friend's sister wears on her bonnet? I do not like them at all; they are very ugly flowers. Why does your brother keep that man on tenter-hooks?—is it not better to say that he cannot do anything for him? He has tried several times to get rid of him, but it is of no use; he persists in thinking that my brother has the power to help him. Does your friend know of the death of her daughter? No, she does not know of it yet; we have only mentioned that she was very ill, and that possibly she might not recover, but I have not had the courage to tell her of the death of her only daughter; I have endeavored to prepare her first saying, that should misfortune come, she must submit to Providence and be resigned. I would rather speak plainly than torture her thus with anxiety. I am going to do so to-night; but she is very feeble, and the doctor fears that such overwhelming intelligence might prove fatal to her. Who is that man? I do not know; but I think that my brother knows him well. Do you think that he has an ugly look? Yes, indeed. He has not only an ugly look, but he is an exceedingly disagreeable person. You are too severe upon him.

LESSON XLVII.

DIMINUTION OF WORDS, continued.

326. THE final e, forming a syllable with the preceding consonant l, n, and r, is often omitted; as,

Una tal cosa Such a thing.
Pan nero Dark bread.
Cuor fedele Faithful heart.

N. B. — The e is not omitted if the consonants l, n, and r, are preceded by any other consonant in the same syllable.

327. When the final e is preceded by a double r, instead of the e the final syllable re is omitted; as,
Condur, indur, and not condurr, indurr.

328. When two infinitives follow each other, the first infinitive is always used without the e; as,

Far chiamare. Poter scrivere.

329. The final o is omitted when preceded by the consonant l, m, n, and r, in one syllable; as,

Pel maculato. Uom da nulla
Man bianca. Lor Signore.

330. When the o is preceded by a double l, as cappello, cavallo, fanciullo, followed by a word commencing with a consonant, except z, or s impure, instead of the o the syllable lo is omitted; as,

Cappel, caval, fanciul, not Cappell, cavall, fanciull.
Fanciul vezoso Charming youth.
Caval feroce Wild horse.

N. B. — It has been mentioned in the preceding lessons that bello, grande, santo, frate, drop the last syllable, or change the last vowel into an apostrophe, according to the beginning of the word following them

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

EXAMPLES.

To display one's own ability.	Far mostra del suo talento.
I am endeavoring to write well.	Mi sto provando di scriver bene
He is going away.	Egli sen (se ne) va via.
How many times did I write to him, but in vain !	Quante volte non gli scrissi, ma invano !

EXERCISE XLVI.

A preacher was once displaying all his abilities in a panegyric in praise of St. George ; among the various repetitions which he introduced, with great pomposity he said, “ Where shall I place my saint? — Among the angels and the archangels? No. Shall I place him among the patriarchs, among the prophets? No. Among the apostles, the evangelists, or the doctors of the church? No, no. Where shall I place him, then? ” . . . And he was endeavoring to be more impressive by a moment's silence, when one of the auditors, rising from his seat, exclaimed, “ My father, if you are not able to find a place for your saint, you can give him my seat, because I am going away.” I am told that your friend has squandered all his property ; can I believe it? Yes, it is so. How many times did I tell him not to be so open-handed, and to put his money at interest ! But he did not listen to me : on the contrary, having plenty of gold, and nothing to do, he began to make a great display of horses and carriages ; his house was always crowded with men of little merit, and with flatterers, who professed to be his friends and admirers ; and now that his money is all gone, his friends have disappeared, and he is left alone and uncared for. Is he discouraged? Yes, he is (discouraged), and regrets that he did not listen to my words. He ought to be resigned. That is what he cannot do. It is hard in misfortune to remember happy days, and be resigned ; he now repents of the many times, that, to show that he had the means of doing what he liked, he ran great risks, and now finds that he has been left alone, no one caring for him at all. My friend, this proves that when a man refuses to listen to the advice of his friends he cannot help being ruined ; every one must profit by his own experience. Very true ; but still it is not pleasant to see a friend in sorrow and misery

LESSON XLVIII.

TRANSPOSITION OF WORDS.

333. THOUGH the Italian language draws its origin from the Latin, it differs considerably in its construction. The Latins were the rulers of the world, and they aimed at great effects, even in the use of their language. Their style was majestic, but it required a steady and close attention. There was no established order in the use of words, but the idea of the phrase was strengthened by a transposition and antithesis of expression, which excited more interest in the hearer than a formal or prosaic statement.

334. The Italians have followed the logical construction of arranging words according to their respective value and order of relation; i. e., the subject before the verb, the object after it, and the adjective or adverb after the noun or verb they modify.

335. This grammatical construction has generally been adopted in the familiar and descriptive style. In the former, any transposition of words is considered an affectation; in the latter, those transpositions are only permitted which do not obscure the clearness of the sentence.

336. Yet the Italians, because of the flexibility of their language, admit of the transposition of words in the historical, poetical, and oratorical style, whenever its object is to present the principal idea of a sentence in the highest degree of clearness to the mind, and harmony to the ear.

337. The following sentences are here given, in order that the pupil may replace the words in their logical arrangement, and compare the harmony and vigor of both forms of construction :

Però dell' intenzione che avea si guardò bene di fare il minimo cenno.

Nella magnificenza degli edifizii, la Italia supera ogni nazione.

E meglio passar sotto silenzio quello che senza dolore ricordar non si può.

Chi ti fa carezze più che non suole, o tradire, o ingannare ti vuole.

Ogni mal fresco agevolmente si sana.

Chi fa male e spera bene, se stesso inganna.

La fortuna aiuta i pazzi sempre, e i birbanti assi volte.

Sanno rarissime volte gli uomini essere o al tutto tristi o al tutto buoni.

In cose disoneste obbligati non siamo ad ubbidire a nessuno.

Dopo la burrasca è sempre più lucido il sole.

Pare che il sole, e la donna deviso si abbiano l'impero del mondo ; l'uno ci da i giorni, l'altra li abbellisce.

SYNONYMS.

STEP OF A STAIRCASE, GRADINO, SCALINO.

Gradino is the spacious and commodious step of a public ouilding.

Scalino is the step of a staircase in a private dwelling.

When we go to church or to the state-house, we ascend gradini.

When we go to our cellar or to the top of the house, we generally ascend and descend scalini.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XLIX.

DERIVATION OF WORDS.

338. THE effect of civilization, and the need of representing ideas by words in common use in a nation, have, to a great extent, contributed to the increase of the vocabulary of the various idioms. When a word borrowed from one language is adopted into another, it generally preserves its radical or elementary letters, but suffers a change in its primitive termination. This change varies in nations according to the nature and tendency of their language; and, if no remarkable alteration takes place in the original termination, the word becomes naturalized, and is christened in the new language with a mark of nationality by the change of its pronunciation. This change of termination or pronunciation is peculiar to each language. The English, with a calculating and contemplative mind, and in their origin influenced by the Druidic religion, express themselves in a language full of monosyllables and short words, of sharp and inarticulate sounds, and exhibit their national type by compressing and condensing the newly-adopted words. The Italians, with a more flowing and graceful elegance, give to the new words, as a characteristic of their language, a polysyllabic nature, and an easy and musical articulation.

339. This difference of the two languages, though obvious in itself, is made more sensible by simply examining those infinitives and adverbs which, retaining the same radical letters, assume a characteristic termination. For example : Comparing the infinitives to fin-ish, to per-mit, to sack, with the corresponding Italian fi-ni-re, per-met-te-re, sac-cheg-gia-re, it will be easily perceived that infinitives in Italian have one, two, or three syllables more than those in English. Likewise, comparing the adverbs brief-ly, ju-di-cious-ly, with the corresponding Italian, bre-ve-men-te, giu-di-zi-o-sa-men-te, it will be seen that the termination ly of the adverbs, used in English without a marked accent, and only to present the word in an adverbial form, is in Italian expressed by mente, a termination of two syllables, with an accent on the first, which, as illustrated in the above examples, represents a state of mind (mente) disposed to brevity and judiciousness.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Tenere uno in croce.

To keep one on the cross.

} To torture one with anxiety.

Battersi la guancia.

To smite one's own cheek.

} To repent of anything.

Mordersi la mano, le dita.

To bite one's own hand or fingers.

} To be in despair.

Allargare la mano.

To open the hand.

} To be open-handed.

Lavorare sott' acqua

To work under water.

} To work underhand.

Dare molte fronde e poca uva.

To give many leaves and few grapes.

} Great cry and little wool.

EXAMPLES.

Egli confidò un segreto a mio fratello. He intrusted my brother with a secret.

Il vostro temperino non mi piace. I do not like your pen-knife.

Egli scriverà una buona lettera domani. He is going to write a good letter to-morrow.

EXERCISE XLVIII.

It has been observed, that when a nation has the opportunity of colonizing a new place, it gives to it the impress of its prominent national tendencies: the Spaniards build a convent, the Italians a church, the Dutch an exchange, the English a fortress, and the French a theatre or a dancing-hall. Cato regretted that he had made three great mistakes in the course of his life: the first was, to have intrusted his wife with a secret; the second, that he had ridden when he might have travelled on foot; and the third, that he had spent one day in idleness. What do you think of last night's lecture? Not much; the orator was eloquent, but not instructive. It is often the case that to lectures may be applied the proverb, "Great cry and little wool." How did my teacher like my French composition? He did not like it much; he said that you had written better ones, and he hopes that the composition you are going to write to-morrow will be better than any of the others. Lord Bacon says that in counsels it is good to see dangers, but in execution it is better not to see them at all, except they be very great. Walpole affirms that nations are most commonly saved by their worst men, because the virtuous are too scrupulous to attempt to arouse the people against their tyrants. The voice of the people is likened to the voice of God; for it has been observed that an universal opinion has an extraordinary power in its prognostications, so that it seems to have a secret virtue of foretelling its own happiness or misfortune. Beware of everything which may do harm, and can do you no good; consequently, in the presence or absence of another, never say without necessity anything which may displease him. Remember, at the same time, that it is foolish to make enemies without a purpose, and that civility costs nothing and buys everything.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

344. Ri prefixed to a verb expresses the repetition of the same action, and corresponds to the English again; as,

Leggere To read.	Rileggere . . . To read again.
Dire To say.	Ridire . . . To say again.

342. Ri prefixed to a verb has, sometimes, the meaning of reäction, opposition; as,

Mandare . . . To send.	Rimandare . . . To send back.
Dire To say.	Ridire . . . To oppose with words.

N. B. — Ri is often the radical of primitive words; as,
Rimare, to rhyme. Rimanere, to remain.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Stare colle mani in mano. To remain with hand in hand.	} To stand idle.
Un fiore non fa primavera. One flower does not make a spring.
Tener l' anima coi denti. To hold the soul by the teeth.	} To have a feeble hold of life.
Gonfiare le gote. To inflate the cheeks.
Stringersi nelle spalle. To shrug the shoulders.	} To decline compliance by a shrug of the shoulders.
Abbassare le spalle. To drop the shoulders.
Darsi della scure sul piede. To cut one's own foot with the axe.	} To bite one's own nose off.
Metter gli occhi addosso ad uno. To place the eyes on one.
Far tanto di cuore.* To make so big a heart.	} To rejoice greatly.

* In this expression both hands are stretched forward so as to form a circle.

EXAMPLES.

I am told that he is here.	Mi si dice che egli è quì.
He thinks so too.	Egli pensa anche così.
Let this book be offered to him.	Che gli si presenti questo libro.
Go and see him to-morrow.	Andate a vederlo domani.

EXERCISE XLIX.

I am told that Mr. B. has bought a little cottage at the sea-shore, in a very remote place, about two hundred miles from the city, and that he is determined to give up society and the world. Can I believe that a man so ambitious as he is could ever be happy in solitude and retirement? I am told so; but I believe only those things which I see with my own eyes. It is difficult to believe that a man who has always had an eye to the main chance would, all at once, give up all his schemes of life. I am inclined to think that he has been disappointed in some of his anticipations. I think so too; I give no credit to those who prate of loving quiet, and of giving up business because they are weary of ambition; for they almost always think otherwise in their hearts; if they are reduced to a private and quiet life, it is either through necessity or folly. We see examples of this every day. Let the least chance of greatness be offered to such men, and they will forsake the quiet they boast about so loudly, and rush upon it as furiously as fire does on dry wood. In a free country every man is bound to show his devotion and attachment to the laws he has adopted, and to the magistrates he has elected. This is not to be required from a man who lives under despotism. Life is a book of which man has read only one page, if he has seen only his native country. A man must have the good sense to conform himself to the usages of the people among whom he lives. In a republic men speak much and suffer little; but under despotism they suffer much and can speak but little. If you have nothing to do, I wish you would go and visit our neighbor, because he is in trouble, and if no one lends him a helping hand, he will undoubtedly be forced to beg. I cannot go now; I will try to go there next week, if I have time. I am afraid that if you go there next week you will find him starved to death, and then, with all your generosity, you would be of no use to him.

LESSON LI.

FORMATION OF WORDS.

343. It has been observed, from the preceding lessons, that Italian words, with few exceptions, end in a vowel, and that o is the letter characteristic of the masculine, as a and ù of the feminine, and i of the plural.

344. The following remarks are here added, for the correctness of the use of some of the terminations:

1. Abstract nouns are principally formed by adding to the adjective the termination tà or ezza; as,

Povertà, falsità, felicità, from povero, falso, felice.

Bianchezza, dolcezza, grandezza, from bianco, dolce, grande.

2. The termination ione denotes an active state, and is generally added to words derived from verbs; it corresponds to the English tion; as,

Spedizione, nutrizione, from spedire, nutrire.

3. The termination ento denotes a passive state, or moral affections; as,

Nutrimento, armamento, contento, spavento.

4. The termination tore expresses the cause; as,
Creatore, pittore, scrittore.

5. The termination tura expresses the effect; as,
Creatura, pittura, scrittura.

6. The termination ata is used for words expressing a collective number of persons, or a continuation of a period of time; as,

Armata, borgata, giornata, nottata.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

EXAMPLES.

You will find this room comfortable, as well as the other.	Voi troverete questa stanza confortabile come l'altra.
It is very easily done.	Può farsi facilissimamente.
You should do this, as it is indispensable and useful to you.	Voi dovrete farlo, essendovi indispensabile ed utile.
The difficulty is to do this well.	La difficoltà stà nel farlo bene.

EXERCISE L.

Men are free under a republican government ; they are slaves under the rule of despotism ; yet they are equal under despotism as well as in the republic. How can that be ? It is very easily explained ; the reason is this : Under a republic men are everything, under despotism they are nothing. Have you studied your lesson ? Yes ; I know it, except the poetry. Is it very difficult to commit a few lines of French poetry to memory ? It would have been very easy for me to do so, if I were inclined to repeat things like a parrot ; I do not know why it is desirable to know things by heart. The teacher does not say that it is indispensable to know a piece of poetry by heart, but he thinks that those who have a good memory should exercise it, as it is profitable and useful to them ; and, beside, he does not like to have scholars in his school who cannot recite or declaim without looking at the book, which he thinks (to be) a sign of stupidity. But, suppose that they are stupid, will they become wise in committing to memory half a page of Virgil or Milton ? No, they will not become wise, but this is a sure indication of their intellectual capacity. Allow me to tell you that I am not of your opinion, because I know by experience that many men are intelligent and have a great deal of sense, and yet they could not commit to memory two lines from Shakspeare, were they to try ten years. Is it not true that every man sees the objects with the color of the spectacles which he wears ? Yes, it is true ; and so every man should endeavor to wear a pair of good, clear, transparent spectacles. The difficulty is to know where to buy them. A man has no greater enemy than himself, because all the evil and excess of trouble he experiences proceed from nothing but his own short-sightedness.

LESSON LII.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Masticare le parole.

To masticate the words.

} To think before you speak.

Conoscere il pane dai sassi.

To know bread from a stone.

} To know what 's what.

Avere il cervello nelle calcagna.

To have the brain in the heels.

} To be empty-headed.

Mettere cervello.

To put brain.

} To become wise.

Aver la testa dura.

To have a hard head.

} To be thick-headed.

Andar colla testa nel sacco.

To go with the head in the bag.

} To rush into anything blindly.

Sapere una cosa a mente.

To know a thing by mind.

} To know a thing by heart.

Andare a fronte scoperta.

To go with one's brow uncovered.

} To have nothing to be ashamed of.

Far fronte a qualcuno.

To make front to one.

} To oppose any one.

Lavorare ad occhi chiusi.

To work with one's eyes shut.

} To work blindly.

Guardare colla coda dell' occhio.

To look with the tail of the eye.

} To cast sheep's eyes.

E meglio oggi l'uovo che domani la gallina.

Better an egg to-day than the chicken to-morrow.

} A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

Toccar sempre lo stesso tasto.

To play always upon the same note.

} To harp on the same string.

SYNONYMS.

SERVANT, SERVITORE, SERVO.

Servitore is the man who is actually, and of his own will, in the service of another man.

Servo is the man in bondage.

In a despotic government all men are servi, but many of the servi have servitori.

In the United States of America, we find in the North only servitori; in the South, servitori and servi.

At the end of a letter we would write, Your servant, vostro servo, as a mere matter of etiquette; but in saying vostro servitore we should express more devotion and a servile attachment.

DEVOTION, DEVOZIONE, DIVOZIONE.

Devozione is the state of being dedicated to a particular purpose.

Divozione is the yielding of the heart and affection, with reverence and piety, to the Supreme Being.

We show devozione when we sacrifice our happiness for the welfare of our fellow-man.

We show divozione when we perform all the duties and injunctions of our religion.

We say that a man is divoto di Dio, and devoto alla patria.

EXAMPLES.

I do not know the manner in which this book is printed.	Io non so come questo libro è stampato.
---	--

My friend is permitted to go out whenever he likes	Si permette al mio amico di uscire quando vuole.
--	---

They part but they will meet again.	Si separano, ma si uniranno di nuovo.
-------------------------------------	--

If you permit so much money to be given to him, I do not know what to think (about it).	Se voi permettete che gli si dia tanto denaro, io non so che cosa debba pensarne.
---	--

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON LIII.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Tenere qualcuno in tono.	}	To keep one to his duty.
To keep one in tone.
Volere ballare e cantare.	}	To try to row one way and look another.
To wish to dance and sing.
Tal sonata tal ballata.	}	To such a question such an answer.
To such a tune such a dance.
Non aver da far cantare un cieco.	}	Not to have enough to buy salt for one's porridge.
Not to possess enough to make a blind man sing.
In capo di dodici mesi.	}	At the end of twelve months.
At the head of twelve months.
Dare il capo d'anno.	}	To wish a happy new year.
To give the head of the year.
Far una cosa da capo.	}	To begin again.
To make a thing from head.
Esser come pane e cacio.	}	To be inseparable friends.
To be like bread and cheese.
Tenere la mestola.	}	To rule the roost.
To hold the pot-stick.
Non esser pane pei denti di qual- cuno.	}	To be out of one's reach.
Not to be bread for one's teeth.
La farina del diavolo va tutta in crusca.	}	Ill-gotten gains bring no good
The flour of the devil all goes to bran.
Cascare il cacio sui maccheroni.	}	To be unexpectedly fortunate.
To have cheese falling on the macaroni.

SYNONYMS.

LABOR, FATICA, TRAVAGLIO.

Fatica is the effect of lavoro. It is sometimes used in the meaning of lavoro and opera, to express the difficulty under which we labored to accomplish the lavoro or opera.

We may have lavoro without fatica, but with fatica there is always associated lavoro.

Travaglio is neither fatica, nor opera, nor lavoro, but only a painful-sensation. It has been used by some of the classics for lavoro or fatica, to express hard and exhausting labor.

PROUD, SUPERBO. HAUGHTY, ALTIERO.

These two words have in Italian a contrary meaning to that which they convey in English.

Altiero comes from high, elevated, and is applied to a man who scorns everything mean and base.

Superbo is applied to a man who has a general contempt for every person or thing.

A man superbo considers himself superior to other men, and mingles with them only to keep them in submission.

A man altiero sets himself apart from the vulgar, and associates only with those who can sympathize with him.

We praise a woman when we call her altiera.

We blame a woman when we call her superba.

EXAMPLES.

Assist me, and let me not be deprived of your valuable help.	Assistetemi, e non mi lasciate privo del vostro valevole aiuto.
--	--

I see him writing in the other small room.	Lo vedo scrivere nell' altra piccola stanza.
--	---

Trust in me !

Abbi fiducia in me !

Are you working for me ?

State lavorando per me ?

How could I have slept, had I not prayed before my guardian angel to send to me sweet sleep !

Come avrei io potuto dormire se non avessi prima pregato il mio angelo custode di mandarmi un dolce sonno !

EXERCISE LII.

Did you not promise me to continue to-day the piece which we commenced in our last lesson? Yes, I did (promise it). It is so interesting and so affecting, that I long to hear the end of it. I am ready to comply with your wish, but I have forgotten where we left off. It was where the count says, “The joy of pardoning the offences.” O, yes, I remember; let us continue. “If death were invented by man, it would be detestable and insupportable; but death comes from Heaven, and Heaven accompanies it with such consolation as no man can give or take — the comfort that there is a reward for the just. Listen to my last words! I know (that) they fall bitterly on your hearts, but they will perhaps one day alleviate your grief. You, my wife, live, and conquer your misfortune; live, and let not this unhappy orphan be deprived of both father and mother. Fly from Venice, and reconduct your daughter to your relatives. She is of their own blood, and you, you yourself were once too dear to them. If the love which they bore you was in part lessened when you became the wife of their enemy, it will be revived, now that you go to them unhappy and without him, the object of their implacable hatred, who in a few moments will cease to exist. And thou, my daughter, whose spirit came so many times to cheer my soul in the roaring of battles, why art thou now casting down thy head like a tender flower? O, the threatening storm is raging, thou tremblest, and thy heart seems ready to break with the intensity of anguish! I feel thy warm tears falling abundantly over me, yet I cannot wipe them away! Mathelda, my child, art thou appealing to me for help? Alas! thy father can do nothing for thee; but there is a Father for the forsaken; thou knowest it; trust in Him, and live. He has certainly destined thee for tranquil, if not happy days. How could He have poured out all this overwhelming torrent of anguish in the morning of thy life, had He not preserved all his mercy for thy remaining years? Live and console thy mother. O, that she might one day make thee the happy wife of a worthy husband.” Now that you have translated these few lines in plain prose, I would direct you to read the same piece in the original. You will find it on page 227.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

SYNONYMS.

COMPOSITION, COMPONIMENTO, COMPOSIZIONE.

Componimento is a production of the mind.

Composizione is a mixture of material substances.

The poet makes componimenti, the apothecary composizioni.

Using these words figuratively, we say composizione when we speak of a production already finished, and componimento when not yet done.

We made a good composizione yesterday, and we hope to make a better componimento to-morrow.

GRATITUDE, GRATITUDINE, RICONOSCENZA.

Gratitudine is a noble and generous sentiment of the soul.

Riconoscenza is a duty.

We show riconoscenza for a benefit by repaying it doubly and then we may forget it.

We show our gratitudine by a constant and sincere attachment to the person who has benefited us.

The man who feels riconoscenza, and is unable to indemnify his benefactor, is always in a state of torment.

The man who feels gratitudine cherishes always the hope of seeing his benefactor happy and prosperous ; and, if unable to contribute to it, he shows his sincere wish by a word, a sigh, or a tear.

EXAMPLES.

I am obliged to go away.

Son costretto di partire.

I am very sorry to hear you complain of your friend so bitterly.

Mi dispiace moltissimo di sentire che voi vi dolete del vostro amico sì amaramente.

My friend is to be found at the library.

Mio fratello può trovarsi alla libreria.

You have my best wishes.

Ve lo desidero di cuore.

Without further delay.

Senza più dilungarmi.

They came forward from either side.

Essi si avanzarono dall' una • dall' altra parte.

EXERCISE LIII.

Where could I get Manzoni's works? I cannot tell you ; but, if you are desirous to obtain them, I am sure that you will succeed in finding them. I must have his works, at any rate, even were I obliged to write to Europe. I am very glad to hear you say so ; and, as I see you so well disposed to become acquainted with this great Italian writer, I will now give you a few more specimens. I am extremely obliged to you. I will try to make you translate into prose a chorus which is to be found in the same tragedy of "Il Conte di Carmagnola." It is too long for one exercise, but . . . Do not be alarmed because I say that it is too long ; I will divide it into three exercises. I am not alarmed, sir ; but I have but little time for my Italian lesson, and I wish to make my translation thoroughly, and without mistakes, if possible. You have my best wishes, and I begin without further delay : "The sound of a trumpet is heard from the right. Another trumpet answers from the left. The fields trodden by armed men rëecho from either side. Here a banner is seen advancing, and there another unfolded banner. Behold an army, proceeding in formidable array ; and behold another, which is steadily advancing to meet the foe. Already the ground which separated them has disappeared ; they are face to face, they fight sword in hand, they thrust them in each other's breast ; though the blood flows freely from the already gaping wounds, yet they redouble their blows with unrelenting fury. Who are these warriors? In which of the two armies are to be found the strangers who dared to come to subdue this beautiful land, and on which side are the Italians who have sworn to save their country or die? Alas ! they all speak the same language, the common lineage is imprinted on the brow of each ; they were all born in this land, which they are now staining with their blood ; this beautiful land, which nature has set apart, and surrounded with the Alps and the sea." You will hear the continuation of this chorus in the next lesson. I am very much obliged to you, sir ; because, although this exercise is extremely interesting, I cannot give more time to it, being obliged to get ready for a ball. Go and enjoy yourself.

LESSON LV.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Esser largo di bocca.

To be with a large mouth.

} To be a great talker.

*Favellare a bocca stretta.*To speak with a mouth half shut.} To speak with timidity and caution.Avere il cuore in bocca.

To have the heart in the mouth.

} To be candid.

Lasciar la lingua à casa.

To leave the tongue at home.

} To remain silent, or uncommu-nicative.*La lingua batte dove il dente duole.*The tongue strikes where the tooth aches.} One is apt to talk of what interests him the most.Rimanere a denti asciutti.

To be left with dry teeth.

} To be disappointed in one's expectations.Fare buon viso.

To make a good face.

} To be pleased with something ;
to welcome.Gettar sul viso una cosa.

To throw a thing in the face.

} To throw a thing in one's teeth.

Rompersi il collo.

To break one's neck.

} To be seriously injured.

Scrivere con buon inchiostro.

To write in good ink.

} To write in strong terms.

Non mi dà il cuore di . .

Not to me gives the heart to . .

} Not to dare to . . .

Far cuore.

To make heart.

} To give courage.

Una cosa da strappare il cuore.

A thing to snatch the heart.

} A thing which overwhelms us with grief.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

EXERCISE LIV

When did Manzoni live? Manzoni was born in the year 1784, and he is still living. I hope so, at least; but let us not lose any time, but continue our chorus, because I remember very well where we left off last time. I am ready. “But who of them was the first to unsheathe the sacrilegious sword, and plunge it into his brother’s breast? What is the exciting cause of that bitter strife? Alas, they know not (it)! they are come here without animosity, to inflict death or to die; they are sold to leaders, and they fight without knowing why. O, misfortune! But have these foolish warriors no mothers, no wives? Why do they not go to snatch their husbands and sons from that ignoble contest? Why do not the old men, filled with the peaceful thoughts of the grave, endeavor to appease that maddening crowd with kind and softening words? Alas! they are unmoved, and speak of their brothers slain, and their cities burned, with that indifference with which the husbandman, sitting at the door of his cottage, points to a whirlwind which is devastating fields that are not his property; the children are attentively listening to their mothers, who speak to them of hatred and revenge; the women are making a show of the necklaces and girdles which their husbands and lovers have taken from the bereaved women of their conquered brothers. The field is already covered with dead warriors; the noise increases, the fury redoubles. One of the armies, lessened in number, is obliged to retreat, and the soldiers, in despair, endeavor to save their lives by flight, and disband; but, whilst the cavalry pursues them, and they are spread over the vast plain like the grain when thrown into the air by the winnowing-fan, a troop of armed men attack the fugitives in front; they are obliged to lay down their arms amidst the shouts of the victors, which silence the laments of the dying warriors. A courier is despatched in great haste. As he passes through the villages, all hasten to ask for the good news. Have you forgotten whence he comes? Can you ever expect good news? Hear the vile news he brings: “Brothers have slain their brothers!” I think that this is enough for to-day, and so I stop here, to finish this sad recital in our next lesson.

LESSON LVI.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Voltare le spalle. To turn the shoulders.	} To withdraw, to retreat.
Buttarsi un affare dietro le spalle. To throw a thing behind one's shoulders.	} To forget; not to care for a thing.
Fare spalla a qualcuno. To make shoulder for one.	} To back one; to assist one.
Parlar sotto voce. To speak under voice.	} To whisper.
Mi cadono le braccia. My arms fall to me.	} I am discouraged.
Misurar tutto collo stesso braccio. To measure everything with the same arm.	} Not to allow any distinction.
Portare uno in palma di mano. To carry one in the palm of the hand.	} To hold one in great consideration.
Essere un uomo alla mano. To be a man at the hand.	} To be kind and affable.
Dar l' ultima mano ad un lavoro. To give the last hand to a work.	} To put on the finishing touch.
Avere una cosa fra la mani. To have a thing among the hands.	} To have a thing handy.
Fare una cosa a man salva. To do a thing at sure hand.	} To do a thing without danger.
Un luogo fuor di mano. A place out of hand.	} A remote, solitary place.

SYNONYMS.

LIE, MENZOGNA, BUGIA.

Menzogna is an error. Bugia is a crime.

If we make believe a thing in jest and for a pastime, the lie is menzogna, and not bugia.

If we take advantage from what we make believe, the lie is bugia, and not menzogna.

We say, generally, una piccola menzogna and una gran bugia.

The untruth asserted to benefit others at the injury of ourselves is menzogna, and not bugia.

Tasso has ennobled this word by calling it magnanimous. “Magnanima menzogna!” he exclaims, when Sofronia, in order to save all the Christians from the wrath of the king of the Turks, makes him believe that she had taken and burned the image of the Virgin.

LIGHT, LUME, LUCE.

Luce is the cause. Lume is the effect.

The moon sends down lume, and not luce.

The sun sends down luce, and not lume.

Lume is generally used for those bodies which throw light on something, such as a candle, a lantern.

Luce is generally used for luminous and shining objects, such as a star, a fire-fly.

WORK, OPERA, LAVORO.

Opera is the production of the mind.

Lavoro is applied to anything accomplished by the hand.

The creation of the world is the opera of God.

The coat I wear is lavoro of my tailor.

TO GO OUT, USCIRE, SORTIRE.

Uscire is used to express the act of departing from any place

Sortire, in the meaning of going out, is limited to military purposes, and only used to express the sudden rushing out of a body of troops from a fortified place to attack the besiegers.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON XVII.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Non va mai carne senza osso.	}	Every rose has its thorn.
There's no flesh without bones.
Salvar la pelle.	}	To escape by the skin of one's teeth.
To save the skin.
Ne va la vita.	}	Life is at stake.
It goes life for it.
Guadagnarsi la vita.	}	To get one's living.
To gain one's life.
Darsi vita e buon tempo.	}	To enjoy one's self.
To give to one's self life and good time.
Il fine corona l' opera.	}	All's well that ends well.
The end crowns the work.
Toccare il cielo col dito.	}	To be at the height of fortune
To touch heaven with the finger.
Risolvere su due piedi.	}	To resolve on the spot, at once.
To resolve on two feet.
Avere il piede in due staffe.	}	To have two strings to one's bow.
To have the foot in two stirrups.
Non sapere quanti piedi entrino in uno stivale.	}	Not to know enough to go in when it rains.
Not to know how many feet go in a boot.
Mettersi la mano al cuore.	}	To appeal to conscience for justice.
To put one's hand on his heart.
Lasciar del pelo in una cosa.	}	To cost dear.
To lose some hair in a thing.

SYNONYMS.

NEW, NUOVO, NOVELLO.

Nuovo has reference to use, or to the time in which an object has been used.

Novello has reference to age, or to the time in which an object is made.

We put on a new coat un abito nuovo, though it was made ten years ago.

☞ If newly made, we call it also abito nuovo, because we express the time in which it is used, and not the time in which it was made.

We say un novello amico, l'alba novella, because we have reference only to time.

SHAME, ONTA, VERGOGNA.

Onta is an injury, accompanied with contempt.

Vergogna is a demonstration of modest ingenuousness

We are ready to revenge, if we feel onta.

We are ready to reform, if we feel vergogna.

EXAMPLES.

To turn a thing into ridicule.	Mettere una cosa in ridicolo.
To meet with great success.	Avere gran successo.
It is customary here to sing after breakfast.	E quì costume di cantare dopo aver fatto colazione.
I have a great desire for money.	Ho gran desiderio di denaro.
They ran with lightning speed.	Corrono colla rapidità del baleno.

EXERCISE LVI.

Count Vittorio Alfieri was born at Asti, in Piedmont, in the year 1749. Slow in his progress, he had arrived at the age of twenty-four without knowing even the elements of his native tongue. The classical heroism of the Greeks and Romans inspired him with a taste for poetry and poetical composition. After some imperfect attempts, he wrote a tragedy, Cleopatra, and attached to it a little piece like a farce, in which he endeavored to turn his own tragedy into ridicule. But the pieces met with great success, and he applied himself to cultivate his dramatic taste, and in the course of six years produced twenty tragedies, which filled the void of the national literature. England has a Shakspeare, France a Racine, Spain a Calderon, Italy an Alfieri. The power of his tragedies results chiefly from the energetic sincerity of the poet, who has embodied his own passion and feeling in his writings, offering simplicity in the plot, truthfulness in the characters, and vehemence, elegance, and harmony, in the comprehensive diction. The following extract is taken from the tragedy Oreste, in which Pylades relates the supposed death of his friend: "It was customary in Crete to renew games and sacrifices to Jupiter every fifth year. Orestes, animated by a desire for fame, and compelled by his restless vigor, went to that shore with his inseparable friend, Pylades. There, longing for honor and glory, he entered the wide arena in a light car, to obtain the noble palm for rapid steeds; and there, too intent for victory, he lost his life. Too fierce, heedless, and impatient, now, with a threatening voice, he pressed forward his ill-trained coursers, and now, with a whip stained with blood, lashed them so vigorously that they flew beyond the assigned limit, more mettlesome as they were more swift. Already regardless of the bridle, and the cries with which he seeks in vain to quiet them, they emit fire from their nostrils; their shaggy manes float in the air, and, wrapped in a thick cloud of dust, they run at their own will over that vast plain with a lightning speed. The tortuous whirlings of the chariot bring everywhere fright, terror, discomfiture, and death, until, the fervid axle striking with violent shock against a marble column, Orestes, being overthrown, fell, and, dragged by the reins, he stained the ground with his blood. Pylades ran to his help, but in vain! Orestes breathed his last sigh in his arms." Alfieri died in Florence, in the year 1803, and was buried in the church of Santa Croce, where a splendid monument is to be seen, at the side of Machiavelli, Michelangelo, and Galileo. His works are printed in twenty-two volumes, quarto. (See the original of the above extract, page 232.)

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

SYNONYMS.

CRAFTY, ASTUTO, FURBO.

Astuto is said of a man who seeks to obtain an object without detection.

Furbo is said of a man who seeks to obtain an object by deceiving others.

The man astuto is often a man of honor. The man furbo is never so.

The generous man may reproach the astuto for his want of frankness; but the generous man and the astuto both agree in exposing and discarding the furbo.

FIRST, PRIMO, PRIMIERO.

Primo is merely an ordinal number, which is expected to be followed by second, third.

Primiero is a man elevated above the others.

In an army the inferior may become the first, il primiero.

In a play in which we are not well entertained, we may leave at the first act, al primo atto.

The president of a republic is the first of the nation, il primiero della nazione; but not the first president, il primo presidente.

EXAMPLES.

The lifeless remains of my beloved son. La spoglia esanime del mio diletto figlio.

To trample under foot the insulting banner. Calpestare la bandiera insultatrice.

EXERCISE LVII.

Torquato Tasso was born in Sorrento, near Naples, in the year 1544. Early applying himself to the study of his predecessors, Dante and Petrarch, and of the Latin and Greek classics, his mind soon became productive. At the age of seventeen he wrote his Aminta, a pastoral play, full of grace, simplicity, and tenderness of expression, which aroused the attention and admiration of all the literati of his age, and which alone would have made his name known and respected in the Republic of Letters. But the young poet was not satisfied with his success. Endowed with a productive mind, and able to express his creations in a sonorous, easy, and pathetic language, he had only need of a subject in which he could embody the intensity of his feelings, the purity of his heart, and the religious sentiment which pervaded his mind and thoughts. He consequently produced his masterly poem, Jerusalem Delivered, which immortalized his name, and added much lustre to the Italian literature. And was there, indeed, any subject which could afford a wider field to a Christian poet with a mind like his, gifted with a fervid imagination? The Saviour of the world dies for the redemption of mankind; the land where the Divine word had diffused so many maxims of morality and religion, the sacred spot which had been sprinkled with his holy blood, was now profaned by the barbarous Moslem. It was not permitted to the followers of their Master to visit the dread enclosure where his lifeless remains were kept; to fortify themselves in the new faith by the sight of those places which bear witness of His suffering and of His death. The whole of Europe, aroused by the voice of an enthusiastic hermit, moves in a mass to free the land, and to deliver the brother Christians kept under the cruel yoke of a cruel despotism. They fight desperately; they endure with constancy and perseverance the hardship of a long and distressing war. They conquer, at last; they trample under foot the insulting crescent; they plant on the walls of Jerusalem the cross, as an emblem of glory and triumph, and hasten with reverence and awe to worship their own inheritance, the holy sepulchre. Nothing more pathetic, nothing more sublime. The Jerusalem Delivered was by the poet dedicated to the Duke of Ferrara, Alfonso d'Este, that ambitious despot, who, suspecting that the poem might be dedicated to some other Italian prince, rewarded the poet by keeping him for seven years in the insane hospital, and making him drink to the last drop the cup of bitterness. Tasso died in Rome, in the year 1595. His last words were, "I am unhappy because the world is unjust."

LESSON LIX.

MAXIMS AND FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Pagare di calcagna.

To pay with one's heels.

} To abscond.

Promettere mari e monti.

To promise seas and mountains.

} To be prodigal of promises.

Perdere la bussola.

To lose the compass.

} To be at a loss.

Correre una gran burrasca.

To run a great storm.

} To run great risk.

Dar fuoco.

To give fire.

} To set on fire.

Dal detto al fatto c'è un gran tratto.

From the said to the done is a great space.

} Saying and doing are two things.

Avere del bene di Dio.

To have of the good of God.

} To possess worldly blessings.

Fare una cosa in un credo.

To do a thing in a creed.

} To do a thing off-hand.

Non credere al santo se non fa il miracolo.

Not to believe in the saint unless he performs the miracle.

} To credit only what is apparent to the senses.

Avere un viso di scomunicato.

To have the look of an excommunicated person.

} To have an ugly look

Pigliarsela in santa pace.

To take it in holy peace.

} To be resigned.

Andate a farvi benedire.

Go to get yourself blessed.

} Go and attend to your own business.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

EXERCISE LVIII.

One of the most celebrated characters in the literary world is Francis Petrarch. We are chiefly indebted to him for the restoration of the Latin tongue to its purity. He contributed greatly to the revival of letters in Italy, and, through Italy, to the other realms of Europe. His Latin works give evidence of his abilities as a politician, theologian, and philosopher. He clothed many excellent precepts of morality with all the graces of pure and classical language. Brucker says, that in reading the moral writings of Petrarch, we visit, not a barren desert of dry disputation, but a fruitful garden of elegant observations, full of the choicest flowers of literature; yet Petrarch's fame depends now entirely on his Italian poems, a collection of about three hundred odes and sonnets, which he wrote as the light relaxations of his mind, almost exclusively given to Latin works, which were the object of his serious applications, and on which alone, it is supposed, he based all his claims to the admiration of posterity. It is Laura, that modest and sweet maiden he sees for the first time on the morning of a Good Friday, 1327 (on that day in which the sun lost all its brightness through pity for its Creator, Era il dì che al sol si scoloraro per la pietà del suo Fattore i rai), who inspires him, and he pours forth those beautiful verses which celebrate the accomplishments and bewail the fate of his cherished idol. Whilst Laura is alive, the charms of her person float constantly before him, and he pours forth all the sweetness of his heart in a gay and animated strain. Laura dies; and the mourning poet does not lay aside his harp, but the earthly passion gives way to a purer affection, and he sings, in a solemn and hopeful tone, his Laura, as she appears to him in dreams, as he sees her in the concentration of his mind, the embodiment of heavenly bliss, a guardian angel constantly guiding him, watching over him, and bidding him be resigned, and look with eager delight for the day in which he may be permitted to share her joy and happiness. Petrarch was born in Arezzo, in the year 1304; and died at his villa in Arguà, near Padua, in July, 1374. He was found dead in his library, with his head resting on a book. The chair in which he died, and several other relics, are still existing, and are scrupulously preserved from the injuries of time.

LESSON LX.

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS.

To be about a thing.	Star facendo una cosa.
To abound with everything.	Abbondare di ogni cosa.
To absolve from sins.	Assolvere dei peccati.
To abstain from doing a thing.	Astenersi di fare una cosa.
To abuse the power.	Abusare del potere.
To be accompanied by a friend.	Essere accompagnato da un amico.
To be acquainted with one.	Conoscere uno.
To address one.	Favellare ad uno.
To adorn with . . .	Adornare di . . .
To be affected by . . .	Essere intenerito da . . .
Agitated with such a thought.	Agitato da un tal pensiero.
To be amazed at a thing.	Esser sorpreso di una cosa.
To be angry with a person.	Essere sdegnato di una persona.
To answer for a thing.	Render conto di una cosa.
To approve of a thing.	Approvare una cosa.
To argue upon a thing.	Ragionare di una cosa
To be armed with . . .	Armarsi di . . .
To arrive at . . .	Arrivare in . . .
To augment in . . .	Accrescersi di . . .
Bathed with tears.	Bagnato di lagrime
To bear one a grudge.	Voler male ad uno.
To believe in . . .	Dar fede a . . .
To bestow upon . . .	Conferire a . . .
To beware of . . .	Guardarsi di .
To charge one with . . .	Accusare uno di
To be clothed with . . .	Esser vestito di .
To come near to . . .	Avvicinarsi a . . .
To comply with one's wishes.	Conformarsi al volere di uno
To confer on . . .	Conferire a . . .
To confide in . . .	Fidarsi di . . .
To be contented with . . .	Esser contento di . . .
To be copious in . . .	Abbondare di . . .

Covered with . . .	Coperto di . . .
Crowned with . . .	Coronato di . . .
Dazzled with . . .	Abbagliato da . . .
To delight in . . .	Dilettarsi di . . .
To demand of . . .	Domandare a . . .
To be disappointed in . . .	Esser deluso di . . .
To be displeased with . . .	Esser disgustato di . . .
To be enraged at . . .	Essere arrabiato contra . .
To face one.	Far fronte ad uno.
To fall in love with . . .	Innamorarsi di . . .
To feed on . . .	Nutrisi di . . .
To fill with . . .	Empiere di . . .
To fortify with . . .	Munire di . . .
To furnish one's self with . . .	Provvedersi di . . .
To be as good as one's word.	Mantenere la parola.
To have done.	Aver finito.
To hinder from . . .	Impedire di . . .
To inflame one with . . .	Accendere uno di . . .
To kiss one's hand.	Baciare la mano ad uno.
To be laden with . . .	Esser carico di . . .
To laugh at . . .	Beffarsi di . . .
To lavish upon . . .	Prodigare a . . .
To let one know.	Far sapere ad uno.
To load with . . .	Caricare di . . .
To look at a thing.	Guardare una cosa.
To look for a thing.	Cercare una cosa.
To look upon a thing.	Guardare ad una cosa.
To lose sight of one.	Perdere uno di vista.

EXAMPLES.

There is another thing to be done.	Vi è un' altra cosa da farsi.
Money is a mere nothing in comparison with honor.	Il denaro è un mero nulla a confronto dell'onore.
For fear of being too long.	Temendo di dilungarmi troppo.
Man is the only hero in Christianity.	Nel Cristianesimo non vi è altro eroe che l'uomo.
When I reached the summit of the mountain, I knelt and prayed.	Quando giunsi alla vetta del monte, m'inginocchiai e pregai.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

LESSON LXI.

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS.

To take notice of a person.	Salutare una persona.
To be obliged to one for . . .	Essere obbligato ad uno di . . .
To be offended at . . .	Offendersi di . . .
To offer one to . . .	Offrire ad uno di . . .
To omit to . . .	Omettere di . . .
To oppose some one.	Opporsi a qualcuno.
To pardon one for a fault.	Perdonare un fallo ad uno.
To part with . . .	Disfarsi di . . .
To permit one to . . .	Permettere ad uno di . . .
To pillage a city.	Dare il sacco ad una città.
To play upon an instrument.	Sonare uno strumento.
To be pleased with . . .	Compiacersi di . . .
To praise one for an action.	Lodare l'azione di uno.
To present one with a thing.	Donare una cosa ad uno.
To pretend to . . .	Far sembiante di . . .
To prevent one from . . .	Impedire ad uno di . . .
To prey upon a thing.	Divorare una cosa.
To pride one's self in . . .	Gloriarsi di . . .
To profit by . . .	Profittare di . . .
To promise one a thing.	Promettere una cosa ad uno.
To propose to . . .	Proporre di . . .
To provide one's self with . . .	Provvedersi di . . .
To put on a fair face.	Fare buon viso.
To be qualified for . . .	Esser ben atto a . . .
To question a thing.	Dubitare di una cosa.
To receive of . . .	Ricevere da . . .
To recompense for . . .	Ricompensare di . . .
To reflect on . . .	Riflettere a . . .
To refuse to . . .	Ricusare di . . .
To refuse one a thing.	Negare una cosa ad uno.
To rejoice at . . .	Rallegrarsi di . . .
To rely on . . .	Far capitale di . . .
To repent for . . .	Pentirsi di . . .

To require a thing of one.	Richiedere una cosa da uno.
To resemble one.	Somigliare ad uno.
To resound with . . .	Risuonare di . . .
To be respectful to . . .	Essere rispettoso verso . . .
To reward for . . .	Ricompensare di . . .
To be satisfied with . . .	Contentarsi di . . .
To scatter with . . .	Spargere di . . .
To seem to be so.	Parer così.
To set one at liberty.	Dar la libertà ad uno.
To shelter one.	Dar ricovero ad uno.
To sit for one's picture.	Farsi dipingere.
To be smitten with . . .	Essere innamorato di . . .
To be sorry for . . .	Dolersi di . . .
To steal a thing from . . .	Rubare una cosa a . . .
To take example from one.	Imitare uno.
To take from one's hand.	Tor di mano ad uno.
To take one in.	Ingannare uno.
To teach one.	Insegnare ad uno.
To think of . . .	Pensare a . . .
To throw one's self from . . .	Precipitarsi di . . .
To throw one's self on . . .	Lanciarsi a . . .
Tired with . . .	Stanco di . . .
Trample upon a thing.	Calpestare una cosa.
To fall a victim to . . .	Esser la vittima di . . .
To make much of a person.	Far civiltà ad una persona.
To make free with . . .	Non far cerimonie con . . .
To make one laugh.	Dar di che ridere ad uno.
To make a present of a thing.	Donare una cosa.
To marvel at	Maravigliarsi di . . .
To be master of a thing.	Saper perfettamente una cosa.
To meddle with . . .	Impicciarsi di . . .
To meditate on . . .	Meditare di . . .
To take notice of a thing.	Osservare una cosa.

EXERCISE LX.

The spirit which pervades the whole poem of Dante is that of religion and morality. The Divine Comedy is the expression of a man eminently pious and devout, the pouring out of a heart beating with intensity of feeling, to benefit and instruct mankind. The poem is divided into three parts: Hell, Purgatory, and Paradise; in other words, Punishment, Expiation, and Reward. The personages most prominent are three: Dante, Virgil, and Beatrice. The Inferno has nine levels; the Purgatorio, nine degrees; the Paradise, nine spheres. The Inferno is represented as an inverted, hollow, truncated cone, commencing from the surface of the earth with a diameter of three hundred miles, and reaching its centre with a diameter of half a mile. In following the poet through the dark abysses, we find that this is not the place for the cast down, and for those destitute of means to buy a passport to heaven; but, on the contrary, it is destined for those who are really wicked, without excepting cardinals, popes, and personages of high rank. In this first part of the poem, viewed with a scientific eye, the poet limits himself to questions concerning geology and mineralogy; but, what is more important to be noticed, and what, I think, has been overlooked by many, is, that Dante was acquainted with the theory of the centre of gravitation of the earth — a discovery which was, several ages afterwards, attributed to Newton. The mountain of purgatory is placed on the surface of the earth; its form is just the reverse of that of the inferno. Here the sufferers, instead of being attracted to the centre of the earth by the weight of their sins, are patiently toiling in ascending the mountain, and, becoming gradually lighter by repentance and expiation, they reach the summit, where they find the terrestrial paradise. Here the poet, left by Virgil, — representing human reason, — finds a new guide in his Beatrice, symbolizing Divine Wisdom. The Paradise of Dante is based on the system of Ptolemeus, that the earth was the nucleus or centre of the universe. Here the poet, true model of a man eminently religious and devout, felt the impossibility of our limited intelligence to define the Supreme Being; consequently, after having soared upon the wings of an exalted imagination from sphere to sphere, and described the various degrees of blessedness of the happy beings, which he could detect by the gradual increase of rapidity in motion, and of intensity in splendor, he reaches the source of every light and motion, and bows down before the Divinity in wonder and amazement.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

CONDITIONAL.

Avrei or avria .	Sarei, saria, p. fora.
Avresti.	Saresti.
Avrebbe or avria .	Sarebbe, saria, p. fora.
Avremmo.	Saremmo.
Avreste.	Sareste.
Avrebbero or avriano .	Sarebbero, sariano, p. fòrano.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

Che io abbia.	Che io sia.
Che tu abbia.	Che tu sii, or sia.
Che egli abbia.	Che egli sia.
Che noi abbiamo.	Che noi siamo.
Che voi abbiate.	Che voi siate.
Che eglino abbiano	Che eglino siano.

IMPERFECT.

Se io avessi.	Se io fossi.
Se tu avessi.	Se tu fossi.
Se egli avesse.	Se egli fosse.
Se noi avessimo.	Se noi fossimo.
Se voi aveste.	Se voi foste.
Se eglino avessero.	Se eglino fossero.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Abbi.	Sii or sia.
Abbia.	Sia.
Abbiamo.	Siamo.
Abbiate.	Siate.
Abbiano.	Siano or sieno.

N. B. — The compound tenses of these auxiliary verbs are formed by adding the past participle of their own verbs to the simple tenses.

Io ho avuto,	Io sono stato,
Io aveva avuto,	Io era stato,
Io avrei avuto,	Io sarei stato,

REGULAR VERBS.

First Conjugation.

Second Conjugation.

Third Conjugation.

AMARE, TO LOVE. TEMERE, TO FEAR. PARTIRE, TO DEPART

GERUND.

Am-ando, loving. Tem-endo, fearing. Part-endo, departing.

PAST PARTICIPLE.

Am-ato, loved. Tem-uto, feared. Part-ito, departed

PRESENT PARTICIPLE.

Am-ante, loving. Tem-ente, fearing. Part-ente, departing

INDICATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

Am-o.	Tem-o.	Part-o
Am-i.	Tem-i.	Part-i.
Am-a.	Tem-e.	Part-e.
Am-iamo.	Tem-iamo.	Part-iamo
Am-ate.	Tem-ete.	Part-ite.
Am-ano.	Tem-ono.	Part-ono

IMPERFECT.

Am-ava.	Tem-eva or èa.	Part-iva.
Am-avi.	Tem-evi.	Part-ivi.
Am-ava.	Tem-eva or èa.	Part-iva.
Am-avàmo.	Tem-evàmo.	Part-ivàmo.
Am-avàte.	Tem-evàte.	Part-ivàte.
Am-àvano.	Tem-èvano or èano.	Part-ivano.

PERFECT.

Am-ai.	Tem-èi or ètti.	Part-ii.
Am-asti.	Tem-èsti.	Part-isti.
Am-ò.	Tem-è or ètte.	Part-ì.
Am-àmmo.	Tem-èmmo.	Part-ìmmo.
Am-àste.	Tem-èste.	Part-ìste.
Am-àrono	Tem-èrono or ettero.	Part-irono.

FUTURE.

Am-erò.	Tem-erò.	Part-irò.
Am-erai.	Tem-erai.	Part-irai.
Am-erà.	Tem-erà.	Part-irà.
Am-erèmo.	Tem-erèmo.	Part-irèmo.
Am-erète.	Tem-erète.	Part-irète.
Am-erànno.	Tem-erànno.	Part-irànno.

CONDITIONAL.

Am-erèi or eria.	Tem-erèi or eria.	Part-irèi or iria.
Am-erèsti.	Tem-erèsti.	Part-irèsti.
Am-erèbbe or eria.	Tem-erèbbe or eria.	Part-irèbbe or iria
Am-erèmmo.	Tem-erèmmo.	Part-irèmmo.
Am-erèste.	Tem-erèste.	Part-irèste.
Am-erèbbero.	Tem-erèbbero.	Part-irèbbero

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

Che io am-i.	Tem-a.	Part-a.
Che tu am-i.	Tem-a.	Part-a.
Che egli am-i.	Tem-a.	Part-a.
Che noi am-iàmo.	Tem-iàmo.	Part-iàmo.
Che voi am-iàte.	Tem-iàte.	Part-iàte.
Che eglino àm-ino.	Tèm-ano.	Pàrt-ano.

IMPERFECT.

Se io am-àssi.	Tem-èssi.	Part-ìssi.
Se tu am-àssi.	Tem-èssi.	Part-ìssi.
Se egli am-àsse.	Tem-èsse.	Part-isse.
Se noi am-àssimo	Tem-èssimo.	Part-ìssimo.
Se voi am-àste.	Tem-èste.	Part-ìste.
Se egli am-àssero.	Tem-èssero.	Part-ìssero.

IMPERATIVE.

Am-a.	Tem-i.	Part-i.
Am-i.	Tem-a.	Part-a.
Am-iàmo.	Tem-iàmo.	Part-iàmo.
Am-àte.	Tem-ète.	Part-ìte.
Àm-ino.	Tèm-ano.	Pàrt-ano.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

FUTURE.

Andrò.	Darò.	Farò.	Starò.
Andrai	Darai.	Farai.	Starai.
Andrà.	Darà.	Farà.	Starà.
Andremo.	Daremo.	Faremo.	Staremo.
Andrete.	Darete.	Farete.	Starete.
Andranno.	Daranno.	Faranno.	Staranno.

CONDITIONAL.

Andrei.	Darei p. daria.	Farei, p. faria.	Starei p. staria
Andresti.	Daresti.	Faresti.	Staresti.
Andrebbe.	Darebbe.	Farebbe.	Starebbe.
Andremmo.	Daremmo.	Faremmo.	Staremmo.
Andreste.	Dareste.	Fareste.	Stareste.
Andrebbero.	Darebbero.	Farebbero.	Starebbero.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT.

Vada.	Dia.	Faccia.	Stia.
Vada.	Dia.	Faccia.	Stia.
Vada.	Dia.	Faccia.	Stia.
Andiamo.	Diamo.	Facciamo.	Stiamo.
Andiate.	Diate.	Facciate.	Stiate.
Vadano.	Diano.	Facciano.	Stiano.

IMPERFECT.

Andassi.	Dassi.	Facessi.	Stassi or stessi.
Andassi.	Dassi.	Facessi.	Stassi or stessi.
Andasse.	Dasse.	Facesse.	Stasse or stesse.
Andassimo.	Dassimo.	Facessimo.	Stassimo or stessimo.
Andaste.	Daste.	Faceste.	Staste or steste.
Andassero.	Dassero.	Facessero.	Stassero or stessero.

☞ The following compound verbs are also irregular:

Riandare, to go again.

Addarsi, to addict.

Ridare, to give again.

Ristare, to stop.

Distare, to be distant.

Soprastare, to delay, to temporize.

VERBS OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION IN WHICH THE TERMINATION ISCO IS INDISPENSABLE

Abbellire,	Ammorbidire,	Avvilire,	Digerire,
Abbonire,	Ammortire,	Avvizzare,	Diminuire,
Abbrividire,	Ammutare,	Balbutire,	Disasprire,
Abbronzire,	Ammutolare,	Bandire,	Disseppellire,
Abbrostolare,	Anneghittire,	Benedire,*	Disfavorire,
Abbruttire,	Annerire,	Bianchire,	Disfinire,
Abolire,	Annichilire,	Blandire,	Disgradire,
Abortire,	Annobilire,	Brandire,	Disimpedire,
Accalorire,	Apparire,*	Brunire,	Disparire,*
Accanire,	Appassire,	Candire,	Dispartire,
Accolorire,	Appetire,	Capire,	Disruvidire,
Accudire,	Appiccinire,	Chiarire,	Distribuire,
Acetire,	Appigrire,	Circuire,	Disubbidire,
Addolcire,	Ardire,†	Colorire,	Disvigorire,
Aderire,	Arricchire,	Colpire,	Disunire,
Affievolire,	Arrossire,	Comparire,*	Erudire,
Affortire,	Arrossirsi,	Compartire,	Esaudire,
Affralire,	Arrostire,	Compatire,	Esaurire,‡
Aggrandire,	Arrozzire,	Concepire,	Esibire,
Agguerrire,	Arrugginire,	Condire,	Esinanire,
Agire,	Arruvidire,	Conferire,	Fallire,
Alleggerire,	Assalire,*	Construire,	Fastidire,
Allenire,	Asserire,	Contribuire,	Favorire,
Allestire,	Assopire,	Contrire,	Ferire,
Amarire,	Assordire,	Costruire,	Finire,
Ambire,	Assortire,	Custodire,	Fiorire,
Ammanire,	Assoggettire,	Deferire,	Fluire,
Ammansire,	Atterrire,	Definire,	Fornire,
Ammattire,	Attribuire,	Demolire,	Fruire,
Ammollire,	Attristire,	Differire,	Garantire,
Ammonire,	Attutire,	Diffinire,	Garrire,

* See list of irregular verbs.

† Ardire, to dare, borrows from osare, to dare, the words osiamo, osiate, osando because ardiamo, ardiate, ardendo, belong to the verb ardere, to burn.

‡ Past participle esaurito and esausto.

Gestire,	Imbruttire,	Incalvire,	Infievolire,
Ghermire,	Immagrire,	Incancherire,	Infiingardire,
Gioire,*	Immalinconire,	Incanutire,	Infistolire,
Gradire,	Immaltivagire,	Incaparbire,	Influire,
Grancire,	Immarcire,	Incappocchire,	Infallire,
Granire,	Immattire,	Incaponire,	Infortire,
Gremire,	Impadronire,	Incapriccire,	Infracidire,
Grugnire,	Impallidire,	Incarognire,	Infragilire,
Guaire,	Impaurire,	Incatarrire,	Infralire,
Gualcire,	Impazientire,	Incatozzolire,	Infrigidire,
Guarire,	Impedire,	Incattivire,	Ingagliardire,
Guarnire,	Impervertire,	Incenerire,	Ingelosire,
Illaidire,	Impiccolire,	Incerconire,	Ingentilire,
Illanguidire,	Impidocchire,	Inciprignire,	Ingerirsi,
Illinguidire,	Impigrire,	Incivilire,	Ingiallire,
Imbaldanzire,	Impoltronire,	Incodardire,	Ingiovanire,
Imbaldire,	Impostemire,	Incollerire,	Ingobbire,
Imbalsimire,	Impoverire,	Incoragire,	Ingrandire,
Imbandire,	Improsperire,	Incrudelire,	Inlividire,
Imbarberire,†	Impuntire,	Incrudire,	Innuzzolire,
Imbarbogire,	Imputridire,	Indebolire,	Inorgogliare,
Imbastardire,	Impuzzolire,	Indocilire,	Inorridire,
Imbastire,	Inacerbire,	Indolcire,	Inquisire,
Imbellire,	Inacetire,	Indolentire,	Insalvaticcare,
Imbestialire,	Inacidire,	Indolenzire,	Insanire,
Imbianchire,	Inacutire,	Indurire,	Inschiavire,
Imbiondire,	Inagrire,	Inerire,	Inserire,
Imbizzarrire,	Inalidire,	Infarcire,	Insignire,
Imbolsire,	Inanimire,	Infastidire,	Insignorire,
Imbonire,	Inaridire,	Infellonire,	Insipidire,
Imbottire,	Inasinire,	Infemminire,	Insolentire,
Imbezzacchire,	Inaspire,	Inferire,	Insollire,
Imbricconire,	Inavarire,	Inferocire,	Insordire,
Imbrunire,	Incagnire,	Infervorire,	Insospettire,
Imbruschire,	Incallire,	Infiacchire,	Insozzire,

* Defective in the first and second persons plural of the two presents.

† Often written imbarbarire.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Sfavorire,	Soprassalire,*	Statuire,	Suggerire,
Sfinire,	Sortire,†	Stecchire	Supplire,
Sfornire,	Sostituire,	Sterilire,	Tradire,
Sgarire,	Sparire,*	Stizzire,	Traferire,
Sghermire,	Spartire,	Stolidire,	Tramortire,
Sgomentire,	Spaurire,	Stordire,	Trasferire,
Sgradire,	Spedire,	Stormire,	Trasgredire,
Smagrire,	Spervertire,	Stramortire,	Trasparire,*
Smaltire,	Spessire,	Stremenzire,	Trasricchire,
Smarrire,	Squittire,	Stupidire,	Ubidire,
Sminuire,	Stabilire,	Stupire,	Unire.
Smunire,	Sruginire,	Svanire,	Usucapire,
Sopire,	Starnutire,	Svelenire,	Vagire.

* See list of irregular verbs.

† Sortire, to draw lots, has the present in isco ; but sortire, to go out, is a regular verb.

LIST OF VERBS OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION, WITH THE PRESENT ENDING BOTH IN O AND ISCO.

Abborrire,	Empire,*	Offrire,
Adempire,*	Forbire,	Offerire,
Applaudire,	Impazzire,	Pervertire,
Assaporire,	Inghiottire,	Riforbire,
Assorbire,	Inverdire,	Rinverdire,
Avvertire,	Investire,	Rinvestire,
Bollire,†	Lambire,	Ruggire,§
Carpire,	Languire,	Schernire,
Compire,*	Mentire,	Soffrire,
Convertire,‡	Muggire,§	Sovvertire,‡
Disinghiottire,	Nudrire,	Tossire,
Divertire,	Nutrire,	Travestire.

* The present in o is taken from the verbs adempiere, compiere, empiere, and makes adempio, compio, empio.

† Bollire, to boil, makes bogliamo, bogliate ; because bolliamo, bolliate, belong to the verb bollare, to seal.

‡ We may also say conversi, converso ; souversi, souverso.

§ Better, muggisco, ruggisco, muggiscono, ruggiscono.

|| The past participle is offerto, sofferto.

LIST OF IRREGULAR VERBS.

 Verbs marked with an * will be found in a separate list.

Termin.	Infín.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
èndere.	Accendere,	Accesi,	Reg.	Acceso.
	Appendere,	Appesi,	Reg.	Appeso.
	Apprendere,	Appresi,	Reg.	Appreso.
	Arrendere,	Arresi, r.	Reg.	Arreso.
	Attendere,	Attesi,	Reg.	Atteso.
	Ascendere,	Ascesi,	Reg.	Asceso.
	Comprendere,	Compresi,	Reg.	Compreso
	Condiscendere,	Condiscesi,	Reg.	Condisceso.
	Contendere,	Contesi,	Reg.	Conteso.
	Difendere,	Difesi, r.	Reg.	Difeso.
	Disapprendere,	Disappresi,	Reg.	Disapprese
	Discendere,	Discesi,	Reg.	Disceso.
	Distendere,	Distesi,	Reg.	Disteso.
	Estendere,	Estesi,	Reg.	Esteso.
	Fendere,	Fessi, r.	Reg.	Fesso, r.
	Imprendere,	Impresi,	Reg.	Impreso.
	Incendere,	Incesi,	Reg.	Inceso.
	Intendere,	Intesi,	Reg.	Inteso.
	Intraprendere,	Intrapresi,	Reg.	Intrapreso.
	Offendere,	Offesi,	Reg.	Offeso.
	Prendere,	Presi,	Reg.	Preso.
	Pretendere,	Pretesi,	Reg.	Preteso.
	Protendere,	Protesi,	Reg.	Proteso.
	Prostendere,	Protesi,	Reg.	Proteso.
	Rendere,	Resi, r.	Reg.	Reso.
	Riaccendere,	Riaccesi,	Reg.	Riacceso.
	Riprendere,	Ripresi,	Reg.	Ripreso.
	Scendere,	Scesi,	Reg.	Sceso.
	Scoscendere,	Scoscesi,	Reg.	Scosceso.
	Soprapprendere,	Soprappresi	Reg.	Soprappreso.
	Sopraintendere,	Sopraintesi,	Reg.	Soprainteso.
	Spendere,	Spesi,	Reg.	Speso.
	Sopraspendere,	Sopraspesi,	Reg.	Sopraspeso.
	Sorprendere,	Sorpresi,	Reg.	Sorpreso.

Termin.	Infìn.	Past.	Future.	Past pa .
	Stendere,	Stesi,	Reg.	Steso.
	Tendere,	Tesi,	Reg.	Teso.
	Trascendere,	Trascesi,	Reg.	Trasceso
	Vilipendere,	Vilipesi,	Reg.	Vilipeso
-urre.	Addurre, ^a	Addussi,	Addurrò,	Addotto.
	Indurre, ^a	Indussi,	Indurrò,	Indotto.
	Dedurre, ^a	Dedussi,	Dedurrò,	Dedotto.
	Condurre, ^a	Condussi,	Condurrò,	Condotto.
	Produrre, ^a	Produssi,	Produrrò,	Prodotto.
-arire.	Apparire,*	Apparvi, r.	Reg.	Apparso, r.
	Comparire,†	Comparvi,	Reg.	Comparso.
	Disparire,	Disparvi,	Reg.	Disparito.
	Riapparire,	Riapparvi, r.	Reg.	Riapparso, r.
	Sparire,	Sparvi, r.	Reg.	Sparito.
	Trasparire,	Trasparvi, r.	Reg.	Trasparito.
-prire.	Aprire,‡	Apersi, r.	Reg.	Aperto.
	Coprire,	Copersi, r.	Reg.	Coperto.
	Discoprire,	Discopersi, r.	Reg.	Discoperto
	Ricoprire,	Ricopersi, r.	Reg.	Ricoperto
	Scoprire,	Scopersi, r.	Reg.	Scoperto
ardere.	Ardere,§	Arsi,	Reg.	Arso.
	Riardere,§	Riarsi,	Reg.	Riarso.
-istere.	Assistere,	Assist-ei or etti,	Reg.	Assistito.
	Esistere,	Esist-ei or etti,	Reg.	Esistito.
-umere.	Assumere,	Assunsi,	Reg.	Assunto.
	Consumere,	Consunsi,	Reg.	Consunto.
	Desumere,	Desunsi,	Reg.	Desunto.
	Presumere,	Presunsi, r.	Reg.	Presunto.
	Riassumere,	Riassunsi,	Reg.	Riassunto.
-dire.	Dire, ^a	Dissi,	Dirò,	Detto.
	Bendire, ^a	Bendissi,	Bendirò,	Bendetto.
	Benedire, ^a	Bened-issi or ii,	Reg.	Benedetto.
	Contraddire, ^a	Contraddissi,	Reg.	Contraddetto.

* Appare and appaiono may be used instead of apparisce, appariscono.

† Compaio and compaiono are used instead of comparisco, compariscono

‡ Petrarch has used opra instead of apra.

§ With the auxiliary verbs avere and essere, in its compound tenses

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Termin.	Inf.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
-òscere.	Conoscere, Riconoscere, Sconoscere,	Conobbi, Riconobbi, Sconobbi,	Reg. Reg. Reg.	Conosciuto. Riconosciuto. Sconosciuto.
-òrrere.	Correre, Accorrere, Concorrere, Decorrere, Discorrere, Incorrere, Occorrere, Percorrere, Precorrere, Ricorrere, Soccorrere, Trascorrere,	Corsi, Accorsi, Concorsi, Decorsi, Discorsi, Incorsi, Occorsi, Percorsi, Precorsi, Ricorsi, Soccorsi, Trascorsi,	Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg.	Corso. Accorso. Concorso. Decorso. Discorso. Incorso. Occorso. Percorso. Precorso. Ricorso. Soccorso. Trascorso.
-escere.	Crescere, Accrescere, Decrescere, Increscere, Mescere, Rincrescere,	Crebbi, Accrebbi, Decrebbi, Increbbi, Mescei, Rincrebbi,	Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg.	Cresciuto. Accresciuto. Decresciuto. Incresciuto. Misto. Rincresciuto
-ucire.	Cucire, ^a Scucire, ^a Sdrucire, ^a	Cucii, Scucii, Sdrucii,	Reg. Reg. Reg.	Cucito. Scucito. Sdrucito.
-uocere.	Cuocere,* Concuocere, Nuocere, Ricucocere,	Cossi, Concossi, Nocqui, Ricossi,	Cocerò, Concocerò, Nocerò, Ricocerò,	Cotto. Concotto. Nociuto. Ricotto.
-ìgere.	Negligere, Dirigere, Erigere, Esigere,	Neglessi, Diressi, Eressi, Esigei,	Reg. Reg. Reg. Reg.	Negletto. Diretto. Eretto. Esatto.
-ìnguere.	Distinguere, Estinguere,	Distinsi, Estinsi,	Reg. Reg.	Distinto. Estinto.

* Verbs with the diphthong uo omit the u whenever the accent falls on any other vowel but the o of this diphthong, or when followed by a double consonant.

Termin.	Infìn.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
-ovère.	Dovere, ^a	Dovei or etti,	Dovrò,	Dovuto.
-òndere.	Fondere,	Fusi, r.	Reg.	Fuso, r.
	Confondere,	Confusi,	Reg.	Confuso.
	Ascondere,	Ascosi,	Reg.	Ascoso.
	Diffondere,	Diffusi,	Reg.	Diffuso.
	Effondere,	Effusi,	Reg.	Effuso.
	Infondere,	Infusi,	Reg.	Infuso.
	Rifondere,	Rifusi,	Reg.	Rifuso.
	Sconfondere,	Sconfusi,	Reg.	Sconfuso.
	Trasfondere,	Trasfusi,	Reg.	Trasfuso.
	Nascondere,	Nascosi,	Reg.	Nascosto.
-èllere.	Espellere,*	Espulsi,	Reg.	Espulso.
	Divellere, ^a	Divelsi,	Reg.	Divelto.
	Impellere,*	Impulsi,	Reg.	Impulso.
	Repellere,*	Repulsi,	Reg.	Repulso.
	Compellere,*	Compulsi,	Reg.	Compulso.
	Convellere,*	Convulsi,	Reg.	Convulso.
	Svellere, ^a	Svelsi,	Reg.	Svelto.
-èrvere.	Fervere,	Fervei,	Reg.	Def.
-ièdere.	Fiedere,†	Fiedeì,	Def.	Def.
-gìre.	Gire, ^a	Gii,	Reg.	Gito or Ito.
-àdere.	Invadere,	Invasi,	Reg.	Invaso.
	Radere,	Rasi, r.	Reg.	Raso.
-ìggere.	Figgere,	Fissi or fisi,	Reg.	Fittò or Fisso.
	Affiggere,	Affissi,	Reg.	Affisso.
	Configgere,	Confissi,	Reg.	Confitto.
	Crocifiggere,	Crocifissi,	Reg.	Crocifisso.
	Prefiggere,	Prefissi,	Reg.	Prefisso.
	Sconfiggere,	Sconfissi,	Reg.	Sconfitto.
	Traffiggere,	Traffissi,	Reg.	Trafitto.
	Affliggere,	Afflissi,	Reg.	Afflitto.
	Friggere,	Frissi,	Reg.	Fritto.
	Soffriggere,	Soffrissi,	Reg.	Soffritto.

* Of but little use in the language.

† Fiedere is defective in the first and second persons plural of the indicative and subjunctive present, and but little used.

Termin.	Infin.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
-ungere.	Giungere,*	Giunsi,	Reg.	Giunto.
	Aggiungere,	Aggiunsi,	Reg.	Aggiunto.
	Congiungere,	Congiunsi,	Reg.	Congiunto.
	Ingiungere,	Ingiunsi,	Reg.	Ingiunto.
	Raggiungere,	Raggiunsi,	Reg.	Raggiunto.
	Soggiungere,	Soggiunsi,	Reg.	Soggiunto.
-idere.	Ridere,	Risi,	Reg.	Riso.
	Arridere,	Arrisi,	Reg.	Arriso.
	Deridere,	Derisi,	Reg.	Deriso.
	Dividere,	Divisi,	Reg.	Diviso.
	Elidere,	Elisi,	Reg.	Eliso.
	Intridere,	Intrisi,	Reg.	Intriso.
	Irridere,	Irrisi,	Reg.	Irriso.
	Sorridere,	Sorrisi,	Reg.	Sorriso.
	Suddividere,	Suddivisi,	Reg.	Suddiviso.
-èggere.	Leggere,	Lessi,	Reg.	Letto.
	Eleggere,	Elessi,	Reg.	Eletto.
	Correggere,	Corressi,	Reg.	Corretto.
	Proteggere,	Protessi,	Reg.	Protetto.
	Reggere,	Ressi,	Reg.	Retto.
	Rileggere,	Rilessi,	Reg.	Riletto.
	Sorreggere,	Sorressi,	Reg.	Sorretto.
	Scorreggere,	Scorressi,	Reg.	Scorretto.
-èrgere.	Ergere,	Ersi,	Reg.	Def.
	Emergere,	Emersi,	Reg.	Emerso.
	Immergere,	Immersi,	Reg.	Immerso.
	Dimergere,	Dimersi,	Reg.	Dimerso.
	Sommergere,	Sommersi,	Reg.	Sommerso.
	Tergere,	Tersi,	Reg.	Terso.
	Aspergere,	Aspersi,	Reg.	Asperso.
	Astergere,	Astersi,	Reg.	Asterso.
	Detergere,	Detersi,	Reg.	Deterso.
-èltere.	Mettere,	Misi,	Reg.	Messo.
	Ammettere,	Ammisi,	Reg.	Ammesso.
	Annettere,	Annessi, r.	Reg.	Annesso.
	Commettere,	Commisi,	Reg.	Commesso.

* Of but little use in the language. — Verbs ending in ungere often transpose the ng when the following vowel is e or i, as, giugne, giugni, or giunge, giungi.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Termin.	Infìn	Past.	Future.	Past part.
	Frangere,	Fransi,	Reg.	Franto.
-ingere.	Pingere,	Pinsi,	Reg.	Pinto.
	Dipingere,	Dipinsi,	Reg.	Dipinto.
	Attingere,	Attinsi,	Reg.	Attinto.
	Tingere,	Tinsi,	Reg.	Tinto.
	Ritingere,	Ritinsi,	Reg.	Ritinto.
	Stringere,	Strinsi,	Reg.	Stretto.
	Fingere,	Finsi,	Reg.	Finto.
	Infingere,	Infinsi,	Reg.	Infinto.
	Cingere,	Cinsi,	Reg.	Cinto.
	Accingere,	Accinsi,	Reg.	Accinto.
	Incingere,	Incinsi,	Reg.	Incinto.
	Ricingere,	Ricinsi,	Reg.	Ricinto.
	Scingere,	Scinsi,	Reg.	Scinto.
	Spingere,	Spinsi,	Reg.	Spinto.
	Respingere,	Respinsi,	Reg.	Respinto.
	Sospingere,	Sospinsi,	Reg.	Sospinto.
	Astringere,	Astrinsi,	Reg.	Astretto.
	Costringere,	Costrinsi,	Reg.	Costretto.
	Distringere,	Distrinsi,	Reg.	Distretto.
	Ristringere,	Ristrinsi,	Reg.	Ristretto.
-overe.	Piovere,*	Piove, r.	Reg.	Piovuto.
-otere.	Potere, ^a	Potei,	Potrò,	Potuto.
-orgere.	Porgere,	Porsi,	Porgerò,	Porto.
	Accorgere,	Accorsi,	Reg.	Accorto.
	Assorgere,	Assorsi,	Reg.	Assorto.
	Risorgere,	Risorsi,	Reg.	Risorto.
	Scorgere,	Scorsi,	Reg.	Scorto.
	Sorgere,	Sorsi,	Reg.	Sorto.
-orre.	Porre, ^a	Posi,	Porrò,	Posto.
	Comporre, ^a	Composi,	Comporrò,	Composto.
	Opporre, ^a	Opposi,	Opporrò,	Opposto.
	Scomporre, ^a	Scomposi,	Scomporrò,	Scomposto.
	Interporre, ^a	Interposi,	Interporrò,	Interposto.
-indere.	Scindere,	Scinsi,	Reg.	Scinto.

* Defective, used only in the third persons.

Termin.	Infìn.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
	Discindere,	Discinsi,	Reg.	Discinto.
	Rescindere,	Rescinsi,	Reg.	Rescinto.
-flettere.	Riflettere,	Riflettei,	Reg.	Riflettuto.
	Inflettere,	Inflettei,	Reg.	Inflesso.
	Circonflettere,	Circonflettei,	Reg.	Circonflesso
	Genuflettere,	Genuflettei,	Reg.	Genuflesso.
-ùlgere.	Rifulgere,	Rifulsi,	Reg.	Def.
-ùcere.	Rilucere,	Rilussi, r.	Reg.	Def.
-anère.	Rimanere, ^a	Rimasi,	Rimarrò,	Rimasto.
-òndere.	Rispondere,	Risposi,	Reg.	Risposto.
-òdere.	Rodere,	Rosi,	Reg.	Roso.
	Corrodere,	Corrosi,	Reg.	Corroso.
-òmpere.	Rompere,	Ruppi,	Reg.	Rotto.
	Corrompere,	Corruppi,	Reg.	Corrotto.
	Dirompere,	Diruppi,	Reg.	Dirotto.
	Interrompere,	Interruppi,	Reg.	Interrotto.
	Prorompere,	Proruppi,	Reg.	Prorotto.
-alìre.	Salire, ^a	Salii,	Reg.	Salito.
	Assalire, ^a	Assalii,	Reg.	Assalito.
	Soprassalire, ^a	Soprassalii,	Reg.	Soprassalito
	Risalire, ^a	Risalii,	Reg.	Risalito.
-apère.	Sapere, ^a	Seppi,	Saprò,	Saputo.
-ègliere.	Scegliere, ^a	Scelsi,	Reg.	Scelto.
	Prescegliere, ^a	Prescelsi,	Reg.	Prescelto.
	Trascegliere, ^a	Trascelsi,	Reg.	Trascelto.
-ògliere.	Sciogliere, ^a	Sciolsi,	Reg.	Sciolto.
	Disciogliere, ^a	Disciolsi,	Reg.	Disciolto.
	Prosciogliere, ^a	Prosciolsi,	Reg.	Prosciolto.
-ivere.	Scrivere,	Scrissi,	Reg.	Scritto.
	Ascrivere,	Ascrissi,	Reg.	Ascritto.
	Coscrivere,	Coscrissi,	Reg.	Coscritto.
	Descrivere,	Descrissi,	Reg.	Descritto.
	Iscrivere,	Iscrissi,	Reg.	Iscritto.
	Prescrivere,	Prescrissi,	Reg.	Prescritto.
	Proscrivere,	Proscrissi,	Reg.	Proscritto.
	Riscrivere,	Riscrissi,	Reg.	Riscritto.
	Soscrivere,	Soscrissi,	Reg.	Soscritto.

Termin.	Infìn.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
	Sottoscrivere,	Sottoscrissi,	Reg.	Sottoscritto.
-uòtere.	Scuotere,	Scossi,	Scoterò,	Scosso.
	Percuotere,	Percossi,	Percuoterò,	Percosso.
	Riscuotere,	Riscossi,	Riscuoterò,	Riscosso.
-eguire.	Seguire, ^a	Seguii,	Reg.	Seguito.
	Conseguire, ^a	Conseguui,	Reg.	Conseguito.
	Proseguire, ^a	Proseguui,	Reg.	Proseguito.
	Susseguire, ^a	Susseguui,	Reg.	Susseguito.
-olère.	Dolere, ^a	Dolsi,	Dorrò,	Doluto.
	Solere,*	Def.	Def.	Solito.
	Volere, ^a	Volli,	Vorrò,	Voluto.
-àrgere.	Spargere,	Sparsi,	Reg.	Sparso.
-ègnere.	Spegnere, ^a	Spensi,	Reg.	Spento.
-ùggere.	Struggere,	Strussi,	Reg.	Strutto,
	Distruggere,	Distrussi,	Reg.	Distrutto
-enère.	Tenere, ^a	Tenni,	Terrò,	Tenuto.
	Appartenere, ^a	Appartenni,	Apparterrò,	Appartenuto.
	Attenere, ^a	Attenni,	Atterrò,	Attenuto.
	Contenere, ^a	Contenni,	Conterrò,	Contenuto.
	Ditenere, ^a	Ditenni,	Diterrò,	Ditenuto.
	Mantenere, ^a	Mantenni,	Manterrò,	Mantenuto.
	Ottenere, ^a	Ottenni,	Otterrò,	Ottenuto.
	Ritenere, ^a	Ritenni,	Riterrò,	Ritenuto.
	Sostenere, ^a	Sostenni,	Sosterrò,	Sostenuto.
-ògliere.	Cogliere,†	Colsi,	Coglierò,	Colto.‡
	Accogliere,	Accolsi,	Accoglierò,	Accolto.
	Ricogliere,	Ricolsi,	Ricoglierò,	Ricolto.
	Togliere,	Tolsi,	Torrò, r.	Tolto.
	Distogliere,	Distolsi,	Distorrò,	Distolto.
	Ritogliere,	Ristolsi,	Ritorrò,	Ritolto.
-òrcere.	Torcere,	Torsi,	Reg.	Torto.
	Attorcere,	Attorsi,	Reg.	Attorto.
	Contorcere,	Contorsi,	Reg.	Contorto.
	Distorcere,	Distorsi,	Reg.	Distorto.

* In the past and future it makes fui solito, sarò solito, etc.

† Often written corre.

‡ The o of this past participle has a short sound. Cólto is used in poetry for soltivato, educated.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Termin.	Infìn.	Past.	Future.	Past part.
	Soprassedere, ^a	Soprassedei,	Soprassedrò,	Soprasseduto
-enire.	Venire, ^a	Venni,	Verrò,	Venuto.
	Avvenire, ^a	Avvenni,	Avverrò,	Avvenuto.
	Addivenire, ^a	Addivenni,	Addiverrò,	Addivenuto.
	Convenire, ^a	Convenni,	Converrò,	Convenuto.
	Divenire, ^a	Divenni,	Diverrò,	Divenuto.
	Prevenire, ^a	Prevenni,	Preverrò,	Prevenuto.
	Provenire, ^a	Provenni,	Proverrò,	Provenuto.
	Rinvenire, ^a	Rinvenni,	Rinverrò,	Rinvenuto.
	Sopravvenire, ^a	Sopravvenni,	Sopravverrò,	Sopravvenuto.
	Sovvenire, ^a	Sovvenni,	Sovverrò,	Sovvenuto.
-incere.	Vincere,	Vinsi,	Reg.	Vinto.
	Avvincere,	Avvinsi,	Reg.	Avvinto.
	Convincere,	Convinsi,	Reg.	Convinto.
-uscire.	Uscire, ^a	Uscii,	Reg.	Uscito.
	Riuscire, ^a	Riuscii,	Reg.	Riuscito.
-òlgere.	Volgere,	Volsi,	Reg.	Volto.
	Avvolgere,	Avvolsi,	Reg.	Avvolto.
	Involgere,	Involsi,	Reg.	Involto.
	Svolgere,	Svolsi,	Reg.	Svolto.
	Travolgere,	Travolsi,	Reg.	Travolto.

VERBS OF THE SECOND CONJUGATION WITH THE ACCENT ON THE LAST SYLLABLE BUT ONE.

Calere,	Godere,	Sedere,	Tenero,
Cadere,	Parere,	Solere,	Valere,
Dolere,	Piacere,	Suadere,	Vedere,
Dovere,	Potere,	Tacere,	Volere.
Giacere,	Sapere,	Temere,

REGULAR VERBS OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION.

Consentire,	Dormire,	Pentirsi,	Sdrucire,	Vestire
Conventire,	Fuggire,	Seguire,	Servire,
Cucire,	Partire,	Sentire,	Sortire,

With their compounds ; as, scucire, proseguire.

LIST OF EXCEPTIONAL IRREGULARITIES OF VERBS.

Addurre, formerly adducere.

Present Ind. Adduco, adduci, adduce, adduciamo, adducete, adducono.

Imperfect. Adduceva, adducevi, adduceva, adducevamo, adducevate, adducevano.

Indurre, like addurre.

Dedurre, like addurre.

Condurre, like addurre.

Produrre, like addurre.

Dire, formerly dicere.

Present Ind. Dico, dici, dice, diciamo, dite, dicono.

Imperfect. Diceva

Bendire, like dire.

Benedire. Two present, one in isco, the other like dire.

Contraddire, like benedire.

Maldire, like dire.

Maledire, like dire.

Predire, like dire.

Bere, forms the present and imperfect, from bevere. Bevo, bevi . .

Beveva, bevevi . . .

Calere, defective verb, used only in the third persons; as, cale, caleva, calse, caglia, calesse.

Valere, Pres. Ind. Valgo, vali, vale, valiamo, valetе, valgono, or vagliono.

Prevalere, like valere.

Riedere, defective verb, used only in the present indicative and subjunctive, and in the imperfect.

Cucire, Pres. Ind. Cucio, cuci, cuce, cuciamo, cucite, cuciono.

Scucire, like cucire.

Sdrucire, like cucire.

Dovere, Pres. Ind. Devo, or debbo, devi, deve, dobbiamo, dovete, devono.

Pres. Sub. Debba, debba, debba, dobbiamo, dobbiate, debbano or devano.

In poetry, it is used, deggio, dei, dee, deggiamo; denno, deggiono, or deono.

Svellere, Pr. Ind. Svello or svelgo, svelli, svelle, svelliamo, svellete, svellono, or svelgono.

Divellere, like svellere.

Gire, Def. Verb. It has only giamo, giate, gite, in the two presents and imperative. It may be supplied by the Latin verb vadere; as, vado, vai, va, giamo, gite, vanno.

Morire, Pres. Ind. Muoro or muoio, muori, muore, moriamo, morite, muorono or muoiono.

Parere, Pres. Ind. Paio, pari, pare, pariamo, parete, parono or paiono.

Piacere, Pres. Ind. Piaccio, piaci, piace, piacciamo, piacete, piacciono.

Pres. Sub. Piaccia, piaccia, piaccia, piacciamo, piacciate, piacciano.

Imperative. Piaci, piaccia, piacciamo, piacciate, piacciano

Compiacere, like piacere.

Dispiacere, like piacere.

Giacere, like piacere.

Ripiacere, like piacere.

Spiacere, like piacere.

Tacere, like piacere.

Potere, Pres. Ind. Posso, puoi, può, possiamo, potete, possono.

Pres. Sub. Possa, possa, possa, possiamo, possiate, possano.

Imperative. Possa, possa, possiamo, possiate, possano.

Porre, from ponere.

Pres. Ind. Pongo, poni, pone, poniamo, ponete, pongono.

Imperfect. Poneva, ponevi, poneva . . .

Comporre, like porre.

Opporre, like porre.

Scomporre, like porre.

Interporre, like porre.

Rimanere, Pres. Ind. Rimango, rimani, rimane, rimaniamo, rimanete, rimangono.

Salire, Pres. Ind. Salgo or salisco, sali or salisci, sale or salisce, sagliamo, salite, salgono or saliscono.

Pres. Sub. Salga, salga, salga, sagliamo, sagliate or saliate, salgano.

Assalire, like salire.

Soprassalire, like salire.

Risalire, like salire.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Astrarre, like trarre.

Attrarre, like trarre.

Contrarre, like trarre.

Detrarre, like trarre.

Estrarre, like trarre.

Ritrarre, like trarre.

Protrarre, like trarre.

Sottrarre, like trarre.

Udire, Pres. Ind. Odo, odi, ode, udiamo, udite, odono.

Uscire, Pres. Ind. Esco, esci, esce, usciamo, uscite, escono.

Riuscire, like uscire.

Vedere, Pres. Ind. Vedo, veggo or veggio, vedi, vede, vediamo o. veggiamo, vedete, veggono or veggiono.

Antivedere, like vedere.

Avvedere, like vedere.

Rivedere, like vedere.

Provvedere, like vedere.

Prevedere, like vedere.

Ravvedere, like vedere.

Improvvedere, like vedere.

Travedere, like vedere.

Sedere, Pres. Ind. Siedo or seggo, siedì, siede, sediamo, sedete siedono or seggono.

Risedere, like sedere.

Possedere, like sedere.

Soprassedere, like sedere.

Venire, Pres Ind. Vengo, vieni, viene, veniamo, venite, vengono.

Avvenire, like venire.

Addivenire, like venire.

Convenire, like venire.

Divenire, like venire.

Prevenire, like venire.

Provenire, like venire.

Rivenire, like venire.

Rinvenire, like venire.

Sorvenire, like venire.

Sopravvenire, like venire.

Souvenire, like venire.

MASCULINE NOUNS ENDING IN A.

Amacoreta,*	Dramma,	Patriarca,
Anagramma,	Duca,	Patriotta,
Analemma,	Emblema,	Pianeta,*
Anatema,	Enimma,	Poeta,
Antagonista,*	Epigramma,	Poema,
Apostata,*	Ensimena,	Prisma,
Apostema,	Entomata,	Problema,
Apotegma,	Eremita,*	Proclama,
Artista,	Eresiarca,	Profeta,
Assioma,	Fantasma,*	Programma,
Asma,	Fisima,	Realista,*
Ateista,*	Fraticida,*	Regicida,*
Ateroma,	Gesuita,	Reuma,
Automa,	Idioma,	Scisma,
Borea,	Idiota,*	Sistema,
Calvinista,*	Ippocrita,*	Sofisma,
Chitarrista,*	Macchinista,*	Sofista,
Clima,	Materialista,	Sperma,
Deicida,*	Matricida,*	Stemma,
Deista,*	Monarca,	Stratagemma,
Diadema,	Monopolista,*	Tema,
Dilemma,	Omicida,	Teorema,
Diploma,	Papa,	Tetrarca,
Domma,	Parricida,*	Timiama.

* Used also for the feminine ; as, un anacoreta, and una anacoreta.

NOUNS ENDING IN CO AND GO, WHICH TAKE OR REJECT THE H.

Analogo,	Dittongo,	Monaco,
Apologo,	Domestico,	Pratico,
Astrologo,	Equivoco,	Reciproco,
Chirurgo,	Farmaco,	Salvatico,
Dialogo,	Mendico,	Statico.

MASCULINE NOUNS WITH TWO PLURALS

Anello,	Fondamento,	Muro,
Braccio,	Frammento,	Orecchio,
Budello,	Frutto,	Osso,
Calcagno,	Fuso,	Peccato,
Carro,	Gesto,	Pomo,
Castello,	Ginocchio,	Prato,
Cerchio,	Gomito,	Pugno,
Cervello;	Granello,	Quadrello,
Ciglio,	Grido,	Riso,
Coltello,	Guscio,	Sacco,
Comandamento,	Labbro,	Strido,
Corno,	Legno,	Tino,
Cuoio,	Lenzuolo,	Urlo,
Ditello,	Letto,	Vestigio,
Dito,	Membro,	Vestimento.
Filo,	Mulino,

NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES ENDING IN CO AND GO PRECEDED BY A VOWEL, WHICH TAKE AN H IN THE PLURAL.

Abaco,	Farmaco,	Presago,
Abbaco,	Fondaco,	Prodigo,
Antico,	Impiego,	Prolago,
Aprico,	Intrigo,	Pudico,
Beccafico,	Manico,	Rammarico,
Caduco,	Monologo,	Ripiego,
Carico,	Obbligo,	Sacrilego,
Castigo,	Opaco,	Scarico,
Catalogo,	Parroco,	Stomaco,
Dialogo,	Pelago,	Traffico,
Dimentico,	Pedagogo,	Ubbriaco,
Dittongo,	Publico,	Usbergo.

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Peste.	Trampled.	Plague.
Tema.	Fear.	Theme.
Temi.	Thou fearest.	Themes.
Veglio.	I watch.	Old man.
Vello.	See him.	A skin.
Venti.	Twenty.	Winds.
	O close.	O open.
Accorre.	He runs.	To receive
Accorto.	I shorten.	Prudent.
Botte.	A cask.	Blows
Colla.	With the.	Glue.
Colle.	With the.	A hill.
Collo.	With the.	Neck.
Coloro.	I color.	Those.
Colto.	Refined.	Gathered.
Corre.	He runs.	To gather
Costa.	It costs.	A rib.
Folla.	Crowd.	I do it.
Fosse.	Were he.	Ditches.
Indotto.	Induced.	Ignorant.
Ora.	Now, hour.	He prays.
Orno.	To adorn.	A wild ash.
Porsi.	To put one's self.	I offered.
Pose.	He put.	Pauses.
Posi.	I put.	Let him rest.
Posta.	Placed.	The post-office.
Ricorre.	He has recourse.	He reaps.
Riposi.	I concealed.	Rests.
Rosa.	Rotten.	A rose.
Scopo.	I sweep.	Scope.
Sole.	The sun.	He is accustomed.
Sono.	I am.	I play.
Tomo.	I fall.	Volume.
Torre.	A tower.	To take away.
Torta.	A pie.	Twisted.
Volgo.	The plebeians.	I turn.
Volto.	Face.	Turned.
Voto.	Vow.	Vacant.

E X T R A C T F R O M
I L C A R M A G N O L A O F M A N Z O N I .

O misere, sa il Cielo
 Che per voi sole ei m'è tremendo. Avvezzo
 Io son da lungo a contemplar la morte,
 E ad aspettarla. Ah! sol per voi bisogno
 Ho di coraggio; e voi — voi non vorrete
 Tormelo, è vero? Allor che Iddio sui buoni
 Fa cader la sciagura, ei dona ancora
 Il cor di sostenerla. Ah! pari il vostro
 Alla sciagura or sia. Godiam di questo
 Abbracciamento: è un don del Cielo anch' esso.
 Figlia, tu piangi; e tu consorte! . . Ah! quando
 Ti feci mia, sereni i giorni tuoi
 Scorreano in pace; — io ti chiamai compagna
 Del mio tristo destin: questo pensiero
 Mi avvelena il morir. Deh ch' io non veggia
 Quanto per me sei sventurata!
 È grande il torto;
 Ma perdona, e vedrai che in mezzo ai mali
 Un' alta gioia anco riman. — La morte!
 Il più crudel nemico altro non puote
 Che accelerarla. — Oh! gli uomini non hanno
 Inventata la morte: ella sarìa
 Rabbiosa, insopportabile: — dal Cielo
 Ella ne viene, e l'accompagna il Cielo
 Con tal conforto, che nè dar nè torre
 Gli uomini ponno. — O sposa, o figlia, — udite
 Le mie parole estreme: amare, il veggio,
 Vi piombano sul cor; ma un giorno avrete
 Qualche dolcezza a rammentarle insieme. —
 Tu sposa, vivi — il dolor vinci, e vivi;
 Questa infelice orba non sia del tutto:
 Fuggi da questa terra, e tosto ai tuoi
 La riconduci — ella è lor sangue — ad essi
 Fosti sì cara un di: — consorte poscia
 Del lor nemico, il fosti men; le crude

Ire di Stato avversi fean gran tempo
 De' Carmagnola e de' Visconti il nome. —
 Ma tu riedi infelice ; il tristo oggetto
 Dell' odio è tolto : — è un gran pacier la morte.
 E tu, tenero fior, tu che fra l'armi
 A rallegrare il mio pensier venivi, —
 Tu chini il capo ; — oh ! la tempesta rugge
 Sopra di te — tu tremi, ed al singulto
 Più non regge il tuo sen — sento sul petto
 Le tue infocate lagrime cadermi ;
 E tergerle non posso ; — a me tu sembri
 Chieder pietà, Matilde ; ah ! nulla il padre
 Può far per te ; — ma pei disertì, in cielo
 V' è un padre, il sai. — Confida in esso, e vivi
 Ai dì tranquilli, se non lieti ; ei certo
 Te li destina. Ah ! perchè mai versato
 Tutto il torrente dell' angoscia avrìa
 Sul tuo mattin, se non serbasse al resto
 Tutta la sua pietà ? — Vivi, e consola
 Questa dolente madre. — Oh ch' ella un giorno
 A un degno sposo ti conduca in braccio ! —

C O R O .

S' ode a destra uno squillo di tromba ;
 A sinistra risponde uno squillo :
 D'ambo i lati calpesto rimbomba
 Da cavalli e da fanti il terren.
 Quinci spunta per l'aria un vessillo ;
 Quindi un altro s' avanza spiegato :
 Ecco appare un drappello schierato ;
 Ecco un altro che incontro gli vien.
 Già di mezzo sparito è il terreno ;
 Già le spade rispingon le spade ;
 L'un dell'altro le immerge nel seno ,
 Gronda il sangue ; raddoppia il ferir. —
 Chi son essi ? Alle belle contrade
 Qual ne venne straniero a far guerra ?

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

Get Smart

Over 2,000 years of
human knowledge in
797,885 volumes

Instant access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Qui, le donne, alle veglie lucenti
 Dei monili far pompa e dei cinti,
 Che alle donne deserte dei vinti
 Il marito o l'amante rapì. —

Ahi sventura ! sventura ! sventura !
 Già la terra è coperta d'uccisi ;
 Tutta è sangue la vasta pianura ;
 Cresce il grido, raddoppia il furor.
 Ma negli ordini manchi e divisi
 Mal si regge, già cede una schiera ;
 Già nel volgo, che vincer dispera,
 Delle vita rinasce l'amor.

Come il grano lanciato dal pieno
 Ventilabro nell' aria si spande ;
 Tale intorno per l'ampio terreno
 Si sparpagliano i vinti guerrier.
 Ma improvvise terribili bande
 Ai fuggenti s'affaccian sul calle ;
 Ma si senton più presso alle spalle
 Scalpitare il temuto destrier.

Cadon trepidi a piè dei nemici,
 Rendon l'arme, si danno prigionì :
 Il clamor delle turbe vittrici
 Copre i lai del tapino che muor.
 Un corriero è salito in arcioni ;
 Prende un foglio, il ripone, s'avvia,
 Sferza, sprona, divora la via ;
 Ogni villa si desta al romor.

Perchè tutti sul pesto cammino
 Dalle case, dai campi accorrete ?
 Ognun chiede con ansia al vicino,
 Che gioconda novella recò ?
 Donde ei venga, infelici, il sapete,
 E sperate che gioia favelli !
 I fratelli hanno ucciso i fratelli :
 Questa orrenda novella vi do.

Odo intorno festevoli gridi ;
 S'orna il tempio, e risuona del canto ;

Già s'innalzan dai cuori omicidi
Grazie ed inni che abbomina il Ciel.
Giù dal cerchio dell'Alpi frattanto
Lo staniero gli sguardi rivolge ;
Vede i forti che mordon la polve,
E li conta con gioia crudel. —

Affrettatevi, empite la schiere,
Suspendete i trionfi ed i giuochi,
Ritornate alle vostre bandiere ;
Lo straniero discende ; egli è quì.
Vincitor ! Siete deboli e pochi ?
Ma per questo a sfidarvi ei discende ;
E voglioso a quei compì v' attende
Ove il vostro fratello perì. —

Tu che angusta a' tuoi figli parevi ;
Tu che in pace nutrirli non sai,
Fatal terra, gli estranei ricevi :
Tal giudizio comincia per te.
Un nemico che offeso non hai,
A tue mense insultando s' asside ;
Degli stolti le spoglie divide ;
Toglie il brando di mano a' tuoi re.

Stolto anch' esso ! Beata fu mai
Gente alcuna per sangue ed oltraggio ?
Solo al vinto non toccano i guai ;
Torna in pianto dell'empio il gioir.
Ben talor nel superbo viaggio
Non l'abbatte l'eterna vendetta :
Ma lo segna ; ma veglia ed aspetta ;
Ma lo coglie all' estremo sospir.

Tutti fatti a sembianza d' un Solo ;
Figli tutti d' un solo riscatto,
In qual' ora, in qual parte del suolo
Trascorriamo quest' aura vital,
Siam fratelli ; siamo stretti ad un patto :
Maledetto colui che lo infrange,
Che s'innalza sul fiacco che piange,
Che contrista uno spirto immortal !

EXTRACT FROM ALFIERI'S ORESTE

ANTICA usanza ogni quint' anno in Creta
 Giuochi rinnova e sacrificii a Giove.
 Desio di gloria e natural vaghezza
 Tragge a quel lido il giovinetto : al fianco
 Pilade egli ha non divisibil mai.
 Calda brama d'onor nell' ampia arena
 Su lieve carro a contrastar lo spinge
 De' veloci corsier la nobil palma ;
 Troppo a vincere intento, ivi la vita
 Per la vittoria ei dà
 Feroce troppo, impaziente, incauto,
 Or colla voce minacciosa incalza,
 Or del flagel, che sanguinoso ei ruota,
 Si forte batte i destrier suoi mal domi
 Ch' oltre la meta volano, più ardenti
 Quanto veloci più. Già sordi al freno,
 Già sordi al grido, ch' ora invan gli acqueta
 Foco spiran le nari ; all' aura i crini
 Svolazzan irti : e in denso nembo avvolti
 D'agonal polve, quanto è vasto il circo,
 Corron, ricorron come folgor ratti.
 Spavento, orrore, alto scompiglio e morte
 Per tutto arreca in torti giri il carro
 Finchè percosso con orribil urto .
 A marmorea colonna il fervid' asse
 Riverso Oreste cadde
 Io non dirò, come di sangue il piano
 Rigasse, orribilmente strascinato
 Pilade accorse . . . invan . . . fra le sue braccia
 Spirò l'amico, ...

THIS PAGE IS LOCKED TO FREE MEMBERS

Purchase full membership to immediately unlock this page

HISTORY

Tens of thousands of important historical sources, many previously unobtainable, are now available for the first time with a Forgotten Books Full Membership.

Unlimited Access
$8.99/month

Continue

*Fair usage policy applies

Interrogative Pronouns, ...	64
Regular Verbs, Third Conjugation, ...	67
Hours of the Day : Half past, a quarter past, a quarter of, . . .	68
Conjunctive Pronouns, continued, ...	71
Table of Compound Conjunctive Pronouns, ...	73
Remarks on the Regular Verbs, ...	75
Collective and Distributive Numbers, ...	76
Ordinal Numbers, ...	78
Proportional Numbers, ...	79
Irregular Verbs, ...	81
Agreement of Verbs. — Use of the Imperfect and Perfect, ...	86
Comparatives, ...	89
Superlatives, ...	92
Irregular Comparatives and Superlatives, ...	93
Possessive Pronouns, continued, ...	95
Use of the Subjunctive, ...	98
Past Participle, ...	102
Formation of the Plural, continued, ...	105
Augmentatives and Diminutives, ...	108
Adverbs, ...	111
Indefinite Pronouns used substantively for Persons, ...	115
Indefinite Pronouns used substantively for Things, ...	118
Indefinite Pronouns used substantively for Persons and Things, .	111
Indefinite Pronouns used adjectively for Persons and Things, .	124
Formation of the Feminine, ...	127
Prepositions di, a , ...	130
Prepositions da, per, infuori , ...	133

Use of the Third Person Feminine, ...	137
Idiomatic Expressions with the verbs avere , to have, and essere , to be, ...	138
Of the Pronoun si , ...	140
Synonyms : Fear, paura, timore ; to rub, strofinare, stropicciare . — Idiomatic Expressions with the Verbs andare , to go, and stare , to stay, ...	141
Ellipses, ...	143
Idiomatic Expressions with the Verb dare , to give, ...	144
Ellipses, continued, ...	146

Idiomatic Expressions with the verb fare , to make, ...	147
Diminution of Words, ...	149 —
Maxims and Figures of Speech, ...	150 —
Diminution of Words, continued, ...	152 —
Maxims and Figures of Speech, ...	153
Transposition of Words, ...	155
Synonyms: Step of a staircase, gradino , scalino , ...	156
Derivation of Words, ...	158
Maxims and Figures, ...	159
Derivation of Words, continued, ...	161
Maxims and Figures, ...	162
Formation of Words, ...	164
Maxims and Figures, ...	165
Maxims and Figures, ...	167
Synonyms: Servant, servitore , servo ; devotion, devozione , divo- zione , ...	168
Maxims and Figures, ...	170 —
Synonyms: Labor, fatica , travaglio ; proud, superbo ; haughty, altiero , ...	171
Maxims and Figures, ...	173 —
Synonyms: Composition, composizione , componimento ; grati- tude, gratitudine , riconoscenza , ...	174
Maxims and Figures, ...	176 —
Synonyms: Leaf, fronda , foglia ; purity, purità , purezza ; ter- ror, terrore , spavento , ...	177
Maxims and Figures, ...	179 —
Synonyms: Lie, menzogna , bugia ; light, luce , lume ; work, lavoro , opera ; to go out, uscire , sortire , ...	181
Maxims and Figures, ...	182
Synonyms: New, nuovo , novello ; shame, onta , vergogna , ...	183
Maxims and Figures, ...	185 —
Synonyms: Crafty, astuto , furbo ; first, primo , primiero , ...	186
Maxims and Figures, ...	188
Synonyms: To repeat, ripetere , replicare ; relation, relazione , rapporto , ...	189
Idiomatic Expressions, ...	191
Idiomatic Expressions, ...	194
Conjunction of the Auxiliary Verbs to have and to be , ...	197 —
Inflections of the Regular Verbs of the First, Second, and Third Conjugation, ...	199

Irregular Verbs of the First Conjugation, ...	201
Verbs of the Third Conjugation in which the termination isco is indispensable, ...	203
Verbs of the Third Conjugation with the present ending in o or isco , ...	206
List of Irregular Verbs, ...	207
Verbs of the Second Conjugation with the accent on the Penulti- mate, ...	218
Regular Verbs of the Third Conjugation, ...	218
Exceptional Irregularities of Verbs, ...	219
Masculine Nouns ending in a , ...	223
Nouns ending in co and go which take or reject the h in the Plural,	223
Masculine Nouns with two Plurals, ...	224
Nouns ending in co and go which take an h in the Plural, though preceded by a Vowel, ...	224
Irregular Feminines, ...	225
List of Equivocal Words, ...	225
Extract from Manzoni, ...	227
Extract from Alfieri, ...	232